Red Efforts To Put Allies Out of Berlin Speeded Up

Propaganda Geared To Continuation of Blockade on Food And Fuel Supplies

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, June 25 (NYHT). The Russians combined propaganda with new kinds of pressure today in their campaign to convince the Germans in the western sectors of Berlin that there will be starvation and economic chaos unless the Western Allies leave this city. The Russian economic blockade continued to cut off Berlin from Western supplies of food and coal.

[The United Press said Russian authorities notified American transport officials at Helmstedt, on the border of the Russian and British occupation zones that the Soviet ban against railroad and automobile traffic to and from Berlin would be withdrawn Monday.]

An American announcement said United States planes would begin tomorrow to bring in limited amounts of medical supplies, provisions which are in short supply and some raw materials for industry. Electrical manufactures already contracted for will be flown out.

Plane Transport Impractical

The Russians stopped reciprocal deliveries of food from their sector to the western sectors, which have on hand, according to reports today, supplies of food and coal sufficient for two weeks.

The Russian-controlled Berlin Radio asserted there were already critical shortages of food in the western sectors. Allied authorities conceded that these sectors cannot be supplied with food and coal by plane. About 4000 tons a day is needed, and a plane load averages three tons.

The Russian-controlled radio said workers in the Soviet sector were demanding a general strike throughout Berlin in retaliation for the introduction of the western Allies' Deutschemark in the western sectors.

Introduction of the Deutschemark began today and proceeded quietly. The average German took in his stride the existence together of a western mark and an eastern mark sponsored by the Russians, but it was very clear that he had more confidence in the western mark.

The black market quotation was five eastern marks for one western mark.

Police Kept on Alert

German police in all four Berlin sectors were being kept on the alert, as were also American, British, French and Russian military police. All four of the powers kept most of their troops confined to barracks.

The British placed a temporary ban on new arrivals here of British dependents. It was understood that 12 families were held up at home as a result.

The Berlin municipal government was reported planning an appeal to the United Nations. It would have to be approved by the municipal council. A British-licensed news agency said one of

Big Bear Invades Staunton Street, Is Hunted Down

Staunton, Va., June 25 (AP).—Local residents staged a full-fledged bear hunt right down Waverley st. last night.

A 300-pound black bear from the woods went tearing through yards, ripping down fences and sending dogs and children scurrying.

Roy F. Huffer heard his little daughter screaming and picked up his shotgun as the bear advanced on the girl.

The bear retreated into the thickets, but was found later in a back yard. Somebody had shot it.

The carcass was sent to Western State Hospital for bear stew.

Louis KO's Walcott in 11th After Being Down in Third

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Yankee Stadium, New York, June 25.—Joe Louis, unceremoniously dumped on the floor in round three tonight, and with his heavyweight title sadly askew, organized himself into a punching fury in round 11 and knocked out Jersey Joe Walcott with a dozen shots to the jaw.

With that battering finish, the champion rescued the contest from almost complete dullness that saw the Yankee Stadium crowd of 42,667 clamoring for action from the fighters.

Preceding the eleventh round Referee Frankie Fullam walked into the corners of both champion and challenger and demanded they show more fight. Late in the third minute of the eleventh it happened.

Beginning of the End

With Pappy Walcott ahead on points and threatening to take the title from a slow-moving, strangely cautious and ineffective Louis, they traded punches, and it was the beginning of the end—for Walcott.

Walcott's left and Louis' right connected simultaneously. Jersey Joe's was a solid swat to Louis' chin but the Champion had landed his best punch of the night. For the first time he had connected cleanly with the chin of the dancing, sidestepping Jersey Joe who for 10 rounds had feinted him into ridiculous postures and won most of the rounds.

Walcott was hurt but on the ropes he fought back gamely enough. But now Louis had hate in his heart for the man who in training camp had called him "a dumb fighter" after their first bout last December.

A left hook to the head numbed Walcott and Louis was now a bundle of fighting fury, crossing lefts and rights to the open chin of the challenger.

Walcott's head rolled mechanically as he called on his ring lore to duck the ceaseless shots Louis was throwing and then he went down.

Referee Fullam picked up the timekeeper's count at five and by that time Walcott was on hands and knees, struggling to regain his feet. At eight Jersey Joe made his big effort to get up, sagged once more and was still straining for footing when Fullam doled the fateful "ten." The end came at 2:56.

A happy Louis was rushed by his handlers in the center of the ring as Walcott's men led the beaten challenger to his corner. Champion Joe had indicated that this was to be his last—his twenty-fifth—defense of the title and he preserved his record of always knocking out his man the second time around. Walcott was the tenth challenger to take the full count in return bouts with Louis.

But it was Louis who bore the only marks of the battle. He left the ring with the right side of his face still bearing the welt of that third-round knockdown and his eye puffed. Walcott showed no marks.

A Time Bomb Goes Off

So dull was the action in the 10 rounds, with the exception of Walcott's early knockdown of the champion for the count of one, that Louis' sudden explosion in the eleventh was equivalent to the flare of a time bomb in a cheese cake.

Until the eleventh it wasn't much of a fight for the fans who had paid in $841,739 at the gate.

Awaiting the first bell, they both danced the traditional little warmup jigs in their corners, and there were misgivings that Wal-

Miners Get Pay Boost Of $1 a Day

Royalty Doubled; 'Captive' Owners Refuse to Sign; Price Rise Seen

By John Ball
Post Reporter

After less than two days in conference, John L. Lewis and the operators of two thirds of the Nation's soft coal mines, signed the most-rapidly negotiated contract in recent history yesterday.

The new agreement provides:

1. An increase of $1 a day in wages for each of the Nation's 400,000 soft coal miners.

2. An increase to 20 cents a ton royalty on each ton of coal mined for the benefit of the Miners Welfare Fund. The present royalty is 10 cents a ton. The new royalty will bring total annual payments to the fund for retirement benefits and disability payments to 100 million dollars a year, it is estimated.

The agreement staves off the threat of a strike in the mines July 1, when the present agreement expires.

Mine operators estimated the contract will result in an increase of coal of about 60 cents a ton.

A clause giving Lewis the same union shop arrangement as last year caused the steel industry, owners of the so-called "captive mines" to decline to sign the new contract. Harry M. Moses, negotiator for the latter group, refused to sign. He held the union shop agreement violated the Taft-Hartley Act.

Because Lewis has refused to sign an affidavit, under the provision of the Taft-Hartley Act, disavowing Communism, the United Mine Workers are denied an election under the National Labor Relations Board, to sustain the closed shop provision.

Unless the United States Steel Corp. and other owners of captive mines sign by July 1, a strike is almost certain at their plants. The captive mines produce about 60 million tons of coal a year. The total coal production is about 600 million tons annually. The operators who signed yesterday's agreement produce about 400 million tons.

$1 a Day Isn't Enough, Some Miners Comment

Pittsburgh, June 25 (U.P.).—Coal miners greeted a new coal contract, increasing wages $1 a day with relief mixed with disappointment.

"Lewis kicked in for some reason or other," Bob Riggs told the group of fellow miners gathered in a tavern near the big Montour No. 10 pit at Library, Pa. "He's got something up his sleeve, or he wouldn't have signed."

"A dollar a day—three would have been right," another miner said.

The miners also were disappointed that the union's bid for reduction of the work day from eight to seven hours had failed.

"We don't see sunlight except on Saturday and Sunday," one complained.

However, the miners generally were relieved that expiration of the old contract will not mean another strike as it has in the past.

The miners came out of the pits today to begin their annual 10-day vacation.

"I'll enjoy this time off a lot more," a Fayette County miner said, "knowing that I'll be coming back to work when the holiday's over."

Warren Picked Unanimously As Running Mate for Dewey; Party Hails East-West Ticket

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., June 25. The Republican National Convention today reached across the continent to nominate California's undefeated Gov. Earl Warren as runningmate of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

He was named by acclamation in 20 minutes in this convention's only real upset. California delegates touched off a lusty four-minute demonstration, spreading newspapers for confetti and shrieking their delight. Half-filled galleries echoed the applause.

Choice of the 57-year-old 6-footer, who declined the second place position in 1944, followed an all-night leadership conference in the hotel suite of Governor Dewey. About 11:30 a. m., the party's top men reached "near unanimity" on Warren.

No Second for Stassen

Delegates waiting at the hall received their first cue 30 minutes later when the Alabama delegation yielded to the State of Oregon to place Warren's name in nomination.

Arizona tossed in the name of Harold E. Stassen, but failed of a second, Minnesota's own delegation "passing." Without a formal ballot, Chairman Martin declared Warren the nominee, and it was all over.

Warren, accompanied by his wife and three daughters, aged 14 to 19, appeared on the platform. Warren ad-libbed his acceptance speech.

"Before you change your minds, I want to say that I accept," said the husky 215-pound Californian.

To Governor Dewey he pledged "every bit of loyalty that is in my make-up," adding:

"I will join with him this summer and fall in making a great crusade for return of our country to republican principles . . .

"I will work with him to make it a great Government, an efficient Government, and, above all, a Government of integrity, from top to bottom."

It was a clear-cut victory for the progressive, international wing of the Republican Party. Geographically, it linked New York and California for the first time on a national ticket, in a vote-getting combination hard to beat.

Change in Role Planned

In these other developments:

Governor Dewey told reporters there will be "an historic change" in the role of Vice President if he has his way—that Governor Warren will be invited to sit in with his Cabinet and accept "full partnership" in administrative duties.

Governor Warren, who wants to be a "working" Vice President, confirmed that Dewey's promise helped influence his decision to run. One of the great weaknesses of our system, he said, is that the Vice President has so little to do.

During the weary overnight vigil in Governor Dewey's suite, two of the early front runners for the No. 2 spot were dropped—House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) and Senator John W. Bricker of Ohio.

The isolationist records of both were against them. When Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan left the conference at 2:30 a. m., it had narrowed down to either Warren or Stassen. Either was acceptable to Vandenberg, but he urged Stassen first.

Warren Called Out of Bed

Governor Dewey told reporters it was still undecided at 4:30 a. m., when he got Governor Warren out of bed and asked him to come over for a talk. Nor was the outcome known when Warren left at 6 a. m.

Governor Dewey snatched two hours sleep then called in his leaders to go over the whole field again.

Finally, at 11:33 a. m., J. Russel Sprague, county manager of Nassau County and one of Dewey's co-managers burst out of the room.

"It is the unanimous opinion of all of us that Governor Warren should be the candidate," Sprague told reporters.

Dewey told a later press conference it was finally agreed at 11:30 this morning that more rep-

Welfare Unit Approves Rise In Aid Grants

Individual Increase 10%, Family 20% on '46 Living Cost Scale

Increased grants to District needy to bring them four years closer to the spiraling cost of living were approved yesterday by the Board of Public Welfare.

The board approved a revised "budget guide," which will give individuals an average increase of about 10 per cent, with family groups getting about 20 per cent more.

The new scales are based on cost-of-living budgets for the year 1946, whereas the 1942 cost of living now is used as a standard, according to Raymond Clapp, principal assistant to Welfare Director John W. Tramburg.

The board also approved Tramburg's 1950 budget estimates, for the child welfare and public assistance divisions, but revealed no figures. Board members, however, said the amounts were higher than the 1949 estimates to be in effect July 1, because of the higher grants and an expected increase in the number of dependent old persons and children.

The Welfare Board thus appears to be the first agency to attempt to pierce the Commissioners' econ-

Gambler Gets Year in Jail, $1000 Fine

Appeal Brings Maximum Term To Maryland Man

A second trial of convicted gambler Wilburn E. Morrow, brought him a maximum sentence yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court—$1000 fine and a year in jail.

At the same time, of four persons sentenced in District Court here on numbers-writing charges yesterday, two received suspended sentences and one was fined $100 and given a suspended sentence. The heaviest District Court penalty was 30 to 90 days in jail.

Morrow's sentence in Maryland came on a char of accepting a bet—a misdemeanor. The four District defendants had pleaded guilty to operating a lottery—a felony—and three to possession of numbers slips—a misdemeanor.

Last December, Morrow was convicted of the same charge, but the Maryland Court of Appeals ordered a new trial on grounds that certain evidence was excluded from the trial, purporting to show that Morrow was in South Carolina on the date the bet was said to have been placed.

But in the second trial, held this week, Morrow was again convicted.

In again sentencing him to the same penalty yesterday, the maximum for the misdemeanor, Montgomery County Circuit Court Judge Charles W. Woodward repeated what he has told many gamblers:

"This should serve as a warning to all professional gamblers to stay out of this county."

Judge Woodward pointed out that while awaiting a second trial in Montgomery County, Morrow, who is 53 years old and lives at

'Frightful Imposition'

Summer Session of Congress Would Be Unfair, Dewey Says

Warren Takes No. 2 Post on Assurance Of Partnership Role

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., June 25.—Mr. Throttlebottom is bowing out of politics.

What Gov. Thomas E. Dewey described as "a historic change" in the role of American Vice Presidents today became an unwritten plank in the Republican platform.

Dewey changed the traditional concept of the small job to fit the big man who will step into it if Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren are elected in November.

In fact, Governor Warren, who has said "No" to all previous offers of the Senate gavel-pounding post, insisted on the change before he agreed to run.

'Partnership' Promised

Warren told Dewey he has worked all his life and doesn't expect to stop working if he moves to Washington next January. He asked Dewey for something to do besides drowse on the Senate rostrum.

Dewey promised him a "full partnership" share of administrative duties, with plenty of time out from gavel fiddling.

He didn't say just what he had in mind, but the Hoover commission on reorganization of the executive departments is believed blue printing legislation to make the next White House understudy a sort of "assistant president."

There is talk also of boosting the inadequate $20,000 salary that goes with America's second highest honor to something like $30,000 or $35,000.

Man of Modest Means

Mr. Warren, a man of modest means, has long felt he couldn't "afford" to live in Washington.

But it wasn't the pay that made him reluctant to take second place on anyone's ticket. It was the horrifying thought of that national cipher: "Mr. Throttlebottom."

In his 4:30 a. m. talk with Governor Dewey in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, eight hours before

Members Have Own Campaigns to Make, Nominee Tells Press

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 25.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for President, said today it would be a "frightful imposition" to call Congress back for any summer special session.

In his first full-scale press conference since receiving the nomination, Governor Dewey said he had no plan for seeking any special session of Congress. He said its members have their own campaigns to make for election.

Still jaunty and smiling after sleeping but 2 of the preceding 31 hours, Governor Dewey walked into the Rose Room on the top floor of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel for his press conference about 3 p. m.

For half an hour, he faced a battery of television and movie lights, and answered questions tossed from the crowd of some 200 news reporters.

When asked about his immediate plans he gave a morning-after opinion that is widely held after the frantic four-day Republican convention. He said he wanted an hour's nap, and would try to get it before evening.

He said he hopes to go up Saturday to his farm. It is a 486-acre tract near Pawling, N. Y. Beyond that no plans were given. James C. Hagerty, press secretary for Dewey, said it was not known how long the Governor would stay at his farm, but that he had a lot of work awaiting him in Albany.

Neither were Dewey's campaign plans clarified. He reminded his press conference that he began active campaigning for the Presi-

Darby in Line For National Chairman Job

Kansan Is Possible GOP Selection as Successor to Reece

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 25.—The name of Harry Darby, GOP national committeeman from Kansas, loomed here tonight as a possible choice for the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee, which meets here tomorrow.

It was made clear here today that Carroll Reece, present chairman, who has been closely associated with Senator Robert A. Taft (Ohio), will be replaced.

Normally, the party's nominee, now Governor Thomas E. Dewey, has nearly full say over the selection of this important GOP official.

At Dewey's headquarters tonight it was stated that the usual Dewey policy of consultation with all elements of the party would be followed.

Big 3 Not Available

None of the Big Three of the Dewey team, it is reported, will be available for the top party post. Herbert Brownell, New York attorney, will again manage Dewey's presidential campaign. J. Russel Sprague of New York has said he wouldn't take the job "for a million dollars," and Edwin F. Jaeckle, the third member of the team, is also unavailable.

There are several in the running, but of them all the wise money here tonight is on Darby.

Among others mentioned for the politically potent post, which has been an unpaid job for the last several years, are Walter S. Hallanan, national committeeman from West Virginia, chairman of the European Alarm Groundless

Marshall Plan Agreements Quiet Fears of U. S. Dictation

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

European fears of American "dictation" have been largely belied in the final terms of the bilateral agreements, now nearing completion, governing the uses and conditions of Marshall Plan aid.

Unofficial reports of the agreements yesterday showed little or no basis for the cries of alarm that have emanated from western European capitals on this subject in recent weeks, and even in the last few days.

Most of the cries were produced by an early American draft, submitted on May 13, which set the burglar alarms ringing in the foreign offices in London, Paris and elsewhere. A high American official conceded yesterday that this draft had been tactless and not exactly "felicitous" in its language.

But now, he said, the European negotiators themselves feel reasonably satisfied and believe they can honestly recommend the final agreements to their respective governments and parliaments for approval.

Italy and Norway have already agreed upon the terms, subject to the approval of their parliaments. Britain, France, Denmark and Sweden have almost agreed after long-drawn-out negotiations in Washington.

Others of the 16 participating countries and western Germany are expected soon to sign agreements patterned on those already negotiated. They have to do so before July 3, for the Economic Cooperation Act of Congress requires that aid be cut off if an agreement with each country is not in full effect by that date.

The time table may have the element of "dictation" in it, but the contents of the agreement have little or none.

One of the most persistent European fears last winter and spring, for example, was that the United States might try to apply hard-and-fast conditions for using the huge funds of local currencies

Haifa, Israel, June 25 (AP).—The Israeli army said today its troops had clashed again with Arab units at El Birwa, inflicting 100 casualties.

Fighting in the village, 7 miles east of Haifa in western Galilee, has been going on for two days and United Nations truce observers are on the scene investigating.

El Birwa, held by a small Jewish garrison prior to the truce, fell to Arab surprise attack. The attackers were under the command of Fawzi Pasha al Kaukji of the Arab liberation army.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Warren, Like Dewey, Made His Reputation As Racket Buster, Sending Sheriff to Jail

Earl Warren, like Tom Dewey, made his name in politics as a racket-buster.

In the early 30's, while Dewey was knocking off Waxey Gordon's gang in New York, Warren was fighting rackets and corruption in public office on the other side of the country, in Alameda County, across the bay from San Francisco. Warren sent the sheriff to prison for participation in an illegal bail-bond operation. And he convicted a city commissioner of an illicit paving contract deal.

His party nationally will quickly learn, as California already knows, that Warren has a mind of his own. At the recent conference of Governors at Portsmouth, N. H, he spoke out frankly on many questions of prime importance.

He didn't pull any punches in recommending Government housing projects.

He denounced the provision in the defense bill to recruit 25,000 aliens into the United States Army. "It is," he told a Washington Post reporter, "accepting the European theory of mercenaries—a theory abhorrent to our ideas." He termed it a "diluting of our armed forces."

Definite About Palestine

He was definite in his ideas about the Palestine situation. He was opposed to lifting the embargo against shipment of arms to Palestine. "That," he said, "would be throwing gasoline on a fire." Instead, he said, this country should demand that the United Nations take action to prevent any disturbance of what was determined to be the proper settlement in Palestine.

He declared that the issues in the coming election "are far more important than the personalities that head our ticket."

"America has grown up," he said. "It must take its place as an adult in consideration of world problems." He was definitely opposed to any "penny-saving" reductions in appropriations for European recovery. "We must either decide whether we plan to aid in Europe's recovery, or, at a temporary saving, adopt a policy of European relief."

We believes an aroused public can do more to crush any growth of communism within our borders than all the legislation in the world. In this regard, he agreed consistently with his running mate, Thomas E. Dewey, as Dewey expressed himself in his Portland debate with Stassen.

Started Winning in 1926

Warren started winning elections in 1926 when he became district attorney of Alameda County, which includes the City of Oakland on the east side of San Francisco Bay. He was re-elected in 1930 and 1934 and won a reputation as a racket-buster and prosecutor of corrupt public officials.

In 1938 Warren decided to try for State attorney general, an important and powerful office. Although Democrats were elected to nearly every other State office that year, Warren won. In that job, he cracked down on illegal gambling, hitting hard at bookmaking and personally leading a sea-going raid on an offshore gambling ship.

In 1944, the big white-haired California Governor, who now is 57, refused to accept the vice presidential nomination as Dewey's running mate, declaring:

"I have certain commitments in my home State as Governor which I have not yet been able to complete, and to complete them is for me more than a passing obligation."

Earl Warren has held every political office he ever sought in California.

Sets Precedents

His long career includes two terms as Governor. He is the first Chief Executive of California since the late Hiram Johnson to gain reelection and the first one ever to win both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

He is variously described politically. Some term him a "middle of the roader." Others call him a "moderate liberal," a "liberal conservative" or "conservative," even "radical."

The latter appellation resulted, in the main, from Warren's advocacy of public-owned power and his espousal of so-called compulsory health insurance, State-operated workers' disability insurance, liberalization of social security benefits and collective bargaining.

The Governor dislikes the word "compulsory" in connection with the health insurance plan he has advocated unsuccessfully during both of his gubernatorial terms. He prefers to call it "prepaid medical and hospital care."

Declaring that for many people "illness is a catastrophe," Warren says of his health insurance plan:

"It is not socialized medicine. It is merely extending the principle of insurance to one of the greatest hazards which confronts the working man and women."

Reduced State Taxes

His accomplishments as Governor include a material reduction in State taxes, reorganization of the State's penal and reform systems and a 10-year highway expansion plan.

Warren advocates nonpartisanship or bipartisanship at State levels but is a stanch supporter of the two-party system nationally. He sometimes appoints Democrats to office. His executive secretary is a lifelong Democrat.

He indorses universal military training as necessary under existing conditions. America, he says, must keep itself militarily strong to achieve its objectives of peace.

No sane ruler or country would deliberately provoke war with a rich country like ours if it were known that we were ready to defend ourselves.

While conceding that the people of Russia had the right to determine the form of their own government, he feels "we are bound to oppose the imposition of a communistic or any other form of government upon any nation through exterior political or diplomatic pressure or threats or actual use of force."

He declares further that "on the ground of common humanity," as well as for self-interest, the United States should help war-torn countries which were either free or struggling for their freedom.

Was 1944 Keynoter

Warren was Republican National Committeeman for California from 1936 to 1940. He achieved his first party recognition nationally in 1944 when he was named temporary chairman of the Republican National Convention at Chicago and delivered the keynote speech. He previousl, had attended conventions as a delegate.

His feat in winning reelection as Governor at the primaries—officially the nominee of both the Republicans and Democrats—gained him additional national attention. He won the election by the biggest majority ever given a California Governor.

Big, blond and perpetually smiling, Warren prospered politically by his faculty for making friends.

Born in Los Angeles March 19, 1891, he attended public schools in Bakersfield and was graduated from the University of California in 1912. He was graduated two years later from the university's school of jurisprudence. From 1914 to 1917 he practiced law.

During World War I he served as a lieutenant in Company I, 363d Infantry, but did not see overseas service.

Intensely interested in law enforcement, Governor Warren participated in movements to improve the training of police and other peace officers. [His father had been beaten to death, possibly by robbers, in an unsolved crime.] The International Association of Chiefs of Police made him an active life member. In 1934 he was awarded the medal of the United States Flag Association for outstanding work in the field of law enforcement.

He brought Western Governors into consultations on conservation, water development and other issues having to do with the progress of the West as a whole. He urged joint action and cooperation between Western States.

Warren was grand master of the California Grand Lodge of Masons in 1935-36.

In 1925 he married Mrs. Nina Palmquist Meyers, a widow. Five children were born to them and he adopted her son, James, by a former marriage.

Dewey Leading Over Truman

On the basis of the last Gallup Poll showing their comparable standings with voters in April, Thomas E. Dewey topped Harry S. Truman in the Presidency race.

With Henry A. Wallace on the ballot as a third-party candidate, the poll completed in early April showed the following results:

Dewey, 47 per cent of the vote; Truman, 39 per cent; Wallace, 7 per cent, while a vital 7 per cent had "no opinion."

In the same type of polls taken at that time, Stassen, Vandenburg and Taft also showed that they could top Truman, by somewhat less of a percentage than Dewey's margin. In a later poll pitting Stassen against Truman and Wallace in early May, when Stassen's popularity was at its peak, Stassen was favored by 56 per cent of the voters. (There has been no later Dewey-Truman poll.)

Throughout 18 months of Gallup Polls, except for Stassen's brief fling after his Wisconsin and Nebraska primary victories, Dewey continued to be the popular choice of Republican voters. In early June, Dewey was favored by 33 per cent of Republican voters polled.

When a cross-section of voters was asked, in April, what presidential candidates they considered "liberal" or "conservative," 37 per cent ranked Dewey as conservative, 15 per cent termed him a liberal, and 48 per cent could not make up their minds.

Warren Picked as Running Mate for Dewey

resentative members of the party would unite behind Warren than any other.

Asked if it were a fact that he "wouldn't take" Halleck or Bricker, Dewey snapped:

"I certainly would have taken whomever the convention nominated most happily.

What arguments did he use to persuade Warren?

"None," he replied. "In fact, I knew before he came over that he would."

Warren, however, volunteered that he didn't decide to run until "11:30 or 11:45 a. m."

Told of Dewey's comment, he said that was the Governor's "opinion."

Warren said he changed his repeated "No" to "Yes" because of "the situation as developed here and the statement that Governor Dewey was willing to see me on the ticket."

In addition, he said Dewey's promise to give him something more to do than pound a Senate gavel helped change his opinion of the office.

At Convention Hall, delegates had been waiting since 10:30 a. m. for the word. Traditionally, both party conventions merely rubber stamp the nominee's choice.

They expected to do so again, but when the Arizona delegation announced it would present Stassen's name there was a brief threat of a floor fight. It faded when Minnesota failed to come through with a second. Friends of the big Minnesotan said he would not have said "No" to a draft by the convention, but was unwilling to oppose Governor Warren. His floor managers had instructions not to "lift a finger" to gain the Vice Presidency. If another State had seconded Arizona, Minnesota would have voted for Warren.

Arizona Against Warren

Arizona's move traced from the old feud between California and Arizona for precious Colorado River water rights. Clarence Budington Kelland, Arizona national committeeman, told newsmen:

"This (nomination of Warren) practically defeats the Republican Party in Arizona."

While waiting for "the word" delegates passed the time talking singing and listening to announcements. Now they got on with the business of nominating.

Warren's name was presented by Lamar Tooze of Oregon, who served with the Californian in the Ninety-first (Wild West) Division in World War I.

He told the delegates a Dewey-Warren ticket "will spell certain victory in November."

"He (Warren) has met the many problems that grew out of World War II," said Tooze. "He has a special knowledge of the West and its resources . . . He will meet with the enthusiastic approval of the Nation."

The balcony band blared "California Here I Come." It had trumpted the same theme song only three nights before for Herbert Hoover, the last national ticket nominee to come out of the Far West.

The California delegation, clustered to the left of the podium, went wild, hoisting their State standard, hugging one another and dancing on their chairs. Across the aisle the New York banner was flourished, too. And the galleries, though only half filled for the first time during this convention, enthusiastically joined in the cheering.

Senator Irving M. Ives (N. Y.) seconded the nomination of "this great champion of free government, this man of great achievement." He praised Warren's record as prosecutor, Attorney General and Governor, that reads in spots like Dewey's own.

Governor Griswold of Nevada made the third seconding speech, pledging the "solid" support of the West, and John A. Wilkinson of North Carolina capped them all with a forecast that the Old North State will go Republican in November.

Coast-to-Coast GOP Ticket Is First Since 1856 Election

By D. Harold Oliver
Associated Press Reporter

The Republican Party has picked in Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Earl Warren of California its first East-West, coast-to-coast presidential ticket since its first national convention in 1856.

It established a precedent by giving Dewey a second nomination after having lost his presidential bid in 1944.

In naming two Governors to top its ticket, the party has taken another rare step, although in 1944 it also had an all-Governor slate in Dewey and John W. Bricker, then Governor of Ohio. Bricker is a Senator now.

But along with these "firsts" and "near firsts," the GOP adhered to the time-honored custom of selecting standardbearers who hail from States with big electoral votes.

If Dewey and Warren can show next November the vote-pulling power they demonstrated in their gubernatorial reelection campaigns in 1946, they will have corraled more than one-fourth of the electoral votes required for victory.

New York has 47 and California 25 electoral votes for a total of 72. A total of 266 is needed to win.

Dewey had a plurality of close to 688,000 in beating Senator James M. Mead in New York in 1946 for another term in Albany.

Warren confounded the politicians by taking both major party nominations in California and coasting to a second governorship term at Sacramento.

And, the Republicans have not lost sight of the fact that the Democrats are not any too well unified in New York and California this year.

Win or lose, Dewey and Warren will stay in public office next year. Their present gubernatorial terms do not expire until 1951.

But, back to history:

It was in Philadelphia, too, that the Republicans nominated their first cross-country ticket before the Civil War. They chose John C. Fremont of California and William L. Dayton of New Jersey in a one-day convention. They were defeated by James Buchanan of Pennsylvania and John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky.

Fremont, an old Indian fighter and Mexican War veteran, ran on an antislavery platform.

Delegates from the Far West made the trip East by horseback and stage coach. It took some of them seven weeks to make the journey. Some carried rifles to ward off Indians and mountain lions.

News of the convention was transmitted to Fremont's home State by pony express and by ship around Cape Horn.

Although that first California-New Jersey ticket failed to win, party history starting from the Lincoln-Hamlin (Illinois - Maine) combination in 1860 down to the present day has shown the wisdom of picking men from States with large popular votes and from widely separated regions. There have been few exceptions.

In the 24 conventions of the party there have been 16 East-Midwest tickets linking States like New York and Indiana four times, Ohio and New York six times, Illinois and Maine, Ohio and Massachusetts and so on.

Of these 16 East-Midwest tickets, 11 won in November.

Storm Gives Way to Rainbow As Dewey Vote Is Assured

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 25.—Governor Dewey sped to the convention hadd to accept his nomination literally with a "Rainbow Round His Shoulder."

As the official car proceeded to the hall the terrific thunder storm that took place while the final roll call was going on, gave way to a large rainbow in the west.

The seers have been at work interpreting this omen.

"Rainbow at night, sailor's delight," the optimists say. The gloomier crystal gazers are trying to find a warning about the "pot of gold" that isn't at the rainbow's end.

When former Gov. Harold Stassen moved to make Dewey's election unanimous, the workers in his headquarters heard his words come over the radio in stunned surprise. Some of them just quietly picked up and left the headquarters and did not come back. Most of them lingered on to give him a rousing welcome when he paid them a goodby visit.

Some of the typographical errors made by harried correspondents produced copy prophetically true. One reporter sent out a story on the day of the presidential nomination referring to Senator Knowland of California as Governor Warren's "floor leader."

Some of the campaign banners read rather oddly the day after nominations are over.

Just inside the door of Governor Stassen's dismantled headquarters in the Bilvue-Stratford lies a great placard reading:

"Veteran delegates cordially invited to relax." Another placard gravely announces: "Harold E. Stassen will appear today."

Convention voice was the day's epidemic disease. Gravelly growls were in vogue as the inhabitants fell back into conversing in something lower than a yell of sufficient volume to drown out the competing noise of the convention hubbub.

Gov. Warren's Speech Accepting Nomination

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 25 (U.P.).—Following is the text of Gov. Earl Warren's extemporaneous speech accepting the Republican Vice Presidential nomination:

MR. CHAIRMAN, delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention, and fellow Americans. For the first time in my life I know what it feels like to get hit by a streetcar. You know, yesterday I received something of a jolt through the balloting of this convention, but I had no idea, I assure you, that there was any such shock as this awaiting me today, and before I forget it, and before you change your mind, I want to say that I accept the nomination.

I accept the nomination for the Vice Presidency of the United States. Now the reason I am so quick to say that is because I have not yet recovered my breath, let alone my thoughts; and if I let it go any longer I am afraid that I would even forget to say that.

I want to say to you, ladies and gentlemen, in all humility that I am more grateful to you than you know for the confidence that you have shown me in giving me this great honor. I want you to know that I feel that you have honored me far beyond my just deserts. I want to say to you very simply that I look forward to the closer association that I will have with our great standard-bearer, my longtime friend and colleague, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

I WANT to say to you, my Republican friends, that I will join with him this summer and this fall in making a great crusade throughout this country for the return of our Government to Republican principles, and then I pledge to you that if the people place their confidence in us, as I believe they will, that during the next four years I will give to him every bit of loyalty and help in my make-up. I will work with him to make this Government of ours responsive to the people at all times. I will work with him to make it a humane government, a fair government, and an efficient government, and above all, a government of integrity, from top to bottom!

I want to say to my old friend, Chairman Joe Martin, who presides over these conventions of ours with such great skill and fairness, that when the next Congress comes along he will not have to fight the bureaus of the government for the facts upon which the Congress of the United States can base helpful legislation for the people of this country.

We will make those facts available to them, whether they help or whether they hurt, realizing that it is only by frankness and honesty and fair dealing that these great fundamental problems of the American people can be solved for their benefit, and I think I can say to you ladies and gentlemen under the circumstances that the Eightieth Congress has made remarkable progress. No Congress can make progress unless it has the cooperation of the Administrative departments.

WE PLEDGE to the Congress that will come into being next January every bit of helpfulness that the executive department of this Government can give to it.

Now ladies and gentlemen, I know that under these circumstances, catapulted, as I htave been, onto this platform, after such a sudden decision made by you, that you do not expect me to have a speech, and, after all, I think you have heard enough speeches for this convention, have you not, good as they have been, but I do want to tell you in all sincerity that I appreciate the great honor that you have shown me, and I pledge you that I will serve the people of our country faithfully every day of the Administration which I am sure will come into being next January.

On behalf of my dear wife, who is with me today, and who has sustained me and helped me in all of these long and difficult years that I have been in the public service, and on behalf of my daughters, whom you, also, have pleased beyond expression today, I pledge you that I will give the very best that I have and I will give to our great leader, Thomas E. Dewey, every bit of loyalty that is in my make-up.

Coast Wants Job Built Up to Warren

By Alexander F. Jones
Post Reporter

San Francisco, Calif., June 25.—California is proud to have its big, smiling, two-fisted Governor Earl Warren as the Vice Presidential nominee on the Republican ticket, but it insists that the job has got to be made big enough to fit the man.

California has come to feel that Earl Warren is big enough for any job and wants his talents used to the fullest extent, so long as they stand a pretty good chance of losing his services out here.

Warren has made an exceptional record in this State, both as attorney general and as governor. He has not won every time he has started, but in al his fights for better government, better roads, better health insurance, and all the other progressive measures he has stood for, he has won the respect and admiration of all political factions. So much so that in 1946 he was nominated for governor by both the Republicans and Democrats.

Leading GOP Progressive

Politically, Governor Warren is as progressive as any Republican leader in the country. As Paul Smith, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, put it, "His nomination is the coup de grace to reactionary isolationism in the GOP."

Since he has been governor he has:

1. Fought for a great highway improvement program in a 10-year plan to be financed by a 3-cent gasoline tax. He finally got half of it—a 1½ cent tax.
2. Equalized State reconstruction support of elementary school districts to provide equal opportunities for all children.
3. Reorganized California penal system for the first time since 1879.
4. Provided a hospital "within an hour" of every California resident. Obtained legislation providing for State-Federal-local financing of hospitals.
5. Overhauled California's unemployment insurance system, with an increasing spread of benefits.
6. Raised old-age pensions.
7. Reorganized handling of juveniles, centralizing all activity under California youth authority, putting this State far ahead of other States and winning the cooperation of every cop and probation officer.

Only Partial List

This is only a partial list. Warren has shown on occasion that he is perfectly willing to slug it out with the "big interests," but he always seems to keep the good will of all factions.

He has that thing called personality and California has complete faith in his integrity and honesty.

The viewpoint out here is that Warren can contribute a great deal more to the Dewey administration, if the New York governor is elected President, than by presiding over the Senate.

Governor Warren has a family of which all California is proud. It consists of Mrs. Warren, who was a young widow with a son, James, when they were married in 1925; Virginia, known as "Gia," 13; Earl, jr., "Juju," 18; Dorothy, 16; Nina Elizabeth (Honey Bear), 14, and Robert, 13.

Norwegian Extraction

Warren is of Norwegian extraction. His grandfather, Halvar Varran came to the United States and settled in Iowa, where he anglicized his name. The Governor was born in Los Angeles.

He is a big man, 6 feet 1 inch and weighs 215 pounds. He wears well tailored blue or grey suits and is fond of flashy ties. He has a booming laugh and a handshoke that is on the bone-crusher side. He has had to work for everything he got. He has been a newsboy, a call boy for the Southern Pacific Railroad, a farm hand, and a bum musician. He worked his way through the University of California, largely, and was better known for his activities on the campus than as a student.

The nomination of Governor Warren for second place on the Republican ticket has already nullified President Truman's trip out here, in the opinion of partisans here. They feel that it is a certainty that Warren will not only carry California for the Republicans, but will be a great influence on the outcome of the November balloting in Oregon, Washington and other Western States.

An MP at the Convention Hall can tell his grandchilden another "hand that shook the hand" story. As he left the Convention Hall, backstage, after his acceptance speech, Dewey passed through lines of police. In the midst of them stood one guard in Army uniform with an MP arm band. The Governor stopped abruptly and shook his hand before passing out of the hall.

Taber Predicts Dewey Backing on Aid Polity

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP).—Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee said today he expects there will be little difference in his and Governor Dewey's views on funds for foreign aid.

Appearing at the Republican presidential nominee's headquarters, Taber was asked if he expected differences would arise between the two.

Darby in Line For GOP Job committee on arrangements for this convention; Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and former Senator John Danaher of Connecticut.

There are several reasons why Darby is considered a probable choice.

He has been a longtime Dewey man and is credited with having swung the majority of Kansas votes to Dewey over the opposition of Alfred M. Landon, 1936 GOP standard-bearer.

Geographically Perfect

As chairman of the Darby Steel Co. of Kansas City, Kans., Darby can afford to take the job. He is independently wealthy.

Moreover, Darby is a veteran member of the National Committee, an extremely good mixer and personally popular.

Geographically, he is perfect, coming from the Midwest with the two party nominees representing both coasts.

It is known that the Dewey forces, although they say they promised Halleck nothing for Indiana support, would like to heal any wounds caused by Indiana's disappointment in not having a favorite son selected for the Vice Presidency.

Halleck, however, is not wealthy, and the last GOP National Committee chairman who was paid was John D. Hamilton, in whose Locust st. apartment the stop-Dewey forces held their caucuses.

Halleck was narrowly nosed out of the chairmanship at the last election by Reece.

Technically the election of the new chairman will be held here tomorrow. The National Committee meets at 11 a. m. In practice, however, the presidential nominee has much to say about the selection of the chairman and Dewey spokesmen said that the New York Governor intends to follow his usual practice of calling huddles to determine the best move.

Hallanan 'Not Approached'

The name of Hallanan, a strong Taft supporter, has been widely mentioned in Philadelphia papers as a likely choice. He has strong support in Pennsylvania.

Hallanan, however, told The Washington Post that there was not one "line of truth" in stories mentioning him for the job. It had never been mentioned to him, Hallanan declared, and he added that so far as he knew he was not even being considered for the job.

Meanwhile a proposed change in the make-up of the National Committee has been defeated here in convention.

The rules committee of the National Committee had proposed that the assistant chairman, who must be a woman, could be selected only from within the ranks of the National Committee.

There was quite a flurry in the dovecotes over this with many Republican women claiming it narrowed the field too much.

The rules committee of the convention defeated the proposal, however. The post, like all others, is to be filled by the national chairman, with the consent of the National Committee.

The new national committee is made up of the following:

Alabama—B. L. Noojin, Mrs. Percy M. Pitts.
Arizona—Clarence Budington Kelland, Mrs. Margaret Rockwell.
Arkansas—Wallace Townsend, Mrs. A. C. Remmel.
California—McIntyre Faries, Mrs. Jessie Williamson.

MRS. EARL WARREN
"I'll always be happy wherever he is"

Mrs. Warren Cries as Husband Is Nominated Vice President

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 25 (AP).—Mrs. Nina Elizabeth Warren, her eyes filled with tears, sat in the balcony today and heard her husband nominated for Vice President of the United States.

How do you feel about it, Mrs. Warren?

"All I can say is—I'll always be happy wherever he is—to be with him, whatever he wants," she said.

Her three blonde daughters, Virginia, 19; Dorothy, 17, and Nina, 14, sat with her, solemn-eyed and awed, as the Republican convention whooped its approval of their father, California Gov. Earl Warren, to run for Vice President.

They were perched in the same lofty balcony seats from which they had witnessed the other sessions of the convention.

They stood and bowed their heads when today's opening prayer was offered. By that time the word was already spreading that Warren had been chosen by Thomas E. Dewey as his running mate.

"Bless him," said the preacher, meaning Dewey, "and the man whom we shall choose to stand by his side. Bless them and their families . . ."

Mrs. Warren and the girls wept silently.

Does Mrs. Warren like Washington?

"I've only been there for short visits. I really don't know much about the East. I've lived in California since I was 3 years old."

When it was announced that Senator Irving Ives would second Warren's nomination, Mrs. Warren nodded to her daughters and said in a low tone, "That's New York."

It was like saying, "It's true. They've chosen him as the candidate."

When a reporter began asking questions Mrs. Warren said with a smile:

"Don't ask me anything political."

She said she had been getting her information about the day's developments "right here." She hadn't seen her husband yet.

Later, when Governor Warren arrived to accept the nomination, Mrs. Warren and the girls went on the platform with him and smiled proudly as the crowd cheered the family group.

The Warrens have three sons, too, but they are in California. They are Jim, 28, Earl, jr., 18, and Bobby, 13.

"Frances Dewey revealed today what her first reaction was when her husband was nominated for President.

It was "oh, dear!"

"Of course I'm proud of my husband," she said at her first post-nomination news conference. "But it gives one a great sense of responsibility."

The conference also developed that:

1. She hopes she and her husband can have a vacation soon at their Pawling, N. Y., farm.
2. She probably will travel with the Governor on his campaign trip—"I always have."
3. She weighs 120 pounds, usually wears a size 14 dress and doesn't worry about her weight.

Mrs. Dewey had a cold and looked tired. She wore the black faille suit which she had on all day yesterday, a pink and black figured blouse, violet colored straw hat and pearls.

"Yes, I slept well last night," she said, "but it wasn't long enough."

When political questions were brought up, she leaned forward in her chair and firmly set everyone right.

"I don't answer political questions publicly," she said. "I gave up my own career when I married, and I kept on with marriage from there."

Mrs. Dewey was a professional singer until she married in 1928.

She was asked how she'd like having Secret Service men around all the time.

"I'll let you know when I've had the experience," she said with a smile. A plainclothes man, a member of the New York State troopers, lounged close by her, looking like an interested spectator.

Does she think the fact she was born in Texas would help her husband pick up a big Southern vote?

"Well, you saw what Texas did in the convention." (Voted for Taft at the outset.)

Mrs. Dewey said she talked with her parents in Sapulpa, Okla., by telephone last night.

Asked if she had any doubt about the outcome of the November election, she said:

Congress Call Is Opposed

dency in 1944 early in September. Hagerty said this did not indicate anything about the plans for this year.

On national policy Governor Dewey praised the record of the Eightieth Congress, and roundly denounced the Democratic Administration.

He said the Republican-controlled Congress had done a "most remarkable" job. He cited reduction of taxes and pursuit of a "realistic" foreign policy as major congressional accomplishments.

His blast at the Administration of President Truman came in answer to a question about American policy on aid to China. He said the Administration had been "niggardly, faltering, inconsistent and blundering to the point of tragedy." He said he would do everything possible as President to develop a "realistic" program of material aid to stem communism in China. With such a program, he said, "we'd be well along the way to preservation of a free China."

He was asked, "Do you think you can handle Joe Stalin?" His reply called for a return to conducting of foreign relations through organized diplomatic channels which he said had proved more successful than "personal diplomacy."

That, he said, did not mean he would decline a personal meeting with Stalin.

Governor Dewey said that as President he would want a close-working arrangement with Congress. As Governor of New York, he said he had made a practice of meeting once a week with legislative leaders. Normally the conferences are held Sunday night, and break up about 2 a. m., he said. Everybody comes with their problems, and Dewey brings in his own list of things to discuss and "it's every man for himself," he said.

"Finally, when we have achieved unanimity, we have a program. Usually I try not to influence discussion too much, unless I feel a serious mistake is being made."

"I hope our Government will be a team in January, and we'll confer on all major issues," he said.

Governor Dewey gave a brief play-by-play account of his own activities from the time he sat down near a radio to hear the crucial third ballot that gave him the nomination.

He said he had known it was "possible" that Senator John W. Bricker (Ohio) would go onto the convention platform to announce the release to Dewey of the delegates who were backing Senator Robert A. Taft (Ohio) for the nomination.

But, he said, he did not know it for a fact until he heard Senator Bricker on the radio. "It was one of the most moving experiences of my life," said Dewey. He added that Bricker's words were "beautiful" and that he would "always appreciate" them.

He said he had not known in advance either that candidate Harold E. Stassen would take the platform to speak for him.

Shortly before 5 p. m. today Stassen visited Dewey in the latter's suite at the Bellevue-Stratford. Stassen came out and told reporters he had given Dewey assurance of active help in the campaign, but that he did not expect to take an active part in the next administration.

Dewey also disclosed that shortly before the nomination he had received last-minute notice of support from Gov. Earl Warren of California, now the vice presidential nominee. Dewey said Governor Warren called him to say he had written Senator William Knowland (R., Calif.) his floor leader, that if all other contenders opposing Dewey did not come out for Warren, he was requesting the California delegates to vote for Dewey.

Dewey said he had also heard rumors at the end of the second ballot, that brought him within 33 votes of the nomination, that Connecticut's delegates were ready to back him.

From the time he returned to his hotel after accepting the nomination, Dewey was in continuous conference until 6 a. m. He then went to bed for two hours' sleep. He said he was awakened by the noise of the adjoining conference room being cleaned up. Conferences resumed and ran through the morning. About 2 p. m. Governor Warren entered Dewey's room after accepting the vice presidential nomination. They posed for pictures before holding separate press conferences.

Among Dewey's late afternoon visitors were Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, and former Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential candidate in 1936.

Said Driscoll: "We have a grand ticket; I'll actively support it and participate in the work of the campaign."

Said Landon: "It's a splendid ticket, and I'll do everything I can to help it."

Candidates Dewey and Warren and their families posed together for pictures in the Dewey suite about 6 p. m.

Thomas E. Dewey, although more mature, has changed little in appearance since he was the racket-busting District Attorney of New York (left). He is shown (center) as he looked when first nominated for the Presidency by the GOP at Chicago four years ago and as he appeared when nominated Thursday night (right)

Dewey Ticket Held Truman Aid in South

Representative Laurie Battle (D., Ala.) said yesterday that President Truman "seems definitely encouraged about the whole political situation because of the Republican nomination" of Dewey.

Emerging from a conference with the President, Battle told newsmen Mr. Truman expects the South to stick with him as a result of the GOP action.

"I think," Battle added, "that President Truman certainly will have a better chance with the South now that Dewey is nominated than he would have had if Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) had been named."

Earlier Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.) quoted President Truman as saying the Republican National Convention has shown that "conservative interests" are in control of that party.

Officially, Mr. Truman has maintained silence about the GOP convention.

Murray said he also got the "inference" from Mr. Truman that the Republican platform was "nothing but a reiteration of the promises they failed to carry out in the past."

Democratic National Chairman Senator J. Howard McGrath said the Republican Party's choice of a Dewey-Warren ticket shows that the GOP is trying to "run away" from its record in the Eightieth Congress.

He said the Republicans have decided to "lock up the Tafts and Martins and Hallecks and Brickers like so many skeletons in a closet until after the election."

Henry A. Wallace, third party presidential candidate, said the Republicans "performed a major service" to his cause by nominating a man committed to the "cold war" foreign policy which Wallace opposes.

Paul F. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee, said, "We've licked him before and we will do it again."

House Democratic Leader Representative John W. McCormack declared that "Governor Dewey is politically vulnerable and with the weak Republican platform and the high cost of living as the paramount issue we can hurl at the Republicans, we can start out with our chances of victory most favorable."

McCormack said the "strongest candidate the Republicans could have nominated would have been Senator Vandenberg."

Wallace Hits 'Tin Gods' as Men's Judges

Henry A. Wallace said last night that the "controlling elements" of the Republican and Democratic parties "are the greatest enemies of a free America."

Wallace spoke at a $6.50-a-plate dinner at the Statler Hotel, sponsored by the Washington Committee for Wallace.

In a prepared address, he said the "most paralyzing weapon" of these controlling elements is the word "subversive."

"Anybody who wants to change anything today can be labeled subversive with impunity by the false tin gods who have assumed for themselves the right to sit in judgment on the thoughts of America's citizens," he said.

Topsy—Turvy Morality

He described as a "topsy-turvy morality" one in which:

1. Representative John Rankin (D., Miss.) is a "member of a committee investigating the loyalty of decent citizens."

2. William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador to Russia, and George Earle, one-time Governor of Pennsylvania, "can demand that we drop atom bombs on Russia with no fear of an FBI investigation."

"Like the Nazi leader who boasted that he reached for his gun when he heard the word 'culture,' our American gauleiters are whipped into frenzies by ideas of peace, equality and brotherhood," Wallace said.

The third-party candidate found that Washington has changed since the "vigorous, progressive days of the New Deal."

"Things have retrogressed so far that if you stick a pin into a map of Washington, you can hardly avoid stabbing a military man or an alumnus—a loyal, devoted alumnus—of Wall Street."

Charges Double Talk

Wallace said it was "a safe bet that Mr. Truman will be right 50 per cent of the time in what he says."

"He has spoken on both sides of just about everything," he added.

"We can now say of President Truman's civil rights message that the views in the message 'are not necessarily those of the sponsor.' We can go no further. We can say positively that they are not the views of Mr. Truman.

"While his civil rights message stated that the Secretary of the Army had been instructed to get rid of segregation in the armed forces, Mr. Truman did nothing when Mr. Royall (Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall) said that if he had to carry out such orders he would resign from the Cabinet."

'Partnership' For Warren

his nomination by acclamation for Vice President, he told Mr. Dewey how he felt about it. Governor Dewey practically promised him Cabinet status. Later Warren told reporters he thought one of the "great weaknesses" in our system is the fact that the Vice President has so little to do.

"If he could have more administrative duties, the public would be much better served," he added, saying he would be "very happy" if Governor Dewey could do anything about it.

Governor Dewey told an earlier press conference he could and would do something about it. He said he wanted to make it possible to take advantage of Governor Warren's "colossal administrative talents."

It involved, he said, changing things around so the vice president wouldn't have to devote his full time to presiding over the Senate.

"Would he serve as a member of the cabinet?" a reporter asked.

"The answer is definitely 'yes'," Dewey replied.

The reporter asked how he could assign him administrative duties (without legislation). Dewey said some way can be found to use his "executive talent, his ability to work with other people, his fine character and capacity for leadership," in the public service.

It was noted, however, that neither Warren nor Dewey said anything about increasing the Senate authority of the vice president. The Senate, jealous of its right to make its own rules, has a habit of "hazing" vice presidents who lay down the law.

Former Vice President Charles G. Dawes once tried to bolster Senate gavel powers. None have attempted it since.

The Dewey-Warren idea is to make an assistant executive and administrator out of the vice president, not a Senate czar.

D. C. Democrats Being Urged To Write in Eisenhower Name

A drive was launched here yesterday to force the presentation of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's name before the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia next month.

Local Veterans-for-Eisenhower sent a sound truck around the city urging all District Democrats to show up for the local primaries Monday and write in Ike's name as the District's choice for the nomination.

Should the write-in campaign be successful, General Eisenhower's name is sure to be presented to the National Convention backed by the District votes.

Thus the voteless District Democrats might set off an Eisenhower boom.

Meanwhile, the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action yesterday plumped hard among its "members and friends" to turn out for the primary Monday and write in a candidate other than President Truman.

The ADA made no specific recommendation for a write-in candidate, but it is generally known among "members and friends" of ADA that this right-wing liberal group would be happy to see Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas or General Eisenhower named.

Polling places for the Democratic primary Monday will be open from 2 to 8 p. m. They will be at the Willard Hotel; Pythian Temple, Ninth st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.; 1352 U st. nw.; 141 E st. se.; 826 Bladensburg rd. ne.; 409 Seventh st. se., and 5323 East Capitol st.

Egypt Attack Perils Truce in Palestine

Tel Aviv, June 25 (NYHT)—The United Nations truce in Palestine continued in critical uncertainty tonight as the result of an Egyptian air attack on a United Nations observation plane piloted by an American Army officer.

The Egyptian invasion force also defied an order of Count Folke Bernadotte, chief mediator, to permit Jewish food convoys in the Negev, and the violation was so blatant that the truce supervisory commission gave the Israeli government freedom "to act as they think fit" to get the envoy through.

[The United Press said Bernadotte notified the U. N. tonight that Egypt had broken the "spirit and letter" of the Holy Land truce agreement in firing on an unarmed Jewish food convoy which was proceeding under U. N. supervision.

[The mediator said he had demanded a full explanation. Bernadotte told the Security Council he regarded the attack as a "serious incident."]

The Israel Foreign Office indicated its army would take punitive action against the Egyptians, whose armored column is concentrated on Palestine's southern coast between Isdud and Majdal. The government also ordered a resumption of the blackout in Tel Aviv, apparently fearing Egyptian air attacks.

After releasing 70 out of 76 Irgun Zvai Leumi prisoners in Tel Aviv and eliminating the threat of internal armed opposition, the government faced a new crisis because of the Egyptian action, which one U. N. observer described as "utterly malicious."

If the Jews attack in the south, as they appear free to do with U. N. approval, the conflict might spread to all fronts and completely erase the truce, which has two weeks to run. If they fail to fight convoys into the Negev, the isolated Jewish settlement, already undersupplied, will be threatened with extinction.

Col. Thorde Bonde, chief of the U. N. supervisory commission, personally witnessed the Egyptian action at Negev. Then he returned to Tel Aviv this afternoon and wrote Moshe Shertok, Israeli Foreign Minister:

"The Egyptians have prevented the convoy. By decision of the mediator (Count Folke Bernadotte) they have therefore broken the truce. Israeli forces are free to act against the Egyptian forces."

The U. N. two-seated Auster observation plane which two Egyptian Spitfires attacked was piloted by Lieut. Col. Michael L. Martin of Bluefield, W. Va. It was hit 15 times by 20 milimeter cannon and machine-gun bullets just after landing within Jewish lines at Kfar Warbueg, northeast of Negba.

[The United Press reported that Premier Mahmoud Fahmy El-Nokrashy Pasha of Egypt said the Egyptian planes fired by mistake, believing the U. N. plane was an Israeli one.]

Colonel Martin, who was not hurt, had come down to refuel after cruising above the Egyptian-held crossroads at Negba, which the Jewish food convoy was slated to pass at 8:15 a. m.

He reported he encountered the two Spitfires, which bore Egyptian markings, when approaching the airstrip and had waved at the pilots.

They followed him down and opened fire as he braked to a halt, he said. His plane was painted white and was plainly marked with U. N. letters in blue on both wings and under the fuselage. They made four separate passes at the grounded craft, firing each time and ripping large holes in the plane. Colonel Martin said there could be no question of mistaking the Auster for a Jewish craft.

Col. Shurm, D. C. Aide, to Attend Command School

Lieut. Col. Vernon A. Shurm, assistant Engineer Commissioner will leave the District government late next month to attend the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Shurm

He will be succeeded July 20 by Col. C. H. Whitesell, jr., who now is taking graduate civil engineering work at Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young announced.

Shurm was presented with a radio-phonograph combination set by District employes at a farewell testimonial party at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

Shurm joined the District engineering staff August 12, 1946, following war service in the India-Burma theater.

Truman Signs DP Bill 'Reluctantly'

President Truman yesterday signed the displaced persons bill to admit 205,000 European war refugees into the United States within the next two years, passed in the closing hours of Congress.

He signed it, he said, "with great reluctance," and added:

"There is a close question whether this bill is better or worse than no bill at all."

If Congress were still in session, the Chief Executive declared, he would veto the measure, and urge one 'fairer and more humane."

"Pattern of Intolerance"

The bill, Mr. Truman said, is "a pattern of discrimination and intolerance wholly inconsistent with the American sense of justice.

"It mocks the American tradition of fair play," he added, and "discriminates in callous fashion against persons of the Jewish faith."

It also, he declared, excludes many Catholics "who deserve admission."

"American of all religious faiths and political beliefs will find it hard to understand, as I do, why the Congress delayed action on this subject until the end of the session, with the result that attempts to improve the bill were frustrated," the President said.

"Eighteen months ago I stated that I did not feel that the United States had done its part in the admission of displaced persons.

Sent Special Message

"Six months later, on July 7, 1947, because the Congress had not yet acted, I sent a special message on the subject.

"I reminded the Congress that we are dealing with a human problem—a world tragedy."

He then related that last January he urged Congress—"to pass suitable legislation at once, so that this Nation may do its share in caring for homeless and suffering refugees of all faiths."

Mr. Truman then described the route of the bill through Congress.

"Through one device or another," he said, "debate on the bill was postponed from the beginning of March until the end of May.

"It was not until the last days of the session that the Senate and House conferees met to put together a compromise."

He Analyzes Bill

This compromise, Mr. Truman said, "consisted largely of combining the worst features of both the House and Senate bills."

A close analysis of the bill, the President said, showed that its good points "can be stated all too briefly." These he said, are:

"At long last, the principle is recognized that displaced persons should be admitted to the United States. Two hundred thousand may be admitted in the next two years, as well as 2000 recent Czech refugees and 3000 orphans."

The bad points he listed are:

"The bill discriminates in callous fashion against displaced persons of the Jewish faith. This brutal fact cannot be obscured by the maze of technicalities in the bill or by the protestations of some of its sponsors.

"The primary device used to discriminate against Jewish displaced persons is the provision restricting eligibility to those displaced persons who entered Germany, Austria or Italy on or before December 22, 1945.

Many Denied Chance

"Most of the Jewish displaced persons who had entered Germany, Austria or Italy by that time have already left; and most of the Jewish displaced persons now in those areas arrived there after December 22, 1945, and hence are denied a chance to come to the United States under this bill.

"By this device more than 90 per cent of the remaining Jewish displaced persons are definitely excluded. Even the eligible 10 per cent are beset by numerous additional restrictions written into the bill."

The President then went on to other features.

The bill, he said, "also excludes many displaced persons of the Catholic faith who deserve admission. Many anti-Communist refugees of Catholic faith fled into the American zones after December 22, 1945, in order to escape persecution in countries dominated by a Communist government. These, too, are barred by the December 22, 1945, dateline.

"It is inexplicable, except on the abhorrent ground of intolerance, that this date should have been chosen instead of April 21, 1947, the date on which General Clay closed the displaced persons camps to further admissions."

Other Features Cited

Other objectionable features in the bill, Mr. Truman pointed out, are:

"Except for orphans, the bill charges the displaced persons admitted to future immigration quotas of their countries of birth, up to 50 per cent of the quota per year.

"Under this system, 50 per cent of some quotas will be mortgaged for generations. This is a most begrudging method of accepting useful and worthy people and will necessarily deprive many others of an opportunity to come to the United States in future years.

"The bill requires that at least 40 per cent of the DPs allowed to enter this country must come from areas which have been annexed by a foreign power. This guarantees a disproportionately high percentage of persons from particular areas."

Other points to which he disagreed include:

1. The bill gives priority to household, construction, garment and clothing workers; to blood relatives of United States citizens or lawfully admitted aliens; and to refugees who bore arms in World War II against the enemies of the United States.

2. To be eligible for admission, a refugee would have to have assurance of a job and housing quarters without displacing a United States citizen.

The bill requires that refugees be screened in Europe as to character and loyalty before being cleared for entry.

$250,000 Hunted Near Crash Scene

Mount Carmel, Pa., June 25 (U.P.).—Authorities were searching today for an air-express package containing a reported $250,000 in small-denomination currency believed jettisoned before the crash of the United Airlines DC-6 near here June 17 in which 43 persons were killed.

An Army helicopter being used in the search made a forced landing this morning. The occupants were not injured.

Discovery of a parcel of spun glass intact some distance from the crash scene gave strength to the theory that part of the cargo was dropped from the four-engine Mainliner to reduce its weight.

A postal authority said the parcel weighed 240 pounds and contained bills in $1, $5 and $10 denominations.

The plane was understood to have been flying at a low altitude for several minutes before it struck a transformer and exploded. It was reported that objects were seen falling from the plane before the crash.

A shipment of 281 diamonds, part of a gems cargo aboard the plane, was recovered at the scene several days ago.

NCPPC Hears Discussion of Area Survey

Members of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission concluded their two-day meeting yesterday with further discussion of the comprehensive plan for the District.

Harland Bartholomew of St. Louis, city planning consultant, and his staff met with the Commission to explain results of their population, transit and thoroughfare studies.

Other aspects of the plan discussed at the meeting included: distribution of government activities throughout the Greater Washington area and the general limits of sections having "obsolete and blighted characteristics" to determine where further redevelopment studies should be made.

The Commission adjourned until July 29. Members meanwhile are to prepare further suggestions for use in the general study, it was said.

Bernadotte to Submit Palestine Peace Plan

Lake Success, N. Y., June 25 (U.P.).—United Nations Mediator Count Folke Bernadotte has completed his initial blueprint for a final peace settlement in Palestine and will lay it before the Arab and Israeli governments soon, it was learned today.

An outline of the plan has been forwarded to U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie.

Authoritative sources said Bernadotte would not demand a "yes or no" answer and was said to be prepared for a refusal by both sides to accept his initial proposals.

Navy Pilot Dies In Crash of New Jet Plane in Bay

A Navy test pilot was killed yesterday when his new-type FJ-1 jet fighter plane crashed into Chesapeake Bay near the air station at Patuxent, Md.

The dead officer was Lieut. Comdr. Thomas N. Ramsay, 29, of Perkinston, Mass., a highly decorated World War II dive bomber pilot shot down in the battle of Midway. He leaves a wife and child.

Last week, another test pilot, Comdr. John Hyland, escaped by parachute when his F2H twin-engined jet plane flying at 600 miles an hour, ran into a buzzard and was wrecked.

Needed: A Sales Tax

The District Commissioners have launched an economy drive to bring down the cost of the local government during the fiscal year 1950. They have warned all department heads that if the total of the preliminary estimates requested by them exceeds anticipated revenue by an appreciable sum it will be necessary to set ceilings in the 1950 estimates for all departments. They also indicate that plans for expansion of present services and inauguration of new ones must be ruled out.

Of course, every effort should be made to eliminate waste and prevent extravagance. But a reduction in District outlays forced by inadequate revenue from taxes is not the kind of economy that enemies of waste and inefficiency applaud. On the contrary, it is much more likely to impair governmental efficiency and deprive the community of services to which it is entitled.

The Commissioners base their economy order on a statement of the Senate Appropriations Committee pointing out that if District expenditures cannot be brought within the limits of revenue another year, it will be necessary to impose increased property taxes to cover part of a deficit that may amount to nine million dollars. The committee added that the District can remain solvent this coming fiscal year only by selling all its securities and obligating 1.6 million dollars of unexpended balances. Incidentally, no provision has been made for wage and salary increases for District employes. Blame for this situation rests with Congress because of its failure to enact sales-tax legislation for the District. It is the hope of this newspaper that the next Congress will repair this omission and provide the District with much-needed new sources of revenue from sales taxation, thus making possible a revision of 1950 spending estimates based on careful consideration of the District's legitimate needs.

Two Way Security

With the release by the Air Force of information about the supersonic plane, the controversy over the premature disclosure that the XS-1 had exceeded the speed of sound ought to be allowed to die. But there will be other important military attainments in this and allied fields. If the national security is to be protected adequately, it is essential to derive certain lessons from the incident just past.

Security on such matters results from cooperation of all the agencies concerned—the defense establishment and the press. That cooperation must be predicated on mutual confidence, including an understanding of why secrecy is necessary. Somewhere along the line that confidence failed in the case of the XS-1, with the result that details about the breaching of the sonic barrier were published before the Air Force felt that the military advantage of that accomplishment had been exploited.

This disclosure would not have been possible without a leak. Apparently the Air Force failed to impress upon its own personnel and the civilians working for it the importance of maintaining secrecy in supersonic research and experimentation. Within the military establishment itself is the first place to batten down the hatches—though in this case speculation about the XS-1 was inevitable because of an earlier rash of publicity about it. Admittedly, however, it is difficult to maintain absolute secrecy on matters of such magnitude as plane tests. This is especially the case when civilian contractors and their employes must of necessity be aware of what is going on.

Air Force Secretary Symington has noted:

> Although military classification does not have the force of law in peacetime outside the military establishment, there are certain obviously justifiable reasons for its observance . . . The premature publication [of] data on experimental aircraft permits other nations to benefit from our research and places them on a parity with us in the practical application of such information. . .

In other words, the mere access to a "scoop" does not justify publication if it places the national security in jeopardy. The public interest is served in two ways: by the withholding of such secret data as would aid potential enemies, and by an unfettered press free to report all information other than that demonstrably bearing on the national security, including information about the defections of the military itself. For good reason there is no peacetime censorship in this country. Thus the preservation of security resolves itself into a question of judgment. For that judgment to be sound, there first must be a meeting of minds as to what constitutes information affecting security and why it is so regarded. Beyond that, the press must have confidence that the cloak of security is not being used to cover up facts which should be public knowledge. The development of such a working relationship between the armed forces and the press is vital to real security and is a responsibility that requires continual implementation in good faith on both sides.

Dewey-Warren Team

Gov. Earl Warren's nomination as Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency strongly underlines two pledges made to the Philadelphia convention by Governor Dewey as head of the ticket. "I come to you," Governor Dewey said in accepting the presidential nomination on Thursday night, "unfettered by a single obligation or promise to any living person, free to join with you in selecting to serve our Nation the finest men and women in the Nation . . ." This denial that any deals had been made to win convention votes would have been difficult to sustain if any one of several politicians of the Martin-Halleck-Allen-Taber stripe prominently mentioned for the vice presidential nomination had been chosen. But the selection of Governor Warren was so clearly based on merit and a common attitude toward domestic and foreign issues that it will be generally regarded as the first manifestation of Mr. Dewey's independence and rejection of straddle.

The second Dewey pledge that came to prompt fulfillment in the Warren nomination was that his Administration, if he should be elected, would be one of teamwork. Apparently the teamwork began shortly after the tumult and the shouting died in the convention hall on Thursday night. Governor Dewey called a conference of Republican leaders and thoroughly canvassed the field of possible candidates for the Vice Presidency. Before the conference broke up unanimous agreement on Governor Warren had been obtained. Of the various candidates discussed, Mr. Warren was one of the few who apparently did not care to be Vice President. The fact that he was drafted after careful deliberation among a large group of Republican leaders certainly augurs well for teamwork in Washington if the Dewey-Warren ticket is elected.

It is typical of Mr. Warren that he accepted the nomination on condition that the Vice Presidency be made a "working job." In California, where he has been in public life for many years without ever having lost an election and where in 1946 he won both the Republican and Democratic nominations, he has been a hard-working Governor. His concern has been for the public welfare; his influence has been wielded in behalf of progressive measures well rooted in common sense. Cooperation in working out the problems of the State has usually taken precedence over partisanship. Genial and well liked personally, a Far Westerner and a vote-getter of exceptional ability, Mr. Warren will doubtless add materially to the strength of the GOP campaign.

Incidentally, Mr. Warren and his large family are facing a real sacrifice in order that he may answer his party's call. As Governor of California, he earns $25,000 a year. If elected to the Vice Presidency, he would receive $20,000. Even with the increase approved two years ago, this salary is belittling to a position that should be second in importance only to that of the President. This newspaper would like to see the Vice President's salary raised to the neighborhood of $35,000 plus an allowance for expenses. At the same time the position needs to be tied in more closely with the work of the executive branch so that the Vice President's talents may be appropriately used and so that he may be prepared to pick up the reins of government in case of need. The Vice President does not need to be a fifth wheel, and Governor Dewey has already given assurance that, if the Dewey-Warren team wins, he will not be.

Justice And The Press

The exercise of press freedom sometimes comes into conflict with the impartial administration of justice. Irresponsible reporting or intemperate editorial comment on criminal cases while they are in progress may influence a judge or jury in such a way as to prevent a fair trial. Courts are properly concerned, therefore, to prevent any interference by the press which would impair the discharge of their delicate functions. It is this concern, obviously, which has led to the preparation of a proposed set of rules by the Standing Committee on Rules and Procedure of the Maryland Court of Appeals governing among other matters the relationship between the courts of Maryland and the press.

The proposed rules would make subject to a charge of contempt in connection with pending criminal cases (1) the making of photographs of the accused without his consent; (2) the making of any photograph, radio or television broadcast in or close to any courtroom while the court is in session; (3) "the issuance by the police or other duly constituted authorities, the State's attorney, counsel for the defense, or any other person having official connection with the case, of any statement relative to the conduct of the accused, statements or admissions made by the accused, or other matter bearing upon the issues to be tried"; (4) "the issuance of any statement or forecast as to the future course of action of either the prosecuting authorities or the defense relative to the conduct of the trial"; (5) "the publication or broadcast of any matter which may prevent a fair trial, improperly influence the court or the jury, or tend in any manner to interfere with the administration of justice."

These are, we think, excessive and inflexible precautions tending dangerously to inhibit essential freedom of the press. Of course, freedom of the press can be justified only insofar as it may fairly be said to serve the public interest; and the public interest is certainly equally in need of an uninhibited and independent judiciary. The balance between the two is not subject to easy definition; it may be doubted, indeed, that any general rule can achieve it. The best test is the test which the Supreme Court of the United States applied to the problem of contempt by publication in the Bridges case, the Pennekamp case and again just a year ago in Craig vs. Harney—whether the conduct of the press in a specific situation actually presented a "clear and present danger" to the administration of justice.

As Judge Sherbow of the Baltimore Supreme bench observed in an admirably restrained and illuminating discussion of the proposed rules Thursday, the Supreme Court has not yet decided just what constitutes a "clear and present danger." And we expect he is quite right when he says that "in dealing with a prisoner on trial the court might view the clear and present danger rule in a light quite different from that where criticism of a judge is involved. But the rules proposed for the Maryland courts would forbid many acts which could not possibly constitute a clear and present danger. They would also forbid publication or broadcasting of much in which the public might have a legitimate concern. Photographing an accused person need not keep him from receiving a fair trial. An interview with his counsel or with the State's attorney need not subvert the administration of justice. It goes without saying that dignity is an indispensable attribute of justice; that cases should be tried in the courts and not in the press; that court officials should manifest a regard for their responsibilities and that the press should exercise its freedom with appropriate self-restraint. But these ends are scarcely to be attained by gag rules or iron curtains.

The nub of the problem is presented in the fifth rule cited above—a generalization which neatly begs the question it purports to resolve. Obviously, "the publication or broadcast of any matter which may prevent a fair trial" entails a contempt of court. Judges are, and always have been, free to cite for contempt on this ground, provided the danger is genuinely a clear and present one. But they may not, according to the Supreme Court, do so on any lesser ground. And indeed they cannot do so without impairing press freedom in a degree quite unnecessary to the judicial freedom they seek to protect.

Perilous Truce

The decision of a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner barring the continuance of union hiring halls as a violation of the Taft-Hartley Act emphasizes the tenuous nature of the truce between shipping operators and the maritime unions. On the East Coast a strike is forbidden by injunction until September 2, and there are temporary restraints against strike action on the Great Lakes and the West Coast. But meanwhile 18 left-wing members of the council of the CIO National Maritime Union have threatened "guerilla" moves defying the court order if the operators attempt to change the hiring hall procedure.

The operators thus face a dilemma, damned if they do and damned if they don't. The ruling of NLRB Examiner Howard Myers outlawing the hiring halls applies only to the Great Lakes, but there is little question that the ban is soundly grounded in the anticlosed shop provision of the Taft-Hartley law and will apply wherever the unions operate such halls. The unions, of course, may be expected to contest the NLRB ruling. But unless it is reversed, their position will be simply that of demanding that the shipping concerns conspire to violate the law.

While legality seems to be on the side of the operators, the merits of the dispute are not so clear-cut. The growth of union-sponsored hiring halls, in which union members are given preference in employment, has on the whole contributed to stability in a notoriously tough and unstable industry. Abuses have entered, but they do not compare with those in the days of "free employment," press gangs and shanghaiing. On the other hand, the operators have had legitimate grievances; the compulsion to take only employes certified by the unions reduced their control over their crews.

The Taft-Hartley law was intended to promote rather than upset labor peace. Here is an instance in which the wisdom of the universal closed-shop ban demands new scrutiny by Congress. Meanwhile, if there is not to be a shipping tieup, one side will have to back down—and it is the union position that appears to be legally untenable. A retreat by the union could be facilitated by a willingness on the part of the operators to grant all legal concessions. The pattern for a compromise already exists in the old joint union-company hiring halls which worked reasonably well until the unions gradually squeezed out management. The anticlosed shop ban could be satisfied by nonpreferential hiring, whereas union security could be provided by requiring that crewmen join the union upon employment. Some such half-way meeting is essential to the interest of both parties, and the need is for ingenuity, not intransigence.

Bombing Russia

The job of the military establishment is to be prepared for all contingencies. That includes, presumably, the development of plans for carrying war to any part of the globe. But there is a vast difference between the preparation of such necessary strategy in secret by the instrumentalities of defense and the sensational splattering of the outlines of such strategy in a magazine, as was done recently by Look under the cover caption of "Air Force Plans for Bombing Russia." Actually the article reveals little information that is not generally known, but the manner in which it is presented is highly objectionable. If the Russians are in fact motivated by an insecurity complex, this sort of jingoism will only serve to justify it and to give validity to the charges of warmongering in the United States.

Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Appropriation Riders

Something certainly should be done, and done quickly to stop the pernicious habit of Congress of hanging an entirely irrelevant rider on a vital bill (such as an appropriation) in order to meet the demands of some insistent faction, determined to obtain, by hook or by crook, its purpose at whatever cost to the welfare of the country. Even worse, at times, it is apparent that personal spite, lobbyist pressure or political expediency is the motivating object.

A case in point is the shameless use of this expedient by which certain Senators are ousting admittedly competent and conscientious officials of the Department of the Interior who were carrying out with courage and success their sworn promise to protect the interests of the people.

"You-All"

It was kind of Mr. Barbee (June 19) to go to so much trouble to illustrate my arguments: first, that "you-all" is a colloquialism, second, that every juxtaposition of "you" and "all" is not a colloquialism. In each example of "you all" he cites, the meaning is "all of you." Northerners frequently use it, as I pointed out in my first letter.

I do not pretend to know Greek, so I have no way of knowing if the only translation of St. Paul's words is "you-all;" but even if the Greeks had a word for it, I am afraid Mr. Barbee and the scholars who helped him missed the point entirely. The question does not concern Greek of the first century but English of the twentieth. I was not criticizing Paul's Greek but Mr. Barbee's use of an English translation of the Greek as authority for "you-all." And I still insist that no one other than a Southerner would read that colloquialism into "It is right for me to feel thus about you all, because I hold you all in my heart . . ."

I believe Mr. Barbee misunderstands me. There is nothing wrong with saying "you all" when one means all. As E. C. (June 20) says, in pointing out the arithmetically correct use of the phrase, "'You all' correctly used means 'all of you' and nothing more or less." My quarrel is with the "you-all" that means less than all.

Southerners, brought up on "you all," used both correctly and incorrectly, do not realize how perplexing their misuse of the phase can often be. I doubt they even really hear it. That is why, when they see an accurate quote of it in print, they falsely and angrily accuse the writer of "caricatures on the Southern people."

I don't care how often Southerners say "you-all" when they don't mean all; but when they try to defend a colloquialism with unsound arguments, they should be willing to accept rebuttal in the spirit in which it is meant and not imply that the South has been attacked, nor bring in such extraneous matters as the debatable "Southern hospitality."

Anti-Fascist Committee

The Supreme Court's rejection of the appeal of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee is a severe blow to civil liberties. Eleven men and women of the committee now face jail terms for their refusal to act as informers against their members, contributors and sympathizers. The methods of the Un-American Activities Committee, have received a legal OK from the Nation's highest court.

The Washington Post has repeatedly objected to the smear tactics of the Un-American Activities Committee, most recently exemplified in the case of the distinguished Dr. Condon. If the JARC had complied with the Un-American Activities Committee's demands for its records, additional thousands would have been exposed to smearing and character defamation.

Technically the offense of the JARC was a refusal to accede to an order of a congressional committee. But this legal label cannot conceal the fact that the true reason for their sentence—and the reason they were haled before the committee in the first place—was their work in behalf of the gallant fighters for Loyalist Spain.

It is no crime to extend succor to the early victims of fascism, but a high and noble task. And the prosecution of the JARC by the Un-American Activities Committee is clearly a political prosecution.

The Supreme Court has held itself out as the guardian of civil liberties. It has repeatedly righted the wrongs of minority religious and racial groups. Similar basic issues in the field of political freedom are presented by the appeal of the JARC. The Supreme Court should recognize their importance and hear the appeal.

Neighborly Love

Mr. Wendell Brooks Phillips, in his letter of June 20, couched a monumental truth: that the true citizen of a democratic society loves his neighbor as himself. The solution of all of our problems—economic, racial, international—lies in that omnipotent practice. It is as simple as that.

Furthermore, Mr. Phillips has joined himself to that increasing and courageous group who believe with Emerson (as I recall it):

"They are not free who will not speak
For the fallen and the weak.
They are not free who dare not be
In the right with two or three."

Courtesy To Foreigners

I am the foreign born wife of an officer in the U. S. Foreign Service who has devoted his life to the service of his country abroad.

In Europe, before the war I had the usual complement of servants to assist me with my marketing, housekeeping and entertaining. Now, after my several years of residence in America I have become accustomed to doing my own catering in the neighborhood markets.

Recently while awaiting my turn in the typical Saturday morning queue at the local chain store, I had to witness a most disgusting display of human behavior. Upon turning aside for a moment, the women behind me in line thrust herself into my place in the queue and slammed her single purchase down on the cashier's counter. I politely reminded her in my best English, now only slightly colored by European accent, "Madame, I believe I was first in line." This brought forth an explosive emotional outburst from her addressed to the cashier.

"This is from the stink of the ocean. We feed them and they think they can order us around."

I ask again is this typical of the American's use of freedom of speech? Are the native Washingtonians so opinionated every time they are addressed by one with a foreign accent? Is this not the "point of diminishing returns" in freedom of speech?

U. N. Force

How come in the June 18 Washington Post a bare 4 inches at the bottom of page 1 is allotted to U. N.'s sending of 50 uniformed representatives to Palestine, the first uniformed U. N. force of any kind assigned to assist in the world organization's peace projects abroad?

In this connection an editorial comment on Britain's acceptance of Dutch sovereignty over the Republic of Indonesia (story, p. 17) would be interesting.

Defense Of Fairmac

How about bringing both sides of the tenant-Fairmac Corp. feud to light instead of making Fairmac look like on ogre time and again? I have lived in Fairlington since it was first built and it seems to me that too much has been written on the petty complaints of the tenants and nothing on behalf of management.

It is true that there is perhaps much to be desired in Fairlington, but wouldn't that be true in any large development where there are so many people to please? We have all the essentials here, clean airy apartments, with ample heat, hot water and garbage disposal; in short, we have a very livable place at a very moderate cost, and I say this based on comparable housing elsewhere in the area, and in full consideration that some of the rents have been raised.

The latest furore seems to have arisen from the cutting of flowers by Fairmac. Several months ago, well before the planting season, each tenant received a notice that there were to be only limited flowers and no vegetables this year. Having been forwarned, why should tenants gripe when a follow-up was made with a sickle?

Perhaps the actual cutting was not handled very diplomatically, but doesn't modern management even have the right to set such a simple policy as landscaping? Has anyone brought to light the fact that perhaps the reason Fairmac objects to flowers is that too often they have been planted with enthusiasm and left to wither and become unsightly with apathy on the part of the would-be gardeners.

Fairmac is making an honest effort to improve appearances here. Never has the grass been better cut, and for the first time in four years our courtyard is green with new sod instead of being brown and parched one week and a veritable morass the next.

Defense Homes Corporation did a creditable job during wartime, but Fairmac, with the increase in good labor, has kept our hallways and cellars cleaner than before, and under contract with an exterminator the famous, much publicized cockroaches are under control at last, with none of the previous muss and fuss to the tenant.

As to garbage disposal, it is true that conditions were not ideal during the strike, but garbage was collected within reason, and the fact that insanitary conditions did exist is certainly as much the fault of tenants as of management. With just a little care on the part of the tenants, the conditions tenants found so unbearable would have been greatly alleviated.

If all essential services are maintained, and they are, then why is the sale of Fairlington any more of a concern of Virginia's than of any other taxpaying citizen in the United States? Why is this subject being used as a further smear campaign of tenants against management?

If Fairmac is unreasonable in its policies, when housing becomes available and there is a little healthy competition, Fairmac obviously will be the loser. Meanwhile, it has a big job on its hands and its policies should be allowed to stand unhampered as long as all essential services are satisfactory. After all, Fairlington is a business venture now and no one is living there under compulsory enslavement.

Gadget Casts A Shadow

By Malvina Lindsay

Television Omens

ONE QUESTION raised but not answered at the Republican National Convention was whether or not the American people will stay home more during the next decade. The boost given television at the convention suggests that the inventions of science may change the social scene of the 1950s as they did that of the 1920s. But just how is the enigma.

The motor car, which came into mass popularity during the boom decade, is charged with turning the home into a hotel. Will television start a return to the fireside? The motor car also has been widely charged with abetting the escapades of flaming youth. Will television restore the family circle, or at least promote parlor entertaining?

Another question raised at Philadelphia concerns the future of mass assemblages. Will attendance at political conventions, ball games, prize fights, theaters, churches, be cut down once people can see and listen to these events more comfortably in their living rooms? Which boast will outdo the other: "I was there," or "I saw it televised"?

IT SEEMS likely, in view of the increasing majority of the population, and the resultant fondness for easy chairs, that many types of entertainment and assemblage will suffer a loss of patrons in the flesh. But gatherings in which crowds are bound by emotional or ideological ties will still get out the gang. Cities that invite national party conventions need not worry over television competition.

One of the biggest satisfactions that convention-goers get is feeling a part of a powerful tribe or clan. In their communities they may stand more or less alone politically or with minority party groups. They may have neighbors or relatives of opposite political faith who argue with them and even raise questions in their minds. But in a convention mob they feel a part of a great, invincible force. They are sure of their righteousness, sure of their power. They can let out their emotions, since everyone else is doing it. They can get a revitalized faith as at a church revival meeting and go home ready to conquer the world for their party and their candidates. This they cannot get from a television screen.

But television is likely to speed one development in political life that the press and radio have been promoting in recent years. That is the putting of party leaders and proceedings into a goldfish bowl. With the Nation looking as well as listening in on the conduct of party conventions and of other governmental affairs, and with public curiosity whetted by the experience, it is becoming increasingly difficult for little groups of men to keep their deals wrapped in secrecy. Also national Government activities, including those of Congress, are likely eventually to come visibly and audibly into the homes of a widening reach of citizens.

SOME convention delegates at Philadelphia have looked hopefully at the glass television booths and powerful lights dominating the convention hall and wondered if this new gadget would not help their party and the Nation to sidetrack another depression. At the Democratic convention of 1924 radio was started on its way—partly through the excited accents of Graham McNamee—to become one of the builders of the prosperity of the boom years. Sales of radios and parts had amounted to 60 million dollars in 1922. By 1929 they reached around 843 millions.

Television sets, of course, cost more now than radio sets did then. But also in the 1920s a more costly mechanical product, the motor car, was coming into mass consumption. By 1929 about four times as many passenger cars were in operation as in 1919. So avid was the populace for these that, according to surveys, families got them in preference to bathtubs. And radios were bought by people who needed beds and chairs.

However, the spending mood was on the way up then, and the cost of living was not such a competitor of the gadget. Television starts its rise in more cautious times and must compete with inflated food bills. Yet if people want sets badly enough they will get them. The question is: Are this year's party conventions good enough shows to put real momentum into a television craze?

Arlington School Shift

I wish to thank The Washington Post for its splendid job of reporting the Arlington County School Board meeting on June 22. The reporter writing the article was alert enough to notice that the board, while claiming on the one hand that the four people involved had not been demoted but merely unassigned, also announced appointments of two people to fill positions paralleling those of Miss Smith and Miss Gravatte.

What was not brought out at the meeting, which, of course, The Washington Post could not know, is the fact that Miss Smith's and Miss Gravatte's same positions were filled and the new employes given greatly increased salaries over those paid to Miss Gravatte and Miss Smith.

The implication was made by the board that inasmuch as the people involved had "no substantial" reduction in pay, there was no cause for complaint. Everybody knows that teachers are so highly paid that they work only for the amount of salary involved and not because they feel they are doing a job that they love and one that is of primary importance to our country.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Outcome

PHILADELPHIA. — Until the nomination of Governor Dewey, the course of this convention was, I think, determined by the factional feud between the Dewey and the Stassen forces. The two candidates quarreled many months ago, and in the Oregon primary their quarrel became irreconcilable. Yet as a matter of fact they were natural allies. Within the limits of Republican philosophy both were and are progressives in domestic and foreign affairs. By contrast with Taft, and of course with Bricker, Martin, Halleck, Green, Taber there is no question that both are progressives.

LIPPMANN

Whatever the cause of their quarrel, it was not that they differed seriously on principles and measures. But because they were quarreling, it was made to appear as if Stassen was the leader of the progressives and that Dewey was the reactionary who had at all costs to be stopped. This false alignment divided the progressive forces, and drove both Dewey and Stassen to seek unnatural alliances. That Dewey should have been put in nomination by Senator Martin of Pennsylvania was as unnatural as that Stassen collaborated with Taft.

THE DISUNITY of the progressives meant that the real alternatives to Dewey was not Vandenberg, not Warren, not Stassen, but an outright victory for the old guard. It meant that if the nomination of Taft, or Bricker or Martin was to be prevented, only Dewey could prevent it. But as Dewey did not have the support of the other progressives, notably Stassen but also Warren and also not Vandenberg but Vandenberg's friends, Dewey had to compromise with the old guard.

SENATOR Vandenberg proved to be right in his judgment that the old guard was stronger in the party than his own supporters were willing to believe. But the old guard was stronger than it was entitled to be until Dewey's nomination because the progressive forces were divided by the Stassen-Dewey feud.

There was no way of nominating Vandenberg by organizing a "stop Dewey" movement. For any combination formed to stop Dewey was bound also to stop Vandenberg, Stassen and Warren. The real beneficiaries of a successful stop-Dewey movement could have been only Taft or Bricker or Martin. There was no doubt about this in Taft's mind when he invited Stassen to make a provisional alliance against Dewey. With his usual straight forwardness Taft let it be known that his purpose in forming the alliance was to win the nomination for himself, and failing that to discharge his obligation by giving Bricker a run.

GOVERNOR Dewey is, therefore, entitled to feel that if he had not played highly professional politics to win the nomination, the whole ticket and the next administration would have been captured by the men who control the House of Representatives and have written its dark and reactionary record. As it is, the disunity of the progressives enabled the old guard to hold their ground in the convention until Dewey was nominated. Then the center of power shifted to the progressives and Warren's nomination is the result.

MANIFESTLY, it is now Governor Dewey's task to make himself, in a broad and not in a factional sense, the leader and the spokesman of the modern, the enlightened, and the progressive forces. They have had no abler or more effective executive and practical politicians in this generation. Yet the fact is that they have not wholly accepted Dewey nor has he sought to win them. That may not be only a matter of temperament. But really a consequence of the struggle for the nomination, which Dewey could win only by practical politics, not by an appeal to the people.

DEWEY HAS matured much since 1944, and he has matured well. His acceptance speech, which was in perfect taste, combining confidence with humility and vigor with magnanimity, showed that the party has a candidate and that the country will have a President who is still growing in power and in wisdom.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Dewey And Unity

PHILADELPHIA. — The demonstration churns its way through an atmosphere like that of a steam laundry in which an endless track meet is going on. There is something mechanical about the bobbing faces and the bobbing banners as this odd ceremonial grinds away.

Childs

My memory goes back to another day five months ago. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is sitting in the red and gold Vice Presidential Room just off the Senate floor. He is weary, acutely conscious of the legislative burdens before him in the months to come. He says:

"No, it can't be. It isn't for me. I've got to stay on here in the Senate.

"It's got to be Tom Dewey. That's what I think when I wake up at 3 o'clock in the morning and ponder over these things. We've got to have a team. We've got to end this conflict here in Washington.

"Dewey will be in the White House. John Foster Dulles will be Secretary of State. And I will be here in the Senate where I really belong."

In the interviewing five months Vandenberg from time to time changed this view. But in my opinion it was always in the back of his mind. If the convention had presented the nomination to him on a silver platter, that would have been one thing. Rarely, if ever, do conventions behave in that way, however.

What was in Vandenberg's mind is in the minds of many Americans who have reluctantly come to accept Dewey. They see him as the tough, even ruthless, highly skilled expert who can make the American system of divided powers function effectively.

DEWEY is the supreme manager. He is the managerial revolution in government. It is a new phenomenon in American politics and that is one reason for the reluctance and even the downright aversion that so many feel.

There are great hazards in the managerial revolution. It can be heartless, cruel, soulless. It can ignore the deeper needs of men and women in a time of troubled transition. All these things many people fear in Dewey at the same time that they recognize his tenacious skill and his persistent capacities.

Few men have ever had so great an opportunity. Above all, it is the opportunity for magnanimity; for true breadth of spirit. One of the innumerable wisecracks spread by Dewey's doubters and haters goes:

"He never forgives any slight that he can remember and he never forgets anything."

On the whole, Dewey's career has been remarkably free from searing attack. He has suffered not so much from the bludgeon of political assault as from pricks and prods directed at his person and his character. His stature, or lack of it, his moustache, his unfailing precision and neatness, have been caricatured and ridiculed and it may well be that this form of attack is harder to endure than the frontal assault.

BUT, certainly, now is a time to forget. The country is sorely in need of the kind of unification that can mean decision in Washington.

Dewey's campaign for the Presidency in 1944 had two distinct phases. In the first phase, as he moved down the West Coast in a series of speeches at Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles, it was almost wholly constructive. He outlined the reforms he intended to introduce in Government.

Then beginning with Oklahoma City it abruptly shifted. The candidate launched into an old-fashioned, pot-tossing attack on Roosevelt and the New Deal. The men on the Dewey team explained that shift by saying that they were compelled to denounce and berate in order to get campaign contributions from rich Republicans. They took this tack under pressure of necessity even though they believed it to be a mistake.

This time the Dewey team will be under no such necessity. The odds will be heavily in favor of the GOP candidate. I believe the country would respond instantly to a constructive campaign. So many words have been wasted in this convention flogging the dead past. It may have given the floggers some satisfaction but it did the country no good.

There will be rancor left over for Vandenberg from those who feel he should have made his position unequivocally clear at least a fortnight before the convention. Then such unyielding anti-Deweyites as Governor Duff could have shaped their plans accordingly. But this soon will be forgotten if out of this convention comes a real desire to set the country on the goal of unity.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The New Republicanism

Philadelphia, June 25.—In the long run, the public emergence of a new kind of Republicanism is likely to be considered the most important event of this convention. It was because the Republican Party had already changed greatly, without many people really noticing it, that Thomas E. Dewey and Earl Warren were so quickly chosen as the standardbearers. Dewey and Warren symbolize the final triumph of the modern-minded Republicans, whose very existence has sometimes been obscured by the disproportionate number of men like Representative John Taber in the Republican majority in Congress.

The proof of these conclusions is to be found, curiously enough, in the miscalculation in the strategy of the small political underground that proposed to draft Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg for the Presidency. So astute a politician as Senator Henry Cabot Lodge firmly believed, until the very day the convention opened, that the forces of Governor Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft would be so evenly balanced as to produce a deadlock. It is ancient history that the idea then was to offer Vandenberg as a compromise.

What in fact happened was that the forces of Senator Taft, who commanded the support of the Republican right wing, turned out to be much weaker than had been expected. Senator Taft himself comes out of the convention, as one could have anticipated, with increased stature. From start to finish, he showed unfailing strength of character, good sportsmanship, and an odd, attractive kind of impersonal common sense.

No deadlock materialized. Not because Taft failed as a leader but simply because of the increasing rarity of the men designed in the classical image of old-fashioned Republicanism — men like Taft's Texan supporter, Col. R. B. Creager, who became master of the party in Texas under Warren Gamaliel Harding; or old Harrison Spangler of Iowa, or Taft's manager, Clarence Brown of Ohio. Although very different from Taft in character, these were the men who constituted the Taft bloc. They were not only a relatively small minority of the whole convention, although they are reputed to be the practical masters of the political craft, they were also constantly outsmarted by Dewey's brilliant organization, headed by Herbert Brownell. Look at the huge Brown, whose natural habitat seems to be a smoke-filled room. Then look at the slender, precise Brownell, who seems rather out of place away from a good law office or modernist professor's platform. You see at once the difference between the old Republican Party and the new.

The candidates themselves, of course, express the change in the Republican Party better than anyone else. Of Dewey's record, nothing need to be said, because everything has been said so often already. His character, however, remains surprisingly puzzling, considering the length and great importance of his public service.

He is not the sort of political leader who arouses any personal fervor of affection among his followers. It is hard to know why this is so, unless the cool, almost mechanical efficiency of the man strikes something of a chill into those who do not know him intimately. On the other hand, he has around him, as these correspondents reported at the time of his reelection to the New York governorship, the best staff that any American political chieftain in a good many decades has ever possessed. And from this staff he commands really passionate loyalty. In short, he must be more likeable at close range than on a platform, and this is important, for a man's personal staff must inevitably know all his seamy ideas.

More important still, Dewey and his staff possess really remarkable experience and competence in the art of government. In this respect political leadership is a little like a plumbing fixture—it may be nice to have it orchid-colored, but what matters is that it should work. The working effectiveness of Dewey leadership is, finally, greatly enhanced by the choice of Earl Warren as his running mate. Warren is by long odds the most progressive of all the Republicans of national stature. He is an easy-tempered, genial man, but a fighter when aroused. And the thing that most strongly arouses his fighting spirit is the greatest danger for the Republicans—the grabbing for anything that is not nailed down, by the large special interests that still regard the Republican Party as their very own. From this, under Dewey and Warren, there is reason to hope the country should be safe.

The Republican majority in Congress may still wish to celebrate a carnival of reaction, as President Truman charges. But Dewey, leading his party back to the good fruit of office after many hungry years, should long enjoy the same control of Congress that Franklin D. Roosevelt enjoyed for similar reason from 1932 to 1938. A Dewey-Warren Administration will be a conservative Administration, for if the word means anything at all, the Republican Party is certainly the party of American conservatism. But the Dewey-Warren brand of conservatism soon should also be intelligent, which means that the jobs that really need to be done will be done efficiently, and the messes that really need to be tidied up will be tidied up neatly.

Man Fractures Back; Car Horn Brings Aid

New York, June 25 (U.P.).—The incessant blowing of an automobile horn at 7:30 o'clock this morning finally brought a curious neighbor to the driveway of the home of Charles Rauffers, 52.

He found Rauffers on the front seat of the car, his back broken Rauffers had fallen 20 feet from the roof of his home last night while repairing shingles. He called for hours but no one heard him.

Finally he managed to drag himself to the automobile, where he fainted. He did not recover consciousness until morning when he began pressing on the horn button.

New Drug Is Reported as Aid To Palsy, Paralysis Victims

Rochester, N. Y., June 25 (AP).—A new drug myanesin, dramatically overcomes some crippling effects of infantile paralysis, cerebral palsy, and other diseases, two scientists reported today.

It works by relaxing muscles that are twisted, rigid or shaking uncontrollably due to nerve disorders, and permits normal or near normal movement again. It does not help in paralysis or crippling where nerve pathways have been destroyed.

The findings are announced in the June 26 Journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. R. Plato Schwartz and Dr. Frank M. Berger of the University of Rochester Medical School.

Myanesin can be taken as a cherry-flavored drink or in tablets. In 84 of 90 patients, it diminished or eliminated spasms, rigidity and uncontrolled shaking of muscles, they said. Sometimes the relief came within half an hour or so. In others, improvement came only after days of taking the medicine.

Plants May Shed Light On Causes of Cancer

Chicago, June 25 (U.P.).—A study of malignant growths on plant life may lead to a discovery of the causes of cancer, a Philadelphia scientist said today.

Speaking at the final session of the American Medical Association convention, Dr. Philip R. White described how cancers were produced in plant life.

"Such investigations are not likely to lead directly to the discovery of cancer cure," he said. "But they do have more than a fair chance of throwing light on the nature of those cellular changes which are responsible for malignancy."

He said that with such an understanding, medical men may go on to discover what preventive measures can be taken.

Dr. S. Allen Wilkinson of Boston, warned that patients who have been operated upon for stomach ulcers should not get the idea they may eat and drink what they like.

Dr. Philip Thorek of the University of Illinois, said: "The more one sees of acute appendicitis, the more one respects the condition," he said. "The statement 'only an appendix' is indeed a dangerous one.

AMA Cooperation Pledged Blood Banks

Chicago, June 25 (AP).—The American Medical Association has approved a resolution recommending continued cooperation with the Red Cross in handling blood banks, but requiring the consent of county medical officers to advertising and publicity on the banks.

The resolution also stated that the AMA hoped the Red Cross would discontinue advertising "free blood."

Tavenner Leaves Tokyo By Air for Woodstock

Tokyo, June 25 (AP).—Frank S. Tavenner, leading war crimes prosecutor here for the past 2½ years, left by plane today for Woodstock, Va. Mrs. Tavenner is returning with him.

Tavenner headed the American prosecution staff in the war crimes trial of former Premier Hideki Tojo and 25 others. The verdict is expected in August.

The former Federal attorney for the Western District of Virginia will make his home in Woodstock.

The Gallup Poll

8 Out of 10 Favor 100 Million Fund for Heart Disease Study

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 25.—The National Heart Institute set up by this session of Congress for research on heart disease would become one of the Nation's largest and most important health projects if the public had its way.

A coast-to-coast survey by the institute shows that approximately 8 out of every 10 persons polled would be in favor of appropriating the huge sum of 100 million dollars for the Heart Institute to conduct intensive research on the causes and possible cure of diseases of the heart, which are the Nation's No. 1 killer.

Vital statistics collected by the United States Public Health Service indicate that heart diseases kill nearly 2½ times as many people annually as cancer and other tumors and eight times as many as tuberculosis.

Early this month Congress set up the National Heart Institute to be administered by the Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service. An appropriation of 15 million dollars for the work was suggested by the National Heart Committee and other interested groups, but in the closing days of the session Congress appropriated only $500,000 for the Heart Institute.

The general attitude of the public can be seen from the following poll:

Would you approve or disapprove of having the Government spend 100 million dollars for research to find the causes and cure of diseases of the heart?

Approve	79%
Disapprove	11
Qualified answers	3
No Opinion	7

All those who indicated approval were next asked:

Would you be willing to pay more taxes to provide this money?

The vote:

Yes	80%
No	14
No opinion	6

The survey also found that the public would not balk at spending double the amount, or 200 million dollars, on heart research. A separate but comparable crosssection was asked the question with the larger sum mentioned and, again, the vote was 79 per cent in favor, with four out of five of those indicating a willingness to pay more taxes to raise the money.

Outdoor Series Set By Youth Groups

Young people whose church youth groups have disbanded for the summer will have a chance to discuss world problems at a series of outdoor meetings that begins Sunday.

Meetings have been planned by the Washington Federation of Christian Youth, which is the interdenominational youth organization of the Washington Federation of Churches. They will be held on alternate Sunday evenings at 6:30 p. m. in the garden of the Sidwell Friends School, 3901 Wisconsin ave. nw.

General theme of the five meetings is "Building a Strategy for World Peace." Meetings will be canceled in the event of rain.

At the first meeting Sunday at 6:30 p. m. the speaker will be Alan Barth, editorial writer for The Washington Post. Barth, who recently was awarded a Nieman fellowship for a year's study at Harvard University, will speak on "Human Rights."

Other meetings scheduled are:

July 11, Dr. J. M. Dawson, executive secretary of the joint conference committee on public relations, Baptists of the United States, "The Protestant's Unique Contribution to Democracy."

July 25, Miss Barbara White, National League of Women Voters, "The United Nations and World Recovery."

August 6, Dr. Elton Atwater, assistant professor of international relations, American University, "Government Leadership and the American Policy."

August 22, Dr. Albert T. Mollegan, professor of Christian ethics at the Virginia Theological Seminary, "Russia and an Interpretation of Communism."

Bishop Due At Arlington Ceremonies

The Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, Bishop of Richmond, will preside at cornerstone laying ceremonies for St. Ann's Catholic Church, 10th and N. Frederick sts., Arlington, at 10:30 a. m. Sunday.

Following the ceremony and blessing by the Bishop, the first mass in the new building will be offered by the pastor, the Rev. R. Dixon Beattie. The sermon of the day will be preached by the Right Rev. Edward L. Stephens, dean of northern Virginia.

Fourth degree members of Edward Douglass White Council, Knights of Columbus, Arlington and members of the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, will act as a guard of honor for the bishop. Beginning with the first Sunday in July, mass will be celebrated at St. Ann's at 7:30, 9:00, 11 a. m. and 12 noon, with baptisms at 1:30 p. m.

Epiphany to Hear Dr. R. H. Wilmer

The Rev. Richard H. Wilmer, jr., will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw. Dr. Wilmer, son of Epiphany vestryman Richard H. Wilmer and Mrs. Wilmer, entered the ministry from Epiphany parish.

Worshipers To Hear China Missionary

A missionary who has spent more than half of his life in China will speak Sunday at 11 a. m. at the National Presbyterian Church, 1764 N st. nw.

Hayes

He is Dr. John D. Hayes, who has been serving as assistant pastor of the church for the past two years. He and Mrs. Hayes will leave the United States to return to China on July 31.

He will speak on "China's Choice." Following the service, officers and members of the church will honor Dr. and Mrs. Hayes with a reception.

The son of missionary parents, Dr. Hayes was born in China and received his secondary education there. Later, he came to the United States and studied at Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio, and Princeton University.

He won a Rhodes Scholarship and received his M. A. from Oxford University, then studied at theological schools in Glasgow and Edinburgh, Scotland.

In 1917 he and Mrs. Hayes were appointed missionaries to China, and were maintained there by what is now the National Presbyterian Church.

During the war Dr. Hayes was interned in China, where his father, Dr. W. M. Hayes, died. He and Mrs. Hayes and his mother returned to the United States on an attack transport two months after VJ-Day.

Dr. Hayes is returning to China at the request of the Chinese Christian Church, and will be working in Kueiwang, near Chungking. He will again be a full missionary of the National Presbyterian Church.

As a gesture to the veteran missionary, the Presbytery of Washington City last week refused to accept his resignation as vice moderator. Thus, Dr. Hayes will represent not only the National Church but also the Presbytery of Washington while he is doing his mission work in the Far East.

Church Adopts Unified Book Of Worship

A unified book of worship yesterday was adopted by the General Convention of the New Jerusalem Church (Swedenborgian) at its 125th annual session.

The meetings are being held at the national church of the denomination, the Church of the Holy City, 16th and Corcoran sts. nw. Earlier in the week preliminary meetings were held in Baltimore.

At a meeting of the National Alliance of New Church Women yesterday, Mrs. Othmar Tobisch of San Francisco was elected president of that group. The Rev. Henry C. Guinti of Cleveland was named president of the National New Church Sunday School Association.

The unified book of worship has been under consideration by church committees for the past eight years. Church officials expect to begin using it within a few months.

Sessions will continue today with election of officers of the general convention slated for this morning.

At the main religious service at 11 a. m. Sunday a general pastor will be invested and the speaker will be the Rev. Othmar Tobisch. The Rev. Alfred Regamey of Lausanne, Switzerland, will speak at an evening missionary meeting.

Gaul's oratorio, "The Holy City," will be given by the augmented choir of the Church of the Holy City at 5:30 p. m. Sunday.

Mass to Mark Ordination Date

Chaplain John J. Twiss will celebrate a solemn high mass of thanksgiving marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood at 11:30 a. m. Sunday at the Naval Receiving Station Chapel, Anacostia.

The Rev. Maurice S. Sheehy, head of the department of religious education at Catholic University, will preach the sermon. After his ordination in Rome in 1923, Chaplain Twiss served as an assistant and parish administrator in the Archdiocese of Boston until entering the Navy in 1942. For the past two months he has been assistant district chaplain of the Potomac River Naval Command.

Adventist Sabbath Services Set Today in Takoma Park

Sabbath services for Seventh-Day Adventists in the Washington area will be held today in Takoma Park as part of the annual encampment of the Potomac Conference.

Elder N. C. Wilson, president of the North American division of the church, will address the assembly in Sligo Church at 11 a. m. today, following a Sabbath school at 9:30 a. m. At 3 p. m. six men will be ordained and at 8 p. m. Elder W. R. French will speak.

Fifty churches in the conference, which includes the District, part of Maryland and most of Virginia, are represented at the 10-day session which opened Thursday night.

Rows of family tents have been erected on the grounds of the Washington Missionary College to help house those attending the meetings. The Takoma Park meeting is one of a number of encampments being held this summer throughout the United States.

Speaking to the delegates, Elder H. J. Detwiler called for a revival of Bible study in the home and the church.

"Christ's own promise to return to this earth," he said, "is the most glorious hope offered the world today. We ought to go everywhere with that glad message of truth, and proclaim it with pentecostal power."

Five newly organized churches were accepted into the Potomac conference yesterday. They are at Hopewell, Narrows, Marion, Martinsville and Yellow Branch, Va.

Dr. J. E. Briggs Retiring as Baptist Pastor

Dr. John E. Briggs, Baptist minister here since 1909, has been named pastor emeritus of Temple Baptist Church, 10th and N sts. nw.

Briggs

Dr. Briggs, who will be 75 next month, came out of retirement five years ago to become pastor of Temple Baptist. Before that he was pastor of Fifth Baptist Church, 609 E st. sw., for 34 years.

Long active in church extension work, Dr. Briggs helped to organize many churches in the Greater Washington area. He has also done evangelistic work in Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Maryland.

Dr. Briggs once estimated that during his career in the ministry he had made 75,000 pastoral calls and brought more than 6000 into church membership.

In the first 42 years of his ministry he performed marriage ceremonies for some 5000 couples and officiated at an estimated 4000 baptisms, he said.

A native of North Carolina, Dr. Briggs attended Mercer College, Macon, Ga., and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville. He came to Washington from a pastorate in Atlanta, Ga.

Twice Dr. Briggs was honored with Doctor of Divinity degrees—from Richmond University and Mercer College.

At Temple Baptist, Dr. Briggs was instrumental in paying off an $18,000 mortage and initiating a fund for a new $100,000 church to be built at 16th and Juniper sts. nw.

Dr. and Mrs. Briggs will remain in Washington after his retirement. Dr. Briggs will preach occasionally and is looking forward to giving the dedication sermon at the new Temple Baptist Church.

Novena Honoring Mother Cabrini Starts Tuesday

The annual novena honoring Mother Cabrini will begin Tuesday at St. Stephen's Church, 25th and Pennsylvania ave. nw. and continue until July 7.

Sullivan

Services will be conducted at 5:20 and 7:45 p. m. by the Rev. Lawrence Sullivan of the New England mission band of the Holy Cross Fathers. After five minute talks by Father Sullivan the relic will be venerated.

Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini was born in Italy in 1850 and became an American citizen in Seattle, Wash., in 1909. She died in 1917 and her body lies under the main altar in the Bronx, N. Y., high school bearing her name. She was canonized in Rome on July 7 two years ago.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

The forty-first season of summer open air services will be initiated at 4 p. m. at Lincoln Park, East Capitol and 11th sts.

The meetings are held annually under the auspices of the Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A., in cooperation with churches of the eastern part of the city. The first service this year will be sponsored by the Bible classes of Ninth Street Christian Church and Dr. J. Lloyd Black, pastor, will be the speaker. Speakers for later services have not been announced.

Members of the Sunday school of Mount Zion Methodist Church, 2902 O st. nw., will be in charge of the 11 a. m. Children's Day Service. The Rev. James D. Foy is pastor of the church.

Couples married by Dr. Edward O. Clark of Chevy Chase Baptist Church will be guests of honor at 11 a. m. at a "wedding bells" reunion service. Dr. Clark will speak on "The Tie That Binds."

A series of studies on Christian fellowship will begin at 7:30 p. m. at Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, North Capitol and R sts. It will be conducted by the pastor of the church, Dr. I. S. Ernst.

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, minister of the Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw., will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Fellowship of Deliverance." Holy Communion will be observed at the service.

Evensong at 4 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral will be an entirely musical service, with a group of sixteenth century anthems replacing the customary sermon. Paul Callaway, cathedral organist and choirmaster, will direct the choir of men's voices.

Mission Pastor To Be Installed

The Rev. Edward F. Yost will be installed as mission pastor at Faith Lutheran Church, Lee blvd. at Jackson st., Arlington, at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Mr. Yost, a recent graduate of Capital University Lutheran Seminary, Columbus, Ohio, has been called by the American Lutheran Church to establish a Lutheran Mission in Fairfax County, Va. Until a building is erected for the new mission he will serve as assistant pastor at Faith Lutheran Church.

Red-Inspired Labor Rows Plague Italy

Accuse Reds

Dock Strike Leaders Quit Committee

London, June 25 (AP).—Seven leaders of London's wildcat strike of 19,000 dock workers resigned from a workers' committee today in protest against "Communist pressure."

The strike, which has crippled the dock area, continued under new leadership.

At a meeting tonight, Arthur Deakin, chief of the Transport Union which opposes the strike, had little success in another effort to get workers to unload the 150 ships now idle.

There were jeers, mingled with a few cheers, as Deakin told a small group of strikers that they "must get themselves right with the legal union" before they could hope to get a settlement of their grievances.

At an earlier meeting called by the strikers there was a noisy debate and charges that a Communist element is trying to prevent settlement of the strike.

"We are being subject to outside political influences," said Frank Palmer, one of the strike leaders who resigned.

Meanwhile, volunteers and army troops were unloading food from a few of the ships.

Rome, Italy, June 25 (U.P.).—Communist-inspired labor troubles plagued Italy again today and one leftist union official said 400,000 partisans were ready to take over industry unless plant owners changed their ways.

Some 50,000 disgruntled Italian workers demonstrated in Milan's Piazza del Duomo, shouting, "death to industrialists!" and "down with (Premier Alcide) de Gasperi's government!"

Meanwhile, a general strike was proclaimed in Trieste, capital of the free territory of Trieste. The territory is divided into Anglo-American and Yugoslav zones, and the strike resulted from a dispute between pro-Italian and pro-Yugoslav labor unions.

Allied military government officials in Trieste called an urgent meeting. They feared the general strike there might result in violence because the Congress of Communist Partisans is scheduled to meet there tomorrow.

Communist union officials, who apparently approved the calling of a nation-wide strike in Italy July 2, opposed the Trieste walkout. About 60,000 Trieste workers quit at noon today.

In Milan, where the monster demonstration was held, leftist labor leaders declared that Communist-led partisans were ready to take over Italian industry unless big business "changes its ways."

Gaetano Invernizzi, Communist secretary of the Milan labor chamber challenged the right of industrialists to discharge workers, and said the April 18 elections "did not give you the right to do what you want."

Union officials banned all Communist insignia at the Milan meeting. No red flags were in sight.

Antonio Morelli, another leftist labor leader, said "the 400,000 partisans of northern Italy were not stopped by German tanks nor by Col. Charles Poletti's armored vehicles" (Poletti, a New Yorker served as Allied military governor in Italy at the close of World War II.)

Italian workers shouted their approval "Death to industrialists!" they declared. "Let's hang them in Loreto Square!" (where Benito Mussolini and his mistress were hanged.)

Award for Stalin's Son

Moscow, June 25 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Vassily Stalin, son of Premier Josef Stalin, was awarded the Order of the Red Banner for "successfully carrying out the assignments of the commandant," it was announced today.

New Steel Process In Britain Held Revolutionary

Wolverhampton, England, June 25 (AP).—Ductile Steel, Ltd., claims development of a new steel-making process which will prove as revolutionary as the Bessemer furnace.

"The rudimentary principle," said Company Chairman Frank Hall, "is that light scrap, which is easily obtainable and of little use to steel makers, and other metals can be fused with a mixture discovered by our inventor and melted into the finest quality steel ready for pouring into molds."

He said the "other metals" and the mixture were a secret.

"As the mold cools off it can be opened and the billet is then ready for reheating and rolling into strip and conduit tubing," he added.

U. N. Security Council Decides Not to Revive Debate on Spain

Lake Success, June 25 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council decided today against reviving debate at this time on Franco Spain. The Council held, in effect, the present situation in Spain did not warrant its attention.

Only Russia and the Soviet Ukraine voted to place the Spanish question on the current agenda.

The Council postponed debate on the procedure for administering the former Japanese-mandated Pacific islands now held by the United States under the U. N. trusteeship system.

The next meeting was set for next Thursday, to consider the Dutch-Indonesian conflict.

Harvesting by Boat . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

FLOOD MEASURE—At Osage Bend, Mo., Farmer Edgar Rodeman and his helper William Hazelhorst use a rowboat to pick up wheat shocks in the flooded Osage River area. Hazelhorst forks the grain from the motor-equipped boat to Rodeman on the wagon. Rodeman has saved about 23 acres of grain by this method

Reds Reported Beaten Back At Kupeikow

Nanking, China, June 25 (U.P.).—Gen. Fu Tso-yi's Peiping headquarters claimed today that Nationalist troops have beaten back a week-long Communist siege on Kupeikow, a great wall pass commanding traffic from Peiping to Manchuria.

In Sian, western China, President Chiang Kai-shek held an important military conference to map a counteroffensive against victorious Communists in central and northwestern China.

Communist triumphs have plunged the Chinese dollar to a record low. In Shanghai, one American dollar brought four million Chinese dollars today. The price yesterday was 2,500,000 Chinese dollars for $1. At the end of the war it was 1200 to $1.

[The Associated Press reported the official Chinese news agency said government troops had entered Kaifeng after Communist forces looted the city and withdrew.]

'Capitalistic' Skirt Ban

Berlin, June 25 (U.P.).—Women in the Soviet army here have been informed it is a punishable offense to alter their uniforms or civilian skirts to "capitalistic length."

U. S. Protests GIs' Detention

The United States is protesting to Yugoslavia against the 11-day detention of five American soldiers who went swimming in the Yugoslav zone of Trieste, and is demanding their early release.

The State Department said that the protest and demand are being presented to the government at Belgrade by Ambassador Cavendish Cannon. The five American soldiers who were arrested by Yugoslav military authorities June 15 were named by the State Department as:

T/4 George C. Wilson, T/5 Augustine Santana, T/5 Jarvis L. Saulnier, Pvt. Gordon J. Foster and Pvt. Archie M. Van Why.

The Army later gave these hometown addresses of the five soldiers:

Wilson, Southern Pines, N. C.; Santana, 514 W. 213th st., New York City; Saulnier, 6 Forest st., Manchester, Mass.; Foster, 1013 Madison lane, Falls Church, Va.; and Van Why, Route 1, Stroudsburg, Va.

A sister of Private Foster is Mrs. J. E. Doyle of 1013 Madison lane, Falls Church.

Private Van Why's mother is Mrs. Ellen Van Why of Route No. 1, Stroudsburg.

State Department Press Officer Michael McDermott said that the soldiers entered the Yugoslav zone in "a small boat."

"Their purpose was merely to go swimming at a bathing beach at Capo D'Istria. While bathing at the beach they were arrested on June 15 by Yugoslav military authorities.

Asked whether there was any evidence that the five soldiers had any permission to go in the Yugoslav zone, McDermott replied "No."

Greeks Swarm Into Rebel Positions

Athens, June 25 (AP).—Greek army troops swarmed into rebel positions near Nestorion and Grevena today in a surprise attack on strategic Communist positions, a general staff communique reported.

Dispatches from the front said military authorities expect Amouda to fall soon. Amouda ridge controls one flank of the rebel position in the Grammos mountains.

Bad weather slowed down the all-out drive to break the back of the rebellion. A Greek officer said there had been some "over-optimism."

Troops are encountering surprisingly strong rebel fortifications, it was reported.

A press report, which could not be confirmed, said guerilla headquarters had been hit with firebombs and that Markos Vafiades had fled to Albania.

(The guerilla radio, heard in London, said units of the government army have been thrown back in the Konitsa sector "with great losses" to the nationalists.)

Twenty-six persons were reported executed in Athens this morning. They had been convicted of treason, sabotage or murder.

Twenty of them were said to have been among the 40 sentenced to death earlier in the week after a naval trial on charges of treason and sabotage.

The other six were believed to have been among the eight convicted of assassinating Justice Minister Christos Ladas last May Day.

Expect Papal Statement

Vatican City, June 25 (AP).—Vatican sources said today they expected Pope Pius XII to make an important pronouncement Tuesday on world social problems. He will address Catholic workers.

Peron Tries to Gear Argentine Policy to Economics of World

Buenos Aires, June 25 (AP).—The Peron government and private financiers strove today to gear Argentina to world economics.

Argentina's change in economic policy and the United States statement that the world does not need Argentine food at present prices forced the meetings.

(Argentina has been asking up to $5 a bushel for wheat, more than double the Chicago price.)

Argentina released restrictions this week on the movement of foreign capital from the Argentine but conditioned the concession on the supply of dollars. Steps also were taken to free international trade in luxury goods.

The United States position about the use of Marshall Plan (European Recovery Program) dollars was explained by Struve Hensel, traveling representative of the Economic Cooperation Administration. He saw President Juan Peron and Miguel Miranda, chairman of the National Economic Council. Hensel said he told both that world needs for grain have been reduced and that Argentine sales would have to be on a world price basis.

Hensel said Peron already realized the grain supply position and is taking it into account.

Peron said Argentina will attempt direct dealings with European nations. Hensel said this is in perfect accord with the Marshall Plan, which calls for Europe to buy as much grain as possible with its own money and finance such sales with exports.

Hensel said the United States wants to be sure part of the Marshall Plan money will return to the United States as payments for debt service and profits made by United States firms abroad. He said the United States also wants some of the dollars turned over to private foreign traders to finance general world trade among all countries.

Peron yesterday advised manufacturers to increase their output. They replied, informants said, that the yield from labor has fallen off 40 per cent. Peron denied this, saying the decrease was only 17 per cent, the informants added.

The new exchange rate of 4.81 pesos for $1 United States in checks remained unchanged since June 23.

Falls Church Mother Awaits News of Son

A Falls Church, Va., mother last night anxiously awaited further news of her son, one of five United States soldiers reported illegally detained by the Yugoslavs.

Foster

She is Mrs. Mary J. Foster, of 1013 Madison lane, whose son, Gordon J. Foster, 33, of Baltimore, was listed by the Army as one of the five soldiers arrested by Yugoslavs while swimming in Trieste Free Territory waters.

Mrs. Foster said her son enlisted in the Army in April, 1946, after having served in the Navy a year and a half during the war.

His wife, Mrs. Lorraine Foster, lives in Baltimore with their five children.

Soviet Questioned On Plans in Austria

Vienna, Austria, June 25 (U.P.).—The United States bluntly asked Russia today if she is encouraging seizure of power by the Austrian Communist minority, but, Russia's spokesman refused to answer.

Lieut. Gen. Geofirey Keyes, American military governor in Austria, put the question to Marshal Vladimir Kourassov, Russian military governor, at an Allied council meeting. He made his demand after all three Western Allies had complained about the arrest of Austrian officials by the Russians.

"I decline all protests and any resolutions whatsoever," Kourassov declared, thereby closing the subject.

The impasse left the representatives of France, Britain and the United States with no way to ensure the safety of Austrian government officials from Soviet arrest or intimidation.

"All we can do here is continue to give moral support to the Austrians," an American spokesman said after the meeting. "Further than that, we must await instructions from our Government."

Keyes referred specifically to the "terror" arrest of Austrian police official Anton Marek.

Gen. Emile Bethouart, the French commissioner, told Kourassov he intends to ask his government to take action through diplomatic channels to bring about an immunity agreement and revision of the control agreement under which the four powers operate in Austria.

In Germany

Three-Power Military Rule Is Planned

Berlin, June 25 (AP).—United States and British military governors disclosed today a plan to set up a streamlined three-power military government in western Germany.

The program would reduce the French-British-American military government's role to a supervisory capacity, giving the Germans greatly increased powers.

Such a project would function in the three western occupation zones, and was conceived in anticipation of a federalized western German government.

Informed sources said the plan announced today would involve at least a partial merger of the American, British and French military governments and a large reduction in staffs.

An American statement said it is expected that maximum power permitted under the London agreement will be delegated to the Germans so they can organize a sound foundation, politically and economically.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor, said his reorganization committee will be headed by J. Anthony Panuch, a former New York lawyer long associated with the Government in Washington.

U. S., British Strategy In Germany Resurveyed

Frankfurt, June 25 (NYHT.).—American and British political strategy in Germany is being resurveyed, according to reports here today.

William H. Draper, jr., Undersecretary of War, is on his way to Europe to make a confidential study of the present political crisis in central Europe, a European command headquarters source disclosed.

Maj. Gen. Nevil C. D. Brownjohn, British deputy military governor, left Berlin by air today for London to confer with the War Office and Foreign Office there.

the western Allies had promised to forward it. The appeal, it is reported, would ask that a United Nations commission be sent here to investigate the present situation.

Russians Say Travel Ban Will Be Lifted

Berlin, June 25 (U.P.).—The Russians said today their ban against railroad and automobile traffic from the western occupation zones, which threatened 2,500,000 Berlin Germans with starvation would be withdrawn Monday.

Russian authorities notified American transport officials at Helmstedt, on the border, of the Russian and British occupation zones, of the intended ending of the railroad ban on traffic to and from Berlin.

The Russians clamped down a complete railroad ban Tuesday, alleging that roadbeds were in bad condition. But they had virtually stopped traffic previously because of the currency reform which was inaugurated in the western zones Sunday.

New Currency Accepted

The Russian action came as an American announcement added to the confused monetary situation in Berlin.

Col. Frank Howley, American commandant in Berlin, revealed that the western powers were accepting the Russian sector currency in the western sector of Berlin.

Howley sent the Russians a copy of the Allied currency reform law tonight. He said it had been put into effect in the American sector here today as a necessary measure, because the Russians put their new mark in circulation in their sector.

"By making both eastern and western currencies acceptable in western sectors we have avoided injury to the people of Berlin and have made it possible for them to meet their obligations without hardship," Howley said in a letter accompanying the copy of the law.

"I regret exceedingly that similar acceptance has not been extended to western currency in the eastern sector of Berlin. However, I feel that by our action we have made it possible for the government of Greater Berlin to continue to function with a minimum of inconvenience."

(United States officials in Washington confirmed Howley's announcement and said the Soviet marks would be accepted for limited purposes, such as payment of bills due the city of Berlin (gas, light, water) and rent.)

Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the American and British commanders in chief, conferred this afternoon on the situation.

Howley warmly praised the German population today for its "calmness and efficiency" despite "frantic efforts on the part of those who desire chaos in the city to sow fear and panic by means of evil rumors."

"The steadfastness of the population is praiseworthy," Howley said. "Remember: the stupid and brutal threat to starve Berlin is just foolish. Adequate food stocks are in Berlin to carry over the present critical period. The people of Berlin will not be deprived of food. Efforts to intimidate the people of Berlin by propaganda have failed."

Howley said there had been "a few isolated incidents of physical intimidation" by the Russians and cited the seizure of four German employes of newspapers published in the American sector. He said he had taken steps to get them freed.

Marshall Plan Fears Quieted which each country must set aside in amounts equivalent to the value of American grants.

Influential voices were raised in Congress proposing that American trustees be stationed in each country to determine how these local currencies should be used. In the aggregate these sums will amount to between three and four billion dollars' worth of pounds, francs, lire and other European currencies in the first year of the recovery program.

According to unofficial reports, the agreements lay down only three broad uses of these funds: (1) for productive purposes such as, for example, reconstruction work which will help promote economic recovery; (2) retirement of internal debt, and (3) administrative expenses of American ECA missions abroad.

All these are in accord with the letter and the spirit of the original act of Congress, and all avoid any infringement with a recipient country's independence. Virtually the only specific limitation is contained in the appropriations act, which provides that not less than 5 per cent of the local currency funds be earmarked for supplying strategic materials, "where available," to the United States.

As to exchange rates and currency stabilization, advance reports show that the bilateral agreements put no obligation on the recipient countries beyond the general pledges they have already assumed in their original 16-nation agreement.

The chief bone of contention in the last phase of the negotiations was an American proposal to give most-favored-nation treatment—in other words, apply non-discrimination—to German and Japanese goods.

The Japanese part of this pledge was fought strenuously by the British and French—the British because it would adversely affect Australia and New Zealand, the French because of Indo-China. Moreover, Japan is not a participating country in ECA and Japanese trade was not mentioned in the original act of Congress.

The Americans held fast, however, on the ground that the act called for the expansion of foreign trade and the reduction of trade barriers. Probably they were influenced, also by ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman's trip to Japan last March, when Gen. Douglas MacArthur told him how much it was costing American taxpayers to maintain the Japanese economy, and how necessary it was for Japan to recover.

In any event, the American negotiators agreed in the end that the Japanese trade provision could be omitted from the bilateral agreement with Britain. Instead, they proposed putting it into a separate exchange of notes—a device that is still being considered in London.

Other troublesome items ironed out in recent days include (1) an anticartel clause; (2) a provision for arbitration of claims, which originally gave one-sided rights to the United States; and (3) a clause providing for termination of the agreement.

It is not yet certain that all 16 countries will put the agreements into effect by the July 3 deadline. The British Parliament, for example, plans a two-day debate on the subject, and British agreement cannot become binding until Parliament gives its verdict.

American officials feel confident, however, that European peoples and governments will regard the agreements as entirely in line with the general principles already laid down for the European recovery program.

Bevin Cautious In Report on Berlin Crisis

London, June 25 NYHT.—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin reported to the Commons today in flat, cautious and restrained terms on the situation in Berlin.

He confined himself to a factual review of what is taking place, and allowed himself almost no comment. He described the rail traffic situation, the ban on road transport from western occupation zones into the city, the cut in electricity, the Russian decision to halt food supplies for other Berlin zones and the currency crisis.

"There had been some organized demonstration apparently designed to overawe the city council," he said, "but this has had no effect and I am glad to say that Berlin authorities and the population are displaying great calmness and showing no sense of being intimidated by the measures I have described."

Bevin was so cautious that when a questioner asked him if Britain intended to remain permanently in Berlin and would consult with the United States and the French on steps to get food into the city, he replied: "I prefer not to add to my statement, with the delicate situation which exists now."

Three emergency cabinet sessions have been held during the last 24 hours to discuss the British position in the Berlin crisis.

Good Templars To Dedicate Tree

A memorial tree will be dedicated on the east lawn of the Capitol today at 4 p. m. by the National Grand Lodge of the International Order of Good Templars.

The Templars, a 95-year-old temperance organization, have been meeting here since Thursday. Headquarters are at the Ebbitt Hotel, 10th and H sts. nw., and business sessions have been held at the Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw. At a banquet last night the Rev. H. Clifton Owens, attorney-preacher, addressed the group.

Meetings will be concluded today with the election of officers and adoption of plans for the next three years' activities.

4 Newsmen Detained By Russians Released

Berlin (Saturday), June 26 (AP).—Four German newsmen employed by American agencies were released by the Russians early today after being detained for 30 hours.

Soviet authorities had told United States officials they were holding the man at the Russian Kommandatura "on suspicion of disseminating propaganda against the Soviet occupying power."

U. S. Woman Arrested, Held 6 Hours, She Says

New York, June 25 (U.P.).—Dr. Lucille Allard, Garden City, L. I., told an American Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Berlin tonight she was arrested by the Russians there and held for six hours, during which she refused an order to scrub floors, ABC reported.

Methodist Conference Urges Draft Act Repeal

Chicago, June 25 (AP).—The Rock River conference of the Methodist Church, comprising 392 congregations in northern Illinois, today adopted a resolution urging repeal of the draft act.

The group, headed by Bishop J. Ralph Magee of Chicago, voted to notify all northern Illinois Congressmen that "we hope and pray for the early repeal of the draft act" recently passed by Congress.

"We know of no valid reason for the adoption at the present time of selective service," the resolution said.

Draft-Swollen Guard Units Ordered to Stop Recruiting

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

National Guard units that went over the top in this week's flood of enlistments were ordered yesterday to stop further recruiting.

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall wired State adjutants general that congressional leaders say they won't grant more money to pay for more Guardsmen than the 341,000 authoriezd for next year.

Meanwhile, Defense Secretary James Forrestal named a seven-man advisory committee to coordinate policies under the new draft law. And elsewhere in the military establishment and independent selective service organization, officials were hard at work studying the act and making plans to put it in operation.

Members of the National Security Resources Board and Munitions Board are considering Section 18 of the law. This gives the President authority to seize any plant that refuses to take defense orders at a fair price and give them priority.

Concern Expressed

Some industrialists have expressed concern about this section, particularly the Ploesser amendment, which gives the Secretary of Defense authority to allocate steel, if necessary to carry out military orders.

Both boards—which are advisers to the President and Defense Secretary on industrial matters—view the steel allocation and plant seizure powers as "reserve" authority, members indicated.

The feeling is that the voluntary allocations plan now being worked out by the Department of Commerce should be thoroughly tried out, with the draft powers held in standby condition. Only in case of a war emergency or breakdown of the voluntary program would the groups recommend that the powers be utilized according to present thinking.

Royall, who canceled a New Jersey speaking engagement to work on draft plans, congratulated efforts of the past week. More Guard leaders on their recruiting than a hundred thousand men were signed up under the draft-exemption clause of the Selective Service Act, and many units went well beyond their quotas.

The Army head said that "leaders of the Armed Services Committee of Congress have indicated today that they will not favorably consider deficiency appropriation requests to cover strengths greater than those provided for in apropriations for fiscal year 1949."

He directed that, where ceilings have been exceeded, recruiting be stopped until losses bring down units below authorized limits. Volunteers, however, are expected to slow down to a trickle now that recruits no longer gain draft exemption.

The draft advisory board named by Forrestal is headed by John Noble, one of his legal aides. Other members are: Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Army deputy personnel chief; Col. Edward M. Starr, Army General Staff; Rear Admiral Thomas L. Sprague, chief of naval personnel; Capt. Thomas F. Darden, assistant to Sprague; Maj. Gen. Bryant L. Boatner, assistant chief of Air Force staff for personnel, and Maj. Gen. Richard E. Nugent, USAF civil personnel director.

Forrestal listed the following for the board to consider:

Standard physical and mental requirements for all the armed services.

Draft quotas and induction timetables.

Transfers between reserve branches of the armed forces and definition of organized reserve units giving draft exemption.

Coordination of voluntary recruiting policies, uniform training plans and preparation of unified standards for discharge.

Policies on industry and material controls.

D. C. National Guard Still Taking Recruits

The District National Guard will still accept recruits, if draft-exempt, although its 2633 quota has been exceeded by about 83.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, local guard commander, said his office did not receive yesterday an order sent by Army Secretary Royall instructing Guard commanders to halt recruiting if personnel ceilings have been reached.

Royall's order followed a flood of Guard enlistments, here and throughout the country, by youths seeking draft exemption. Some 770 men enlisted here between June 15 and midnight Thursday when the President's signing of the Draft Act barred further exemptions for those joining organized reserve units.

Ground units in the District Guard, with a 1613 quota, now are swamped with 1948 men. However, air units, with a 1020 quota, now have only an estimated 768 personnel.

Navy and Marine reserves units also reported a great influx of recruits prior to the Thursday midnight deadline.

Some 150 recruits a day, from Monday through Thursday, brought the Organized Naval Reserve at the Naval Gun Factory close to its authorized strength of 1900 men.

The Naval Air Reserve at Anacostia Air Station reported that acceptance of 40 pending applications would bring the complement up to its 1086 quota.

The Fifth Marine Reserve Battalion, with headquarters at 230 C st. nw., received about 64 recruits this week, bringing its complement to about 35 more than the 570 quota. Applications will still be received, however.

Only at the Army Ground Forces reserve station, 10th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., and the Reserve Air Force office, 2131 C st. nw., was business slow this week.

Eight Eastern Powers Confer on Germany

Warsaw, June 25 (AP).—Warsaw newspapers today said decisions of the eight eastern foreign ministers here on Germany would strengthen and promote peace throughout the world.

The government-controlled papers displayed prominently Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's promise that Poland's western frontiers are definitely fixed. Editorials said any western power move in Germany without participation of nations which bore the brunt of German aggression are "doomed to failure."

Molotov and the foreign ministers of six of the seven satellite nations left by plane today as a crowd estimated by observers at 30,000 gave them a rousing send-off.

(The Moscow Radio heard in London said Molotov returned home tonight.)

Following Molotov's plane were those carrying foreign ministers from Albania, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Romania and Hungary.

The meeting issued a communique which called for a "provisional democratic, peace-loving all-German government."

Authoritative sources said the east European nations were holding in abeyance plans to set up an eastern German state.

U. S. Officials Study Russia's Germany Move

By the United Press

American officials scanned the Soviet bloc's latest proposals on Germany to determine whether they were "more propaganda" in the cold war.

Authorities here were careful to avoid any optimistic reception for the faintly conciliatory tones of the Warsaw communique. They were more inclined to balance it against the well-known Soviet antagonism in Berlin.

Secretary of State Marshall and his advisers are known to have felt ever since the breakdown of the Big Four conference in London last December that:

1. Russia will not change or modify her present obstructionist policies until it is clear that the political vacuum in Europe has been filled. This is one of the chief aims of the Marshall Plan.

2. Russia will not relax her hold on eastern Germany until she is certain that present control can be maintained and even expanded after occupation troops are withdrawn.

3. Actual willingness on Russia's part to negotiate on Germany rather than words is necessary if the deadlock is to be broken.

Segregation In Services MayBe Fought

Kansas City, Mo., June 25 (U.P.).—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will not approve a suggested "civil disobedience" assault on the new draft law, it was indicated today by NAACP officials.

But many delegates to the thirty-ninth annual conference said, "We feel strongly about segregation in the armed forces," and predicted the conference would pass a strong resolution regarding the law which President Truman signed yesterday.

"We Negroes don't mind going to hell as long as we are not discriminated against," Willard S. Townsend, Chicago, international president of the United Transport Service Employes of America, CIO, told the convention.

A Tired Louis Says 'This Was My Last Fight'

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, June 25—How long can you keep writing fights? This bureau passes, and takes as its text that other great American game called baseball, and quotes Joe DiMaggio, who has taken Bob Feller as his text.

POVICH

DiMaggio yesterday spoke a pertinent mouthful when he said "This year Bob Feller is just another pitcher, not the old Feller." He was saying exactly what baseball bookmakers were thinking after making Feller the favorite all season and taking a beating in concert with the erstwhile Rapid Robert who has lost eight and won only six this season.

Even with the Yankees on a home-run rampage and pitching their ace Vic Raschi, who had won eight in a row, Feller was a 6 to 5 favorite to beat 'em in Cleveland the other night. They whipped him, 4 to 0, hitting three home runs, and after the game the quotes flowed freely.

"His fast ball is gone," said DiMaggio, who hit one of the homers. "He's trying to kid us with sliders. He used to blow that hard one past us all day but that's a thing of the past. He throws just as hard, but the ball doesn't come in there as fast."

DiMaggio himself is doing better. After floundering in the .270's most of the season, he achieved the .300 mark the other day and has tied Ken Keltner for the League leadership in home runs. New York correspondents with the Yankees are beating the drums anew for DiMag. The zenith was attained the other day when one reporter wrote on the eve of the series in Cleveland—"DiMag open four-game series with the Indians tomorrow."

Right now, it's not the Indians the Yankees are fearing, but the resurgent Red Sox, who as of today had won seven of their last eight games and were only 4½ games to the rear of the second-place Yanks.

Bucky Harris always did think that the Red Sox, not the Indians, were the club to fear. He was hoping he was wrong about that when the Sox got off badly and were laboring far below the .500 mark, because he had great confidence his club could beat out Cleveland.

"If Feller can't win for them, they can't win any pennant," Harris is quoted. "If the Yankees beat out the Red Sox, I think we'll be home," he says.

That was a remarkable statement out in St. Louis the other night by Richard Muckerman, owner of the Browns, who threatened to take his team to another city if the St. Louis fans didn't turn out in greater numbers at the gate. It sounded very unsmart of Muckerman.

You can't brow-beat or threaten baseball fans into watching your ball club perform and the fact that there was no increase in attendance after Muckerman said what he did is not surprising. The only reaction his statement could stimulate was a bad reaction.

Muckermna's regime had given Browns' fans little to enthuse about anyway. He sold off the few good ball players on the club—Vern Stephens, Bob Muncrief, Jack Kramer, Ellis Kinder, Johnny Berardino, Sam Zoldak—and then gets sore at the fans for not turning out in big numbers. That kind of logic spells eighth place both in the league standings and club operation.

A transfer of the Browns' franchise ought to meet the approval of the other American League clubs. Imagine the thoughts of Connie Mack who played to 82,000 fans at Cleveland in one night and then, the next week, played to only 12,000 fans in four days at St. Louis. Mack's visiting-club's share of the check in St. Louis scarcely paid hotel and transportation expenses of the A's.

The horrible attendance figures of the Browns is brought into bolder relief when you cite the recent crowds in New York. In a three-game series with the Indians a couple of weeks ago, the Yankees drew 186,151 customers. In three days, that was 50 per cent as much home attendance as the Browns drew in 77 home games last season.

To date, in 11 games, the Yankees vs. the Indians have attracted 440,130 fans. That's more than the Browns will draw at home all season. The Browns got a lot of money, over a half million, by selling ball players but a bank balance can't go to its right or hit one out of the lot and the St. Louis fans seem to know that.

Nat Infield Hit in 7th Wins, 3 to 2, Over Lemon

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cleveland, June 25.—Early Wynn, 25 per cent Cherokee Indian, outpitched Bob Lemon, full-blooded Cleveland Indian, and the Nats tripped up the league leaders, 3-2, here tonight.

Wynn permitted the shaky pacesetters only six hits, including Joe Gordon's eleventh homer of the year, and also batted in two vital Washington runs as the Nats ran their latest victory streak to four in a row.

Lemon, charged with his sixth setback against 10 triumphs, set the stage for his downfall in the seventh when he threw wildly to second on a double-play ball. Wynn promptly took advantage of this unintended act of courtesy by whacking out his third bingle, an infield hit, which chased in the two runs the Nats needed to win.

A Big Rally

Wynn, who backed up his seventh success against an equal number of losses, and the Nats entered the seventh trailing, 2-1, and from the way Lemon was pitching it was a safe bet that the Nats would come out of the round still trailing.

But things happened, none of them good for the Indians. After Earl Wooten had grounded out, Al Kozar slashed a single into right center. Johnny Sullivan followed with a one-hopper to the mound which Lemon fielded easily.

The Tribe pitcher whirled toward second to throw and start a double-play, but neither Lou Boudreau nor Gordon was there. After some hesitation, Gordon finally arrived, but Lemon's throw was wide and both Kozar and Sullivan were safe. Al Evans' infield out advanced them both a bag. Then Wynn beat his roller to Gordon to propel both of them home.

Keltner's Robbed

Wynn's victory wasn't easy. Gil Coan had to lean over the fence in left field to haul in Ken Keltner's bid for his eighteenth homer of the season in the third and young Kozar turned in two fancy-fielding plays to pave the way for him.

The Indians broke the ice first, putting together Hegan's single and a double by Lemon for their first run in the third. The Nats matched that in the next round. Ed Stewart's double, Mickey Vernon's infield single and a fly to short center by Wooten. Gordon hauled in Wooten's pop-up with his back to the plate and was in no position to throw as Stewart dashed for home.

It remained 1-1 until the fifth when Gordon opened the round by depositing a souvenir ball into the left field stand. The Tribe tried to break the deadlock in the sixth when Larry Doby opened with a triple, but Wynn was too much for them.

He got Boudreau on a grounder and Robinson on a pop-up. He then courted disaster by walking left-handed batter Hank Edwards to pitch to homerun batter Gordon. The strategy almost backfired as Gordon slammed the first pitch foul into the left field stands. The Indian second baseman finally got Wynn out of the hole by lining to Eddie Yost.

Eight rounds later, after a drab affair in which Louis' corner asked Walcott to make a fight of it, the challenger had his turn on the canvas (photo at right). Walcott stayed there, the twenty-fifth unsuccessful seeker of Louis' crown.

Braves Wallop Pirates, 12-3, On 3 Homers

Boston, June 25 (AP).—With Jim Russell, Tommy Burns and Al Dark smashing homers, the top-place Boston Braves overhauled the Pittsburgh Pirates, 12-3 tonight before a 25,587 crowd. Lefty Warren Spahn contributed toward his sixth pitching win by clouting a pair of two-baggers and scoring twice.

Sugar Ray Will Quit Welterweight Ranks

Chicago, June 25 (U.P.).—Ray (Sugar) Robinson, welterweight champion, announced tonight that he will give up his title after a last bout Monday night.

Robinson said that whatever the outcome of the twice-postponed match with Bernard Docusen of New Orleans he would yield the crown because the division's weight limits are "too tough" to make.

Robinson said that he would do his boxing in the middleweight division in the hopes of meeting Tony Zale, who recently reacquired the middleweight crown by knocking out Rocky Graziano.

It Was All Ref's Fault, Wails Sad Jersey Joe

Yankee Stadium, New York, June 25 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis tonight announced:

"For my mother—this is for her—tonight was my last fight."

The undefeated titleholder made the statement over a radio network (ABC) after knocking out Jersey Joe Walcott in the eleventh round.

As he walked up the steps to his dressing room he told reporters:

"I'm a tired man. I just announced my retirement when I left the ring."

With Walcott it was another story:

"The referee beat me; that's what happened out there," Walcott complained after the knockout.

"It got so I was fighting the referee instead of Joe Louis," Jersey Joe moaned. "The ref kept hounding me, telling me to fight. 'Come on make a fight of it,' he kept repeating.

"'Lets have some action,' the ref kept yelling, 'come on, Walcott, fight.' He never said 'come on Louis, fight.'

"His hounding bothered me. It caused me to change my plans, my style of fighting."

Walcott thought he was ahead until he made "that fatal mistake."

"I know I made a mistake, but I don't know what it was," he said. "They tell me he hit me with everything in the book, but I only remember the first one. After that I don't know what happened, except that I was on the floor. I tried terribly hard to get up, but just couldn't."

Walcott to Continue

Walcott, still dazed by the terrific battering he took in the final seconds of the eleventh round, said he believed Louis was a much better fighter in their first meeting last December.

When informed about Louis' retirement announcement, Walcott shook his head and muttered "I hope it's not true. I'd like to meet him again." Walcott said he planned to continue fighting.

Except for a slight cut under the left eye, Walcott did not have a mark on him.

"One mistake did it," he repeated. "I know I made it, but I don't know what it was."

Champ Reminisces

Over in his dressing room the champ was thinking back.

"Five years ago I would have come out in the first round and got it over with in a hurry," Louis said, then added sadly, "but I'm not the fighter I was five years ago.

"I was determined to fight Walcott's fight and not be tricked into any moves by his hokey-pokey stuff. I would have been satisfied with a decision if I hadn't caught him, as I thought I could outpoint him. I thought I lost only two rounds—the second and the sixth."

Louis, perspiring profusely as the mob of reporters and photographers hemmed him in, managed to blurt out that he planned to enter politics.

"Going to make any speeches, Joe?" some one asked above the hubbub.

"Sure, you can't be in politics without making speeches," he answered, logically. Pressed as to what party he could side with, he sidestepped as neatly as Walcott did for 10 rounds. "I'll announce that next week," he said coyly.

The Roll of Champions

New York, June 25 (AP).—Here are the boxers who have reigned as heavyweight champions of the world under Marquis of Queensberry rules since John L. Sullivan defeated Jake Kilrain in 75 rounds at Richburg, Miss., July 8, 1889, in the last bare-knuckle fight for the title:

James J. Corbett, September 7, 1892, to March 17, 1897.
Bob Fitzsimmons, March 17, 1897, to June 9, 1899.
James J. Jeffries, June 9, 1899, to retirement in 1905.
Tommy Burns, February 23, 1906, to December 26, 1908.
Jack Johnson, December 26, 1908, to April 5, 1915.
Jess Willard, April 5, 1915, to July 4, 1919.
Jack Dempsey, July 4, 1919, to September 23, 1926.
Gene Tunney, September 23, 1926, to retirement in 1928.
Max Schmeling, July 12, 1930, to June 21, 1932.
Jack Sharkey, June 21, 1932, to June 29, 1933.
Primo Carnera, June 29, 1933, to June 14, 1934.
Max Baer, June 14, 1934, to June 13, 1935.
James J. Braddock, June 13, 1935, to June 22, 1937.

Louis KO's Walcott in 11th After Being Down in Third

cott would hit—and—run as he did last December as Jersey Joe circled warily when the bell did ring.

Those first two rounds probably took rank as the worst in all heavyweight title history with Louis wary and Walcott unwilling, but all of a sudden in the third Jersey Joe cut loose.

Louis Goes Down

He stuck a light left into Louis' face and then with audacious lesemajesty he brought a right to Louis' chin, a short arc and the champion was on the floor. He bounced down on his haunches, apparently more surprised than hurt, because as he sat there he nodded to Referee Fullan and was up at the count of one.

That's when Walcott may have lost his bid for Louis' title, because there was only timid attempt by the challenger to follow up his advantage.

Taking stock of Louis' quick recuperative powers and willingness to return to the battle, Jersey Joe backed off.

And then the bout settled down into a boring contest, with Walcott jabbing, dancing, sashaying and flitting about the ring and Louis unwilling to chase him too far.

But Walcott was winning the fight such as it was.

He was exposing Louis' slowness on a night when Louis was weighing in at 213¾, the heaviest of his career, and he was grinning at the champion's inability to catch up with him.

Louis Holds Back

Louis' right hand was in cold storage, or somewhere, in those first 10 rounds. He was risking no shots with it against the tricky old fellow who had knocked him down twice last December and at Walcott's game of jabbing, Louis also was looking like an unworthy champion.

Louis did take a shot to Walcott's chin in the fifth and it was a clean one, but Jersey Joe registered no dismay and growing bolder he crossed his own right to Louis' chin. The fifth was the first round that went to Louis by a clear margin.

The crowd wasn't liking it at all in the next five rounds as Louis still wary and no longer pressing forward found Jersey Joe bolder.

Pappy Walcott was grinning and playing to the crowd, dropping his hands and grabbing at his trunks in contempt of the champion and confident of his ability to step away from any Louis rush.

The ninth round found Louis more eager and he did aim a hard right-hand shot at Walcott, risking a broken hand as Walcott took the blow on top of his skull. The champion was grim now, and forcing the fighting again. He won Round 9 despite taking a hard right to the head at the bell after missing with his own right.

Joins the List

But Walcott continued to pile up the points in round 10, easily extricating himself from a neutral corner and bringing the champion up sharply with a hard right to the chin. In an exchange that followed, Walcott took care of himself, but it was not an exciting round, and it produced Referee Fullam's warning that they must show more action.

And then in the eleventh, Walcott succumbed to the same temptation that had led Billy Conn to his doom against Louis. He went in to slug it out with Louis, and that was his mistake. Walcott landed to Louis' chin, Louis landed to Walcott's chin and a bit later Walcott landed on the floor—newest of the list who tried to outpunch Joe Louis.

New York, June 25 (AP).—Israel hopes to have a battle-hardened team of about 50 men and women at the Olympic Games in diplomatically hostile England.

Joseph Scores At Lanham

Mike Joseph of Philadelphia beat out Tony Bonadies of the Bronx, N. Y., in a down-to-the-wire fight in the 50-lap Washington-Baltimore Sweepstakes midget auto feature race at the West Lanham (Md.) Speedway last night.

Joseph, driving Washingtonian John Giacofci's Offenhauser, swept across the finish line less than a car length in front of Boandies. In the 15-lap warmup Joseph scored by the same margin over Boandies to win post position in the big race.

Ruth Hospitalized For 'Checkup'

New York, June 25 (U.P.).—Babe Ruth, all-time home-run king who has been battling a throat ailment for more than a year, has gone back to a hospital for a "checkup," Mrs. Ruth said tonight.

The wife of the former New York Yankee star said he went to Memorial Hospital yesterday and was getting a good rest along with a physical checkup.

"He wasn't feeling very good at all," said Mrs. Ruth.

Athletics Beat Chisox, 4 to 1

Chicago, June 25 (AP).—Joe Coleman doubled for two runs in the second inning and then pitched Philadelphia to a 4-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox before 10,094 tonight. The victory, Coleman's eighth against five losses, pulled the A's to within one length of first-place Cleveland.

Seixas, Likas Gain Net Final

Los Angeles, June 25 (AP).—Favored Vic Seixas of North Carolina and surprising Harry Likas of the University of San Francisco banged their way today into the singles finals of the National Intercollegiate Tennis Championships.

Seixas simply had too much power for UCLA's Herbie Flam. The top-seeded North Carolinian was just breezing at the finish of his 6—3, 6—2, 6—8, 6—3 conquest. Seixas' sizzling drives and volleys never allowed Flam to set himself.

The fourth-seeded Bruin, going down to his first college singles defeat of the season, was in the match only briefly—when he won the long third set.

Likas defeated Jim Brink, the 6-foot 4-inch University of Washington southpaw. The scores were 6—4, 6—1, 5—7, 6—3.

Yale Bows, 3-1, To Trojan Rally

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 25 (AP).—Packing the thrills into the ninth inning when they scored three runs, Southern California's Trojans turned back Yale, 3 to 1, to win the opening game of the NCAA baseball championship final series today. Pitcher Wally Wood held the Elis to four hits to hang up his twenty-first win of the season.

Television View of Big Fight Was Excellent But One Fan Found a Better Use for Time

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A lot of other Washingtonians sat on the edge of their chairs last night, their eyes fastened on telecasts of the Louis-Walcott championship fight.

But not Bob Gluck.

Bob attended a private television show for National Broadcasting Co. employees and their friends.

Maybe he knew how dull it was going to be, except for Louis' eleventh-round kayo.

At any rate, Bob slept throughout the program.

The 6-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gluck, 308 Patterson pl. nw., merely yawned when the Brown Bomber finished off the twenty-fifth contender for his crown, then went back to sleep.

Meanwhile Bob's elders all over the city were showing more elation than the drab affair merited. Probably because they were glad to see a great champion remain on top.

Even television audiences tired of Walcott's swagger, refusal to fight and obvious attempt to just hang around for 15 rounds. They saw Champion Joe, his usually careful self, stab with his left and keep stabbing after he was unceremoniously dumped on his trunks in the third. It looked like the first punch thrown by Jersey Joe had only accidentally landed, in the light of the next seven rounds.

Louis stalked the pretender, landing enough left jabs to be unworried about the outcome if it went to a decision.

But little Bob Gluck slept through the eleventh, as well as the first 10 rounds.

Virginia Trout Fishing Extended to Sept. 15

Richmond, Va., June 25 (AP).—The State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries today extended the open season for trout to September 15 from July 31. The extension was under authority of legislation during the recent general assembly. The beginning date remains April 30.

Mrs. Dole's Net 80 Wins at Congressional

Mrs. F. R. Dole shot a 94-14-80 to win the Robert T. Smith 18-hole medal play handicap tournament yesterday at Congressional Country Club.

Runner-up honors went to Mrs. J. L. Geddes with 104-23-81, while Mrs. D. H. Henderson was third with 89-7-82.

Mrs. A. C. Paul, 109-26-93; Mrs. R. W. Berry, 111-28-83; Mrs. J. S. Myers, 102-19-83, and Mrs. G. L. Moorman, 102-19-83 tied for fourth. Low putt prize was won by Mrs. H. E. Weber, with 30.

Babe Ousts Dettweiler By 6 and 4

Chicago, June 25 (AP).—Two professionals, Patty Berg of Minneapolis, an extra-hole semifinal victor, and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, today gained the finals of the nineteenth Women's Western Open golf tourney at Skycrest Country Club.

Miss Berg, 1941 and 1943 open winner, triumphed on the twenty-first hole, 1 up, over Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak., the lone amateur still in the running.

Mrs. Zaharias, who copped the open three times previously, easily climbed into tomorrow's 36-hole championship round with a 6 and 4 triumph over professional Helen Dettweiler of Indio, Calif.

Patty Blew a Lead

The semifinal struggle between Miss Berg and Miss Hanson went into extra holes after Patty blew a two-hole lead on the thirteenth and dropped successively the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth holes.

The veteran Minneapolis redhead, favoring an injured left hand, copped the eighteenth when Miss Hanson blew a 4-foot putt which would have given her the hole and the match.

Inspired by Miss Hanson's costly blunder, Patty dropped a 10-footer on the nineteenth green to halve the hole. After both also halved the twentieth when Miss Berg sank a crucial 4-footer, Patty called on her hot putter again for a 6-footer on the twenty-first. That ended the match.

Mrs. Zaharias attained her expected form over the rolling course as she disposed of Miss Dettweiler, 1939 Open champion, with 4-under-women's par for the 14 holes played.

Babe Shoots 34

The Babe, booming her tee shots and irons with crisp accuracy and uncorking sizzling putts, made the nine-hole turn in 34, 3 under women's par, for a four-hole lead at that point.

Mrs. Zaharias had only 2-over-par holes against the outmatched Miss Dettweiler, who took a 39 for the first nine.

The Babe tapped putts of 18, 15 and 12 feet for three of her six birdies over 14 holes. Mrs. Zaharias, who never has faced Miss Berg in match play, won the Open three times previously—in 1940-44-45.

Miss Berg and Miss Hanson each had an 82 for the first 18 holes. They finished the first nine all even after the lead changed hands twice, each carding a 2-over-par 39.

Palumbo Again Rides 3 Winners

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 25. Jockey Sammy Palumbo, who rode three winners yesterday, came back today with another triple to make it six winners in as many tries. The former Brooklyn boy brought his record for the meeting to 22 successes, 7 behind Freddie Kratz who has been topping the riders here since the start of the session.

Palumbo, who appears to thrive on warm weather, completed his second big day in a row by putting up a fine exhibition aboard J. E. Crider's Comedy Player in the Valley Forge Purse, featuring the program. The 7-year-old, making it two straight here, finished three parts of a length in front of J. N. Thomas' One Up, which was a half length in advance of G. Y. Booker's Oyster K.

Comedy Player was a lightly played favorite at a 5.80 mutuel and was clocked for the mile and one sixteenth in 1.47 1-5 over a good track.

Palumbo started the day on the right foot when he scored with W. C. Ensor's Olecrannon, a $3.60 favorite. He took the daughter of Mr. Bones to the front at the break and kept her going. W. Maddox's Winnie Rock was second with G. V. Perry's Beacondre third. When Bobby Shirey booted Stanley Greene, jr.'s Momenta home at 52.80 there was a $100.60 payoff on the daily double on the 4 and 1 combination.

Palumbo's other winner was in the third race. F. W. Zacharias' Blitz Dart withstood a long drive to be a going away winner at a $17.40 mutuel.

Miss Prime just about sewed up the championship here today when she won her sixth race of the meeting in the colors of J. N. Barnes. Taken to the front at the break, Miss Prime never gave the opposition a chance, galloping along in front under the handling of Jockey Eddie Ballenger.

Two lengths behind the 4-year-old filly came A. S. Moore's Gal Royal to be second. Third money went to J. K. Wynkoop's Dr. Johnson. Miss Prime was the shortest price of the day at a $3 mutuel.

Apprentice R. D. (Rural Delivery) Jones won a purse race with the locally owned Rogers Moose carrying the colors of Mrs. M. M. Dunaway. He took the Bull Moose gelding to the feont and stayed there, leading Runnesta Moose and Ringtime to the wire. The winner paid $4.80.

Swede Star Ousts Parker at Wimbledon

By Gayle Talbot

London, June 25 (AP).—Lennart Bergelin, a long-legged Swede with a boarding house reach, pulled one of the classic upsets of Wimbledon tennis history today when he defeated Frankie Parker of Los Angeles in a gripping five-set struggle on the center court.

The 32-year-old American star, seeded first and a heavy favorite to win the singles title, went down by scores of 5—7, 7—5, 9—7, 0—6, 10—8, after more than three hours of play before 15,000 exhausted fans.

Paired With King

The unseeded Bergelin, only 23 and a favorite doubles partner of King Gustav of Sweden, played probably the greatest tennis of his career in battling his way to the quarter-finals.

Fighting his heart out to add a Wimbledon title to his long list of tennis honors, Parker led at 5—3 in the deciding set, only to let Bergelin get away.

The Swede, only a game from defeat, swarmed to the net to pull the vital ninth game out of the fire after four deuces and then went on to victory.

Only one disturbing note marred the epic duel. That came in the same ninth game, when Bergelin developed a cramp in his right leg and began limping.

Parker, a thorough little sportsman, asked his rival to rest a moment, and then obviously desisted from hitting sharply angled shots until the Swede had gotten over the worst of it.

From there to the end, Bergelin did considerable limping. Yet on the final point he dashed to the net to smash away Parker's weak return and then vaulted the net like an Olympic candidate to wring Frankie's hand.

"Must have cleared that net by four feet," marvelled an English fan.

Swede Strong at Net

The Swede was able to take command at the net when he needed to, while Parker could not, and that finally brought Frankie's downfall.

Bergelin's quarter-final opponent probably will be another American, tall Bob Falkenburg, who should survive his bout tomorrow with Frank Sedgman of Australia.

Brown put out Dilip Bose, an Indian Davis Cupper, 4—6, 8—6, 6—4, 6—4, while Mulloy trounced Jack Harper of Australia, 7—5, 6—0, 6—4, gaining revenge for a beating Harper gave him two weeks ago to gain the quarter-finals.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont of Wilmington, Del., defending champion in the women's division, scored an easy 6—2, 6—2, victory over Mrs. G. Blaise-Terwindt of The Netherlands to enter the fourth round.

Shirley Fry Gains

Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, fifth seeded American woman, defeated Mrs. Betty Hilton, British Wightman Cup player, 6—1, 1—6, 6—2. But Joan Curry of Britain eliminated Betty Scofield, Miami (Fla.) University collegian, 7—3, 6—4.

Doris Hart of Miami and Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., opened the defense of their women's doubles title with a businesslike 6—0, 6—3, triumph over Mrs. Owen Anderson of Los Angeles and Miss R. F. Woodgate of England.

Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Dupont eliminated Miss J. Coles and Miss K. L. A. Tucker of Britain, 6—0, 6—2, to join the Hart-Todd duo in the third round.

Brown and Mulloy reached the third round in men's doubles by turning back Sumant Misra and Subh Sawhney, an Indian pair, 6—1, 5—7, 4—6, 7—5, 6—3, Budge Patty teamed with Philippe Washer of Belgium to oust two Britons, Meredith and Dennis Snart, 6—2, 6—4, 6—1.

Gloria Butler of New York and Argyle Rice of Hartford, Conn., survived their first round test in women's doubles, beating Mrs. J. David and Miss O. Miskova of Britain, 3—6, 6—3, 11—9.

Miss Fry and Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles moved up with a 6—0, 6—2, triumph over Margaret de Borman and Mrs. J. E. Meulemeester of Belgium.

Harvard Crew Beats Out Yale by ⅓ Length

Riegel, Kraft Gain Finals

Kansas City, June 25 (AP).—Skee Riegel, of Glendale, Calif., the National Amateur champion, and the veteran John Kraft, Denver, won their way into the finals of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament today without burning much energy.

Riegel, the 1946 Trans-Mississippi champion, defeated young Lawrence Glosser, Oklahoma City, 8 and 6, and Kraft, the 1942 titlist, breezed past Irl Oliver, of Kansas City, 7 and 6.

Riegel and Kraft will meet for the championship in a 36-hole match over the 6700 par-72 Mission Hills Country Club course tomorrow.

Both semifinal matches found the winner playing subpar golf on the soggy course. Each winner led 5-up at the turn of nine holes.

Riegel birdied the first three holes and Glosser began to show "nerve" trouble.

A stroke under par going out, Riegel closed the match, two under par for the distance, with a 12-foot putt for a birdie three on the twelfth hole.

Glosser, four strokes over at the turn, drove into the trees from the tenth tee and hooked into the rough on the next hole to finish six strokes over regulation figures.

Clean Sweep For Crimson In 3 Events

New London, Conn., June 25 (AP).—Harvard's powerful varsity crew ran its victory streak over Yale to 10 in a row late today with a third of a length downstream course record.

The plucky Elis, rowing their hearts out, led at the end of the first half mile and the start of the last half mile, but Harvard was just too good as it swept the silvery Thames River just before twilight.

The Crimson, stroked by the brilliant Bill Curwen, last of a famed Harvard family of rowers, rallied in the home stretch to win the four-mile grind in 19:21.4. Yale trailed in 19:23. Both broke the course record of 19:51.8, set by the Blue in 1934.

Harvard's freshmen and junior varsity boats, underdogs, won the preliminary races handily to give the Crimson a perfect afternoon.

An estimated 30,000 saw the eighty-third revival of America's oldest intercollegiate crew scrap. By winning, Harvard put Coach Tom Bolles in a class by himself. He's the first coach to run up seven straight triumphs in this classic.

Their private feud over for 1948, both varsities now head for the Olympic trials at Princeton, N. J., over the 2000-meter distance next week.

Old salts who saw the thrilling 4-miler claimed it ranked with the most exciting ever put on here. The Crimson and the Blue swapped positions twice.

Yale, with its revamped crew paced by Waddy Blair, surprised those who had made Harvard a favorite by jumping away to a half-length lead at the start near Bartletts Cove. The Blue opened with a killing 42, but quickly settled down to a 33, one stroke more than Harvard.

And then the Elis, rowing at Harvard's more conservative pace, lengthened their lead to three quarters of a length at the half-mile flag.

Harvard, rowing with confidence and precision, caught Yale near the mile line and led by a deck moments later. It was the Crimson by a quarter length at the mile and a half mark and open water at the submarine base, the halfway target.

The Blue, fighting desperately, and rowing at 34, cut the margin by a quarter shortly afterward and as they powered into the last mile, Harvard set the pace by a narrowing one half length.

Then came Yale's sensational sprint. Stroke by stroke, Blair called for everything the Blue oarsmen could give him, and the Elis responded. With a half mile to go, Yale shot in front by a deck length.

It was Curwen's turn to call on Harvard's reserve power. And he got it.

With both crews thundering into the home stretch, near the towering vehicular bridge, Harvard's Eastern sprint champs barely sped across in front by 1.6 seconds.

Maryland Holds Four Regattas This Weekend

Baltimore, June 25 (AP).—Speed sailors will barge into the Maryland racing picture this weekend with two regattas scheduled for motor boats.

Band Leader Guy Lombardo's attempt to set a new world's record will feature the fifth annual Wilson Point Regatta on Middle River Saturday and Sunday.

The Potomac Fish and Game Club will be host Sunday to about 30 outboard drivers.

The sailboat enthusiasts will not be neglected, two Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association events being slated. The Fairhaven Sailing Club Regatta will be run Saturday and Sunday, and the Potapskut Sailing Association will sponsor a regatta Sunday.

THEY'RE NEVER TOO YOUNG—Roller skating comes easy to one-year-old Herbert Roger Daisley, jr., who claims he's the youngest bona fide amateur in the United States, or at least his dad enters the claim for him. By the time he was 11 months, young Herbert had received his A. A. U. card. Here, he gets some pointers from Willis Winstead, 1240 Wisconsin ave. nw., who competes in the A. A. Mize Belts 15th, Giants Beat Reds, 7-0

New York, June 25 (AP).—Ray Poat went the distance for the first time since June 6 today, pitching the New York Giants to a 7-0 three-hit triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Giants won the game in the opening inning when Johnny Mize belted his fifteenth homer of the season with one on off young Herman Wehmeier, Mize's long fly ball in the third enabled Buddy Kerr to score from third with the Giants' third run.

Poat, in gaining his sixth win and third shutout of the year, held the Reds to three hits, fanned four and walked only one.

Golden Boys Lead in Golf

Toledo, Ohio, June 25 (AP).—Golfdom's golden boys, colorful Jimmy Demaret and National Open-PGA Champion Ben Hogan, grabbed a commanding lead today in their quest to make it three straight in the $10,650 Inverness best-ball matches.

The two transplanted Texans boosted their match play points to 6 plus 7. They racked up two victories, giving them a three-point edge going into the final four rounds of the 126-hole classic.

Hogan and Demaret, winners the last two years and three of the last four, eased out a one-up win over Lloyd Mangum and Dick Metz this morning and then turned on the heat this afternoon for a three-up victory over Bobby Locke of South Africa and Ed Furgol of Detroit.

Furgol and Locke were cofavorites with the former Texans to cop the championship, but couldn't stand the pace set by their foes. The verdict might have been larger, but Furgol chipped in a 20-yard birdie on the final hole to cancel a 1-foot birdie putt by Demaret.

Back of the leaders with a 6 plus 4 score were E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock, and Bob Hamilton, former PGA king from Evansville, who shot a pair of 63s today, their third straight.

The first 63 gained only an even break with Chick Harbert of Detroit and Vic Ghezzi of Kansas City, but the second gave them a two-up win over big Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., and Herman Keiser of Akron, who skidded into a third-place tie after leading at the end of yesterday's opening round.

Demand $1000

Horsemen Reject Purse Cut Of $200 Asked by Hagerstown

Baltimore, June 25 (AP).—The Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association has rejected a proposal that the minimum purse at the Hagerstown Race Track be dropped to $800, Vice President John A. Manfuso announced.

Manfuso, representative for the Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia area, said the proposal was rejected at a recent meeting of owners and trainers who expect to campaign on the Free State half-mile circuit this summer.

Manfuso said the HBPA will ask all the Marland half-mile tracks to keep a minimum purse of $1000 and to give at least $8200 daily.

The Hagerstown track had to cut its concluding program last year from eight to seven races when an owners' boycott developed. The owners had asked that at least two $1200 races be offered daily and one $1500 event each Saturday.

The track refused, preferring to offer one less race than meet the demands for bigger purses.

Cumberland will open the half-mile circuit this season on July 20. The horse caravans then will move to Hagerstown, Marlboro, Timonium and Bel Air.

Marlboro, the frequently criticized track in southern Maryland, will operate with the same facilities which have been censured by the Racing Commission. But immediately after its meeting in mid-August it will start rebuilding.

Marlboro was granted a license for this summer on the stipulation it would show the commission contracts for rebuilding before start of the meeting. It did this recently.

Second Invades

Fort Meade, Md., June 25 (AP).—The Second Army baseball team will invade West Virginia for four games early next month. The Army nine will play at Warsaw on July 3, Fairmont July 6, Parkersburg July 8 and Beckley July 10.

Show on Today At Warrenton

Warrenton, Va., June 25 (AP).—The Warrenton Pony Show, oldest event of its kind in the country, starts here tomorrow at 9 a. m. with nearly 100 ponies expected from stables in and out of Virginia.

The show continues through Sunday, when final awards are to be made. Thirty classes are on the two-day program, with 450 entries listed. The show, as in the past, will be operated entirely by youngsters. Riders must be 18 years or younger.

Included on the program is a $100 hunter stake class. Champions will also be crowned Sundey in three hunter and open jump divisions.

Sunday's program starts at 2:30 p. m. and ends with the presentation of championships.

NLRB Rejects Foreman as Employe Voice

The National Labor Relations Board ruled unanimously yesterday that a group of employes seeking to overthrow a union in their plant may not be represented by a supervisor.

The order was the first of its kind under the Taft-Hartley Act and marked a victory for the United Mine Workers' District 50.

W. S. Monroe, a foreman for Clyde J. Merris, Canon City, Colo., truck operator, petitioned the board to recertify the union. His petition was filed on behalf of workers hired to replace employes on strike.

In dismissing the petition, the board said that one purpose of the new labor law is to draw a sharp line between employes and "supervisory representatives of management."

"To permit supervisors to act as employe representatives would defeat the purposes of the act," it said.

Third Parley Held in Rail Wage Dispute

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman met again yesterday with leaders of the three unions in the railroad wage dispute.

The White House announced that Steelman talked with the three for 45 minutes, but gave no indication that progress, if any, was made.

Eben Ayers, assistant White House Secretary, said management representatives will meet with Steelman at 10 a. m. (EST) today.

Steelman is trying to find a basis for settlement that would permit the Government to relinquish control of the roads to private management. It was his third meeting with the unions in as many days.

The unions involved—the locomotive engineers, firemen and enginemen, and switchmen—are under a temporary court order not to strike while the Government remains in control of the carriers.

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough, who issued the order, has said he will decide June 29 whether to keep the injunction in force.

The three unions had called a strike for May 11 after refusing to accept a 15½ cents an hour wage boost and holding out for changes in working rules.

Fire Chief Loans Pump Truck to Police Boys Camp

Battalion Chief Morris H. Clarke presented a fully equipped reserve pump truck to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club on behalf of the District Fire Department yesterday in ceremonies at the Municipal Building.

The pump, valued at $20,000 when it was purchased 26 years ago, is on loan for 12 weeks to the Police Boys Club for use at their Camp Ernest W. Brown in Scotland, Md., which previously had to rely on nearby volunteer fire companies for protection. Four D. C. policemen, who will be on the camp's staff this summer and are graduates of the Fire Department pump school, will man the equipment.

The first contingent of 175 boys will arrive at Camp Brown next Monday for a two-week stay. The camp will be open for 12 weeks, and is supplied with food from its own 38-acre farm.

Paris, June 25 (AP).—Movie Actress Rita Hayworth, ill since a cocktail party nearly three weeks ago, is being treated for anemia at a hospital here. She has been given a blood transfusion and is expected to be well in a few days.

College Head Sees Federal Control In School Aids

Green Lake, Wis., June 25 (AP).—Dr. Donald Cowling, president emeritus of Carleton College, opened a conference on administration of church related schools last night with an attack on Federal subsidies to education.

He told 300 presidents and officials of 125 church colleges that Federal subsidies would lead to control of higher education and would be against American traditions.

Favoring private financing as a bulwark of free education, Dr. Cowling said Government control of education made dictatorships possible in Europe and might in this country.

The conference is sponsored by the Association of Northern Baptist Educational Institutions

One on the Aisle—

Just How Idiotic Can People Get?

By Richard L. Coe

LIKE THE ROAD to Uno, the Capitol's "Big City" is paved with good intentions. It comes right out for tolerance.

The kind of tolerance it seems to plump for, however, is something apart from its story of how a baby girl is adopted by a Jewish cantor, a Roman Catholic cop and a Protestant minister. What it seems to be for, much more than religious tolerance, is patience with general stupidity, that if you just let everything go and behave as idiotically as possible, everything will come out right in the end.

"Big City" tells of the discovery of a baby girl on a city doorstep, virtually at the same moment, by the cantor, the cop and the minister. All three want to adopt the child. Since they're bachelors, this requires a special dispensation on the part of the law. But Edward Arnold makes this possible with the proviso that the first of the men to be married and his wife will become the legal parents of the child.

Nothing happens to alter the situation until the baby becomes Margaret O'Brien. Then George Murphy, the cop, falls in love with a barroom singer, Betty Garrett; at the same time both the cantor, Danny Thomas, and the minister, Robert Preston, fall in love with the same schoolteacher, Karin Booth.

It matters not to either of these men, according to the script, what Miss Booth's faith may be. They both know only that they Love Her. But their fury at Murphy for having married and broken up the home the cantor and his mother have made for Margaret unites them.

Now the supposition that three grown men, particularly two of them as ministers of God, behaving in so childish, idiotic a manner in a situation which required only a modicum of honesty and good sense, strikes me as considerably more insulting and tasteless than anything the film tries to say about tolerance. If we are to have a film about tolerance, the answer certainly is not in setting up a straw situation.

The judge finally sets things straight after a maximum of yuckety-yuckety. The dramatic license of such an irregular adoption one may be willing to accept; adopting children is considerably more of a complex matter than the film suggests. Still, accepting that, it is impossible also to accept so unlikely a situation as the three members of the three faiths behaving in so puerile a manner. If nothing else, "Big City" is a depressing reflection on our theological seminaries.

Of such a film as this, with so definite and laudable an aim, it is impossible just to accept it as a vehicle for Miss O'Brien and let it go at that. Small wonder that Hollywood strives to avoid films with a message if this is the sort of situation it considers a message.

The production is what one would expect, righteous praise for our customs, laws and faith. Miss O'Brien strains to bursting at her tearful predicament, the Messrs. Murphy, Thomas and Preston behave exactly as you would expect them to in such contrived situations. Lotte Lehmann makes her film debut as the cantor's mother, singing a bit in their apartment ("Oh for ze dayz of ze Kerry Danzes") and Betty Garrett makes hers as the night club singer whose slang (such as "sharp") completely demolishes both the cantor and the minister, though both their jobs take them among youngsters to whose slang, presumably, they are totally deaf. Miss Garrett is about the only breath of vitality in the whole self-conscious, self-righteous celluloid.

one knows, is a mightly experienced hand with a song, ably headlines the Capitol's stage bill, which further includes the fantasies of the Richard-Adair dancers; the juggling of Mexico's Rudy Cardenas and the comedy of Terry and Ralph Rio. On tap for the orchestrial overture is Carol Norman.

"BIG CITY," an MGM picture produced by Joe Pasternak, directed by Norman Taurog, screen play by Whitfield Cook and Anne Morrison Chapin, additional dialogue by Aben Kandel, based on a story by Miklos Laszio, as adapted by Nanette Kutner, songs by Irving Berlin, Fred Spielman and Janice Torre, Jimmy McHugh, Inez James and Sidney Miller, Walter Popp and Harry Seelen. TOLERANCE of a less synthetic, more dynamic sort than the Capitol's film may be practiced tonight at the Uline Arena, where Paul Robeson will be offering his first postwar performance of the "Ballad for Americans," with the Galbraith A. M. E. Zion choir as the choral background . . . Here you have a man who has been roundly attacked for exerting the same freedom of speech we all say is American . . . Along with Robeson may be Joe Louis, unless rain, after this paragraph is written, upsets his well-known Friday night schedule elsewhere . . . This "Evening of Entertainment" also will include Alma Montgomery and will be sponsored by the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America and the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church.

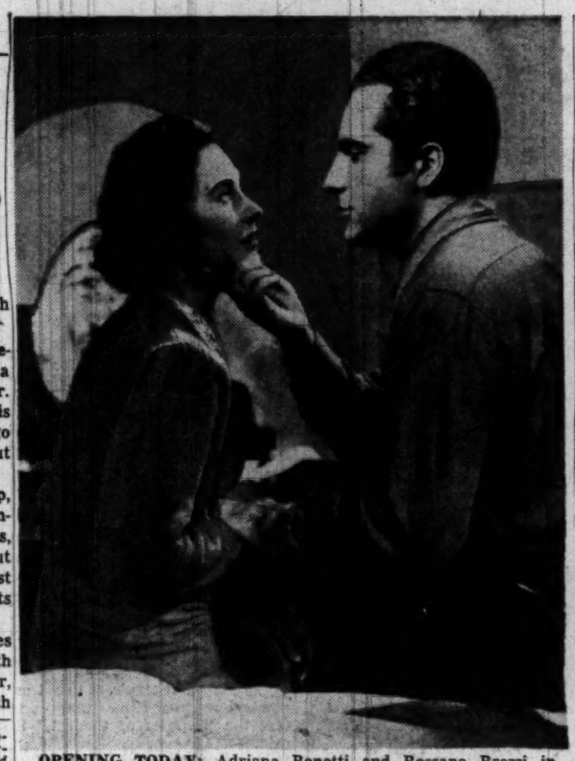
THROUGH "circumstances beyond our control," the byline for yesterday morning's review of the Warner's "Hazard" was missing: not only that, but the very Pearl of conscientiousness in the composing room also waylaid some type . . . The review, for the record, was by Orval Hopkins.

SAM BROWN'S WINX program, from 4:30 to 8 p. m. Mondays through Saturdays, will be explaining a presumably easy way of latching onto $150 in cash prizes plus tickets to Keith's . . . All in honor of next week's return of "The Best Years of Our Lives" for the first time at "popular prices."

WEEKENDING: Clyde Moody and his "Grand Ole Opry" associates will be on hand for an hour of mountain music for Connie B. Gay at Hecht's record department this afternoon at 3 . . . Gene Krupa and his band, including singers Buddy Hughes and Dolores Hawkins, are tonight's attraction at the Chesapeake Beach Park . . . "Jenny Kissed Me" will be revived Sunday night at Catholic University for a week's run; tickets may be reserved at MIchigan 6000, extension 358.



OPENING TODAY: Adriana Benetti and Rossano Brazzi in "Furia," the Italian film of a passionate group of farm folk, opening at the Hippodrome this afternoon

Aluminum Co. Raises Wages And Prices

Pittsburgh, June 25 (AP).—A new wage agreement was reached today between the Aluminum Co. of America and the CIO-United Steelworkers Union providing pay hikes of 10 to 16 cents hourly for 18,000 CIO workers.

The Aluminum company immediately announced it would increase its basic price for aluminum by 1 cent per pound—the first such increase in 11 years.

The current increase brings the price of 99 per cent aluminum pig to 15 cents per pound, and of the large-size 99 per cent ingot to 16 cents a pound.

A company statement said " . . . ALCOA cannot continue to withstand the effect of advancing cost factors."

A statement by President Philip Murray of the Steelworkers Union and the CIO, said the settlement provided an average increase of 10 per cent.

Under the agreement, all terms of the present contract are extended until May, 1950 with the Steelworkers reserving the right to reopen the wage clauses next year.

The agreement headed off a strike which had been set for Sunday midnight.

14-Cent Increase Demanded at Ford

Detroit, June 25 (AP).—Revamped demands adding up to 28 cents an hour were handed to the Ford Motor Co. today by union representatives of the company's 110,000 hourly-rated employes.

Half of that figure—14 cents—was sought as an across-the-board raise by the CIO United Auto Workers. The remainder was demanded in the form of a company-financed medical program, higher night differential pay, more money for vacations, higher call-in pay and other benefits.

Earlier this week the UAW had turned down a Ford offer of a 14-cent hourly boost to employes earning more than the $1.50 average and a 11-cent hike to those making less. That proposal made no provision for so-called "fringe" benefits.

The union noted its 14-cent demand was higher than the industry pattern. But it contended the cost of living had risen still higher since Chrysler Corp. settled for a flat 13-cent boost and General Motors Corp. granted an adjustable 11-cent hike late in May.

Of the remaining 14 cents, the UAW said, 8 would be needed to cover a hospitalization, health and medical program. This would be based on 5 per cent of the payroll. The other benefits were estimated to cost the equivalent of 6 cents an hour.

John S. Bugas, Ford vice president and head negotiator, declined comment on the UAW counter-proposal pending further study. Other company spokesmen indicated it would be rejected.

The union negotiating committee said the offer represented a "sacrifice" by the Ford workers and "leaves no room for horse-trading." A statement by the committee said the workers "are prepared to exercise their constitutional, democratic right to strike."

Demands originally presented to Ford more than a month ago included a 30-cent hourly raise and numerous nonwage concessions.

These other developments were reported on the automotive front:

1. Ford's final assemby lines at its big Rouge plant were halted today by a parts shortage. The one-day shutdown idled 25,000 workers.

2. Kaiser-Frazer Corp. stopped production for the third straight day after another unauthorized walkout of a handful of engine assembly workers. The company, sending 8500 employes home, said the strikers blamed the heat and subsequent disciplinary action for their walkout.

3. Chrysler Corp.'s Plymouth division sent home 8500 emplyoes after a dispute at the Briggs Manufacturing Co. cut off its car body supply. A Briggs spokesman said 800 employes in one department refused to work becaus eof an overtime dispute and forced Briggs to lay off 2000 others.

Gold Plaque Dedication

A gold plaque in memory of Knights of Pythias members who died in the two world wars will be dedicated at ceremonies Sunday at 3 p. m. at the amphitheatre of Arlington Cemetery. The plaque will be presented by Willard M. Kent of Ithaca, N. Y., supreme chancellor of K. of P.

Living Costs Hit New High In Mid-May

Shrinkage of housewives' budgeting dollars to a new low recorded in mid-May with another new "peak" in Washington's living costs, Bureau of Labor Statistics' reports showed yesterday.

On May 15, moderate-income families here paid 21.6 per cent more for meats, poultry and fish than they did a year ago.

Dairy products were 18.2 per cent higher than May 15, 1947.

Canned Foods Down

With an 11.7 rise for all foods during the year, only canned fruits and vegetables (down 11 per cent) and fats and oils (down 5.3) showed a decrease during the year in any major category.

Wearing apparel was up 8.5 per cent over May 15 of last year; house-furnishings up 8.6; fuel, electricity and ice 10.8 per cent higher.

On May 15, in Washington, $2.097 was required to buy the same amount of food that $1 would buy in the 1935-39 base period, and food costs were primarily responsible in pushing the over-all living cost index on May 15 to 166.7 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

The increase is generally comparable with other cost rises across the Nation.

Between February 15 and May 15 of this year, prices for all goods and services in Washington rose 2.1 per cent, making the February break in prices only a dim memory.

Meat Prices Soar

From mid-April to mid-May, prices for lamb advanced 11.5 per cent, beef and veal 8.6 per cent, pork, 4.2 per cent. Present indications are that since the mid-May survey period there has been a further sharp rise in meat prices here.

In the same 30-day period ending May 15, prices for many vegetables soared, with the threatened railroad strike probably a factor. Lettuce prices climbed 46.4 per cent; carrots up 20.6 per cent, potatoes up 6.2 per cent. Onion prices fell 34.4 per cent, primarily because of seasonal changes.

Between February 15 and May 15, apparel prices rose 2.4 per cent here, with higher prices for men's wool suits, women's cotton street dresses, rayon housedresses, and men's and women's shoes. In the same three-month period, residential rents increased one half of one per cent.

D. C. Aid Grant Rise Approved

omy ceiling set in the memorandum that banned new services and expansion of present services in the 1950 fiscal year.

Clapp pointed out that no new services are being asked for, however. Thamburg said:

"The board considered the Commissioners' memorandum today, but felt that the Commissioners should be informed of the total needs. We believe we can sit down with the budget officer and work out what parts of the program could be attained."

Present averages of assistance compare with the proposed amounts as follows:

General public assistance cases, now averaging about $43 a month, would be $48 under the revised budget guide; old-age assistance cases, now $40, would average $45; blind recipients would go from $45 to $50, while cases under aid to dependent children would receive an increase from a $76 average to about $92.

Cases in the first three categories are mostly individuals, while the average ADC case has four persons in the family being aided.

The new standard was made possible by somewhat more 1949 fiscal year funds available, and increases of $5 a month for old-age and blind grants, and $3 for child aid, under the Federal Social Security program.

Estimates for 1950 also provide for the reinstatement of special diets for persons receiving assistance, on doctor's orders. Provision for such diets was discontinued last August.

A supplementary statement accompanying the estimates recommends bringing the budget guide up to current costs of living "when and if funds become available." Also recommended is a ceiling of $160 a month for grants made to any one case for basic items, which would affect an estimated 20 to 30 cases under the revised budget grants.

The board voted to take no action against men and boys involved in the cases of 12 unmarried mothers under 16 years of age. This had been recommended by Clapp, who stated the District attorney's office found no action justified in any of the cases. The board asked for a further report on such cases brought to the agency's attention during the next six months.

Gambler Gets Limit in Appeal

5911 Harrison ave., Riverdale, Md., was arrested in Prince Georges County on a gambling charge. On June 3, Morrow paid a $1250 fine in Hyattsville and received a one-year suspended sentence.

Morrow's attorney, Joseph B. Simpson, noted intention again to appeal his client's conviction in Montgomery County. Morrow was released in $500 bond.

In District Court yesterday, Justice Alexander Holtzoff said he would give "another chance" to Mrs. Delores Holley, 24, of 626 Otis pl. nw., charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

He gave her a 30-to-90-day suspended sentence and two years' probation, after her lawyer termed her "a victim of unfortunate circumstances," without previous record.

Mrs. Genevieve Dandridge, 53, of 607 L st. ne., named in the same charges, received a similar sentence by Holtzoff "in view of this defendant's age and sex and the fact she has no prior record."

George R. Williams, 31, of 1108 3d st. se., Apt. 3, charged with operating a lottery, was fined $100 and given a 30-90-day suspended sentence and two years' probation, "in view of his excellent employment record."

Taylor Oliver, 21, of 1109 4th st. se., Apt. 21, who was arrested with Williams, was termed by Justice Holtzoff "more than just a numbers writer." Holtzoff said Oliver had no substantial employment record for two years, and sentenced him to 30 to 90 days in jail.

Alexandria Jury Probes King Street Conditions

Details Withheld But Disorderly Conduct Has Been Cause of Complaint

A five-man Alexandria grand jury began questioning city officials yesterday in what was believed to be the first step toward cracking down upon disorderliness along downtown King st.

Although details of the investigation and expected clean-up were withheld, it was learned that action was taken in response to mounting complaints of drunkenness and disorderliness.

The wide-ranging nature of the probe was indicated yesterday when grand jury foreman Arthur F. Campbell sought another session to draw up recommendations after having taken six and a half hours of testimony from city officials.

Jerry Kluttz Is Back
Publication of the Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz will be resumed in Sunday's issue of The Washington Post.

Only One Comment

Only comment on the line of questioning taken by the investigating group came from a juror, Ernest L. Mankin, railroad clerk of 210 N. Patrick st., who merely said the jury was considering "municipal problems."

Witnesses called before the jury, however, are all connected with the King st. problem in some manner. Appearing before the group were:

Maj. Edgar Sims, city police head; Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan, who hears drunk cases; Health Officer W. Louis Schafer, jr., whose responsibility is sanitary conditions in these places; Alexandria ABC Inspectors W. W. Duncan, jr., and M. K. Bryant, who supervise sale of alcoholic drinks.

Also appearing before the investigators were Policeman Marshall E. Reid, "the man on the beat" along the 400 block of King st., and Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., whose duty it is to prosecute violations of the peace.

Major Sims admitted to reporters that the jury questioned him on ways and means of cleaning up troublesome places in and near the 400 block of King st.—the focal point of constant complaints of drunks loitering around beer parlors, annoying women and causing a general nuisance.

License Refused

As recently as last week, the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board refused to renew the beer license of Lyle's Billard Parlor, 415 King st., which had been target of many complaints.

After concluding the Session Foreman Campbell told Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls the jury would like to reconvene some day next week to draw up recommendations to the court. Campbell, who lives at 2000 Russell rd. and is president of a construction company, said no more witnesses would be called.

Other members of the jury were Irvin Hufford, 2915 King st., restaurateur; W. Bruce Silcox, 3502 Cameron Mills rd., Government employe, and Edward W. Dixon, 218 N. Alfred st., plasterer.

Questioned the longest period of time were Major Sims and Schafer, each closeted with the jury for an hour and a half. Other interview periods ran from 10 minutes for Bryant to three quarters of an hour for Smith and Judge Duncan.

Retired Soldier Dies Of Strangulation

Lacy S. Hall, 58, 230 11th st. se., patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, died last night apparently from strangulation from his own belt.

District Crime Reports Put at Police Fingertips By New Code Index System Called Best in Country

Devices Installed After 'Pocketing' Disclosed by The Washington Post

Was the safecracker who broke into a certain store on a certain night last month lefthanded? And did he have a scar on his right cheek?

And how many traffic accidents occur between the hours of 2 and 3 a. m., when it's raining? And where do most of them happen?

Simple, Watson, just turn on that IBM machine.

It's a fact, police can now learn the answers to these and even more complicated problems by sending punched code cards through one of those mechanical marvels of IBM.

Followed Disclosures

The new crime and traffic reporting system of the police department, handled by the central communications and records bureau, is responsible.

The new system was installed after disclosures last June in The Washington Post that reports of thousands of crimes were being pocketed, that they never found their way into official police statistics.

The disclosures were verified by Federal Bureau of Investigation experts who made a survey at the request of Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett.

Washington's new crime reporting system is modeled on the uniform crime reporting procedure indorsed by the FBI and the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Called Best in Country

An IBM spokesman said the system installed here gives Washington the best and most up-to-date crime-reporting system and file in the country.

The new system was put into effect January 1, after Inspector Floyd Truscott, executive officer of the Police Department, had toured eight large American cities to study their methods of reporting crimes.

It has taken time and a great deal of work to put the new system into effect. In fact, it won't be completely in effect before mid-July, according to the estimate of Lieut. Earl P. Hartman, who is in charge of statistics in the central communications and records bureau, or the CC & R, as it is more briefly known.

The same reporting procedure and code index filing for traffic accidents will go into effect July 1.

The public benefits greatly by the new procedure because police service is speedier.

What Follows Report

For example, there is a shooting in Northwest Washington. A citizen reports the crime by telephoning Executive 2060, which is the direct line to the CC & R room.

The operator who receives the complaint throws a key. In an adjoining room, separated by a glass partition, is the radio room. The radio dispatcher picks up his phone and he hears the report, too.

He glances at a map on the wall, a map that twinkles with many lights, each one representing a scout car or other police vehicle in service. Before the caller has hung up, the radio dispatcher has radioed scout cars and perhaps motorcyle men to proceed to the scene.

This simple instance sets off a series of steps in the reporting procedure that sounds complicated —and is.

The clerk who receives the call writes the facts of the complaint tersely on a slip. This is given a CC & R number and the time of the call is noted before it is passed through a chute to the radio dispatcher to aid him in his work.

Notes Initial Action

When the scout car reports back to the radio dispatcher from the scene of the shooting, the dispatcher briefly notes on the slip what initial action was taken, if any.

The slip then travels back to the CC & R room to telephone operators with direct lines to all the precincts. If further action is indicated, the operator calls the precinct where the crime occurred.

The operator informs the precinct what CC & R number has been given the complaint and in turn is told what precinct number will be given the precinct report of the shooting.

Henceforth all official police records of the shooting must bear both the CC&R and precinct numbers. If a teletype is sent or if the detective bureau becomes involved, the records must be assigned teletype and detective bureau numbers that also remain constant.

Now to the Scene

Now to the scene of the shooting. The scout car officers must fill out an offense report before going off duty that gives all details of the shooting. If an arrest is made they fill out an additional form.

The offense report and the arrest report, if there has been an arrest, must be in the hands of the CC & R within 24 hours.

In the C C & R fileroom a clerk makes five copies of a file record on the report. One copy goes to the name file. Another is filed according to street and house number. Copies also go to the precinct, the detective bureau and the detective squad assigned to the case.

The shooting report and the others that have come in are transferred in IBM code to a master sheet. No names go on this sheet. However, it details the nature of the offense, date and time of occurrence, statistics on the complainant and offender or offenders, the method used, what tools or weapons were used, in what section of the city the occurrence took place.

If property has been stolen, the symbols on the master sheet relate the estimated value, whether it was insured, whether it was recovered. The master sheet contains 71 columns.

80 Separate Items

There is a similar coding sheet for arrests with 80 separate items for each arrest. Each entry on the master sheet tells what type of offense has been committed and the exact time of the offense. It gives the sex, color, nationality, age, marital status and occupation of the offender and tells what the court disposition was.

If this was a traffic charge, it tells what the operator's permit number is.

These code symbols on the master sheet are translated into so many punches on a card by an IBM machine.

The machine, which sorts 450 cards a minute, can, for example, pick out all cards concerning homicides. Or perhaps police traffic experts want to know how many accidents have occurred during rush hours at 14th and Harvard sts. nw. The IBM machine digs out the right cards.

The new system also provides for a supplementary or progress report by officers investigating complaints. One progress report must be made to the CC & R within seven days. If the case is still open, another report must be made within 30 days.

The Police Department has also changed the form of its arrest record cards. The old cards, in use since 1902, made it necessary that a new card be used every time a person was arrested.

The new cards, in addition to giving a complete description of the person arrested, provide for as many as 20 arrests of one person.

A force of 25 stenographers in the CC&R has been going through files of the old cards and transfering them to the new cards. This has been a herculean task, for there are 2,784,000 cards (old style) of criminal arrests. Also to be transferred are more than a million records of arrests by the traffic division and a large number of arrests recorded in Detective Bureau files.

In traffic cases and arrests, the same procedure as outlined above will be followed. A new form for traffic accident reports has been devised to comply with the requirements and suggestions of the National Safety Council.

The information contained in the traffic accident reports will be punched in code on the IBM cards. One, the property damage card, will tell where and when the accident happened. It will also give such details as whether the driver's vision was obscured, whether he was drinking and what the weather conditions were.

The second, the personal injury card, gives statistics on persons killed or injured in traffic accidents.

Much of the IBM work has been done by boys from the National Training School for Boys, voluntarily. An IBM training program has been in operation at the school for several years.

Although rental and upkeep of the IBM machines cost police only $89 a month, the new system has resulted in other expenses. Such as $17,000 for office equipment; $70,000 a year for staff, and $35,000 (to date) spent in transferring arrest records to new cards.

Inspector Truscott was largely responsible for the installation of the new system and now supervises it closely. Head of the CC&R is Capt. John J. Agnew.

1. A CRIME REPORT is radio-telephoned from the scene to Police Headquarters by Policeman William J. Gaylor. His scout car partner, Policeman Ernest R. Cox, stands by. Later a written report is forwarded to the Central Communications and Records Bureau, where it is recorded on a master report

2. AN IBM CARD of the reported crime is cut from a master report sheet at headquarters by Barbara Schwartz of 1801 16th st. nw. IBM cards, which are sorted at the rate of 450 per minute, furnish information on crime areas or types, sought by the Detective Bureau

3. FEDERAL WARDS LEND A HAND—Youths of the National Training School for Boys are helping the Metropolitan Police Department catch up on a backlog of work and at the same time are learning a trade by cutting IBM crime report cards for the new police filing system. Air Officer Kills 2 Children in Bed, Takes Own Life

Shots Are Heard By Pregnant Wife; 'Thought He Was Trying to Scare Me'

An Army Air Force captain yesterday shot and killed his two sleeping children and then committed suicide, in a tragic climax to an apparently minor domestic quarrel.

The triple shooting occurred in the upstairs bedrooms of the family's rented row house in Alexandria, Va., while the seven-month pregnant mother sat downstairs, heard the shots and "thought he was trying to scare me."

Dead were:

Capt. Charles D. Liggett, 27, of 215 Buchanan st., Alexandria, wartime bomber pilot and assistant chief of the flight operations branch, Military Air Transport Service. He died instantly on firing a bullet through his temple.

His daughter, Sharon, 5, who died in Alexandria Hospital at 2:14 a. m., less than a half-hour after she was shot twice in the head.

His son, Fred, 4, who succumbed at the same hospital at 3:50 a. m., also shot twice in the head. Faces of both youngsters bore powder burns, showing they were shot at close range, police said.

Wife Taken to Hospital

Sole survivor was the captain's wife, Mrs. F. Josephine Liggett, 26, who was taken to Walter Reed General Hospital yesterday afternoon, prostrate from shock. She told police the shootings followed her delay over pressing her husband's trousers.

"Do it now, or you'll be sorry," she quoted her husband as saying as he stamped out of the living room and went upstairs.

A short time later, she said, she heard a series of shots—she didn't know how many—and then "a click."

"I thought he was bluffing, just trying to scare me," she told Alexandria Police Detective Sergt. Russell S. Greenwalt.

The "click" she said, was followed shortly by another shot, and the sound of a body falling. She went upstairs to their front bedroom, and found her husband dead on the floor.

Mrs. Liggett went immediately to the downstairs telephone and called police, not knowing her two children lay mortally wounded in their beds above her. She returned upstairs, and found them unconscious and bathed in blood.

Her screams attracted Pvt. Carl Nyberg, Alexandria policeman, who lives next door at 217 Buchanan st.

Sheltered at the Nyberg home till noon, Mrs. Liggett had not been told of the deaths of her boy and girl by the time she was transferred "prostrate with shock," police said, to Walter Reed General Hospital. Last night, her condition was described as "very good," and apparently out of danger of possible miscarriage of her unborn child.

Dr. John A. Sims, Alexandria coroner, issued verdict of two murders and a suicide in the deaths. The weapon, a .25-caliber Italian pistol, was found beside the captain's body.

Events Are Related

Alexandria police said Mrs. Liggett told them the following details of events preceding the tragedy:

The captain arrived home at about 5:30 p. m. Thursday from his work at MATS (formerly Air Transport Service) at Gravelly Point, Va. The family ate supper, and the captain worked on his car a short while. Then the four drove to Washington, where the captain bought a case of beer and a fifth of whisky.

They drove next to the National Airport and parked a short time "so the kids could see the airplanes." And then they went to the Airport Drive-in Theater, on U. S. Route 1, nearby.

Mrs. Liggett told police that her husband drank two cans of beer and several "pulls" of whisky while they watched the movie, "These Three," and the children slept in the back seat. They drove home and put the children to bed.

Leaves Her With Threat

Mrs. Liggett said she and her husband were sitting in their living room later when he asked her to press the trousers of his uniform. He was drinking beer, she said, "but did not seem to be at all drunk." She told him she would do it later.

He left her, with the threat.

The Liggetts were described by most of their past and present neighbors as "a nice family," "a devoted couple" and "an ideal family." However, one former neighbor, Mrs. Ethel Bilbray, of 202 S. St. Asaph st., Alexandria, where the Liggetts had lived for about six months before moving to the Buchanan st. address three months ago, said the captain "had a terrible temper."

"He would just seem to fly off the handle for no reason at all," she said. She added that he was apparently devoted to both his wife and the children.

A native of Wichita, Kans., Liggett entered the Army Air Force in September, 1943, as an aviation cadet after attending Wichita Business School.

He served 18 months overseas with the Ninth Air Force as pilot of a B-26 (medium bomber), in both England and on the European continent. For his air service, he was awarded the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf clusters, signifying he participated in a minimum of 20 but fewer than 25 combat missions.

His military record showed that he was never wounded, nor were there any notations that his ship had ever been disabled by enemy action. At the end of hostilities, he was selected for occupation duty in Germany. Since such duty was assigned to pilots only after careful screening, military authorities said, it was considered unlikely that the captain's air duties had affected his nerves.

Mrs. Liggett lived with her husband in Germany for about one year while he served with the occupation forces, a former neighbor said. The records showed that he came back to United States for service in the training command, and was assigned to duty with MATS, as assistant chief of flight operations, in August 1947.

Officer friends in the Air Force described him as "a hell of a nice fellow" with a quiet sense of humor. One said "maybe he was working too hard," but others could give no reasons that might help explain yesterday morning's tragedy.

Harding Masonic Lodge To Hold Outing Today

The Warren G. Harding Lodge, No. 39, FAAM, will hold an outing for members and guests today from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. in Langdon Park, 20th and Massachusetts ave. ne. A watermelon eating contest between past masters of the lodge will high light the day's events.

Unidentified Woman Leaps To Death From 11th St. Bridge

An unidentified woman leaped to her death from the Eleventh Street Bridge into the Anacostia River about 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

The bridge was jammed with homeward-bound motorists at the time.

One of the motorists, Robert Green, sr., 56, a mechanic of 7351 Fort Foote rd., Fort Foote, Md., said he saw the woman jump.

She was just putting her foot in a hole in the metal guard rail to clamber over the side when he approached, he said. On seeing him looking, she motioned and mumbled, "Go on," he said.

She ran across the bridge and leaped from the opposite side as he opened the car door to stop her, he said.

A First Precinct policeman, Pvt. Martin A. Mann, 1000 Chillum rd., Chillum, Md., who was off duty, attempted to save the woman after she was in the river. She sank out of sight before he could swim the 50 feet from the shore, he said.

Harbor police pulled the woman from the water about 6 p. m. but were unable to revive her. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital.

The woman's pocketbook, which was left on the bridge, contained a quantity of number slips. There were no identifying papers, however, except for a rent receipt for $5 made out to a George Chandler, dated February 12, 1946.

Police described the woman as a heavy set, middle aged Negro. She was wearing a red floral print dress and had a gold wedding band on the small finger of her left hand.

Area News in Brief

Better Jail Alarm System to Be Sought

Better alarm facilities for the county jail at Upper Marlboro, Md., will be requested from the Prince Georges County Commissioners Tuesday by Sheriff T. Ward Martin as result of Wednesday's jailbreak.

The sheriff, from his sickbed at his home in Croom, Md., said he believed better communications and alarm systems at the jail would have prevented the break of five prisoners. He said he plans to appear before the commissioners if he is well enough.

Three of the prisoners were recaptured within a short time after the jailbreak but two still are at large. They are Preston Wallace, jr., 19, of Hyattsville and John T. Ford, 22, of Chapel Oaks, Md.

Sheriff Martin said he would ask the commissioners to install a better alarm system and a direct telephone system from the jail to police headquarters, two blocks away.

He said he would also urge installation of an intercommunication system so that the jail will be in constant communication with the police station. The sheriff said he believed the escape could have been thwarted had an intercommunication system been in operation so that police could be summoned quickly before the men could get away.

Ford had been sentenced to serve 30 days in lieu of a $50 fine after conviction on charges of assault. Police described him as a Negro, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighing about 140 pounds. Wallace was awaiting grand jury action on two charges of housebreaking and burglarly in Hyattsville in May. Also a Negro, he was said to be about 5 feet, 6 inches tall, and weighing 135 pounds.

District Building Sparks

Thirteen pieces of fire fighting apparatus streaked to the District Building at 7:55 a. m. yesterday, prepared to fight a reported blaze in a third floor office. Their trip proved to be little more than exercise, however, because the "fire" was nothing more than a shower of sparks caused by a short circuit in a ceiling light, R. M. Curtin, captain of D. C. Building guards, reported.

Mail Handler Held

John L. Pender, jr., 28, a mail handler, of 17 46th st. se., was held for grand jury action yesterday under $100 bond on a charge of stealing 20 packs of chewing gum from the mails at the Washington Terminal Co. When asked by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage why he stole the gum, Pender replied, "I could use it."

Tamm on Bench Monday

Edward A. Tamm will be sworn in at 10 a. m. Monday as a justice of District Court by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws in that court. Tamm, a high official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, received an interim appointment as a jurist by President Truman.

Bank Alarm Draws Crowd

Downtown shoppers yesterday had a few minutes excitement when a burglar alarm was sounded at the Liberty National Bank, 15th and I sts. nw., during the noon-day rush. By the time a crowd had gathered, police officers at the scene were explaining that the alarm had been set off by accident.

Fight's Delay in Court

The weather for the scheduled Louis-Walcott prize fight in New York had its repercussions yesterday in Municipal Court.

Daniel S. McKee, 30, of 2313 I st. nw., explained that he couldn't very well go to trial on a larceny charge because his lawyer, William S. Thompson, was in New York to see the fight. McKee said a one-day continuance should be enough.

"Not if they keep on postponing it as they have been doing," said Judge Armond Scott. "We'll give you until Tuesday. That should be time enough."

Judges' Vacations Hit

Attorney James J. Laughlin yesterday asked the United States Court of Appeals to let him file a petition to force the justices of that court and of District Court to take a curtailed vacation. He contended that under the law Federal employes including judges are entitled to but 26 days vacation a year, and challenged the justice's right to take an annual 13 weeks vacation.

Civic Federation Hits Segregation On Playgrounds

The Federation of Civic Associations last night condemned the continuation of segregation on District playgrounds.

A meeting of 60 delegates at the board room of the District Building adopted a resolution specifically condemning the Board of Education committee's action in recommending continuation of segregation on the playgrounds. At the same time two board members, Mrs. Velma G. Williams and George E. C. Hayes, were commended for their stand in opposition to the committee action.

The group also directed its executive committee to appear in opposition to any rate increase by the Capital Transit Co. at a scheduled hearing. Attention was called to the amount of unused rolling stock by the carrier, which if placed in use, it was contended, would provide better service with a resultant additional revenue to offset any rate increase need.

Two Youths Are Arrested In Break-Ins

Arrest of a 17-year-old youth en route to sell a stolen radio yesterday led to the implication of a 14-year-old boy and the solution of at least 15 housebreakings in Georgetown.

Seventh Precinct Detectives Benson Taylor and Roy C. Schwab said the boys, escapees from the District Training School, had operated mostly by entering houses just before dawn after street lights were turned off, but changed that method after May 30.

On that date the younger boy accidentally aroused Robert E. Guilot, a World War I veteran, in his home at 3013 Dent pl. nw., who fired two shots at him as he fled. From that time on they worked mainly just after dusk, police learned.

The younger boy had been arrested by Third Precinct police two days before and both are to be questioned at the Third Precinct today. They admitted to Taylor and Schwab a total of 15 housebreakings in Georgetown from which they realized about $200 in loot and cash.

Court Orders $2000 Bond Forfeited

Justice Alexander Holtzoff yesterday ordered forfeited the $2000 Bondsman Joseph Goldsmith had put up to bond missing Charles Flowers, alias Oscar Dixon, 43.

Flowers was bonded by Goldsmith last September after police urged that Flowers be released to show them where a string of thefts from automobiles had been committed by him. But Flowers skipped out of town despite a grand larceny charge against him in District Court.

Assistant United States Attorney John C. Conliffe, jr., said he would make no recommendation but pointed out that attempts to arrest Flowers had been unsuccessful, although he was reported in Jacksonville, Fla., on one occasion and in Atlantic City on another.

Justice Holtzoff said: "A bond is a solemn obligation. For the orderly administration of justice, you, Mr. Goldsmith, should forfeit the bond."

Lawyers Drop Problems to Attend Outing

Legal problems and politics were discarded in Arlington yesterday, as most of the county's legal fraternity turned out for the annual outing of the Arlington Bar Association at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Taking advantage of exceptionally light dockets, more than 100 attorneys joined in an all-day recreational program of golf and tennis matches, a dinner and dance. The daytime program was strictly "stag," but most of the attorneys were joined by their wives for the evening festivities.

Golfing members of the association competed for more than a dozen prizes offered by the association and local business concerns to leading scorers in a variety of competition. Awards were presented informally at the dinner last night.

Truman Signs 2d Deficiency Bill; Child Care Aided

President Truman affixed his signature to the second deficiency bill yesterday, and thereby provided $150,000 for continuation of six child day-care centers here for another year through June 30, 1949.

Currently 245 children of working parents are attending the centers located at the Harrison, Mott, Truesdell and Carberry schools, Parkside housing project and D St. Center.

The funds legislation also provides money and contract authorizations for the new General Accounting Office, to go up at G and 4th sts. nw.; the new Federal Courthouse, 3d st. and John Marshall pl. nw.; the additional Senate Office Building, 1st and B sts. ne., and a research center for the new National Heart Institute at Bethesda.

Md. Woman Killed, Companion Hurt In Virginia Crash

A woman identified as Marian Brown Courtney, 38, of Wendover, Md., was killed and her driving companion hurt seriously yesterday afternoon in an automobile-truck collision at Gainesville, Va.

In undetermined condition at a Warrenton, Va., hospital last night, her companion was identified by State Police as T. Bruce Morgan of 3425 Eastern ave. ne.

Virginia State Police said the woman was driving. The accident occurred on U. S. Route 211 in the Prince William County town at 3:30 p. m. The woman was pronounced dead at the Warrenton hospital a half hour later.

Course on School Care

Custodians of the more than 60 Montgomery County schools will begin on Monday an intensive three-day course on the most efficient method of heating, ventilating and housekeeping school buildings. It will be the first such course ever offered in the county and is being sponsored by K. P. Grabarkiewicz, director of maintenance for county schools.

2 Reported Overcome by Heat; Sunny, Cooler Forecast Today

The Washington Post

STORM DAMAGE—Elmer A. Norris, 4515 Buchanan st., Hyattsville, Md., looks at sycamore tree which fell against his house during Thursday night's storm. House was pushed 8 inches out of line

Two persons were reported overcome by the heat here yesterday, even while moderate breezes took much of the sting out of temperatures that reached 90 degrees at 4:20 p. m.

The day was in sharp contrast to Thursday, when still heat caused two deaths before a violent wind and rainstorm tumbled temperatures, trees and power lines throughout the Washington area. Thursday's high was 95, at 4:55 p. m., the hottest day since August 20, 1947, on District records.

For today, the weather man predicted sunny skies, but cooler. The day's high, he said, should be in the mid-80s.

Two Are Treated

Overcome in yesterday's heat were John Gaither, 38, of 1240 Columbia rd. nw., who became ill near his home and was treated at Freedmens Hospital, and Mrs. Dorothy Drost, 27, of 23 2dst. ne., who collapsed on the 4th and C sts. sw., and was treated in a nearby office dispensary.

The havoc of Thursday's storm, in which wind gusts were recorded up to 58 miles an hour, kept District, park and electric company employes busy all day clearing up the debris of fallen trees and limbs and broken power lines.

John Baxter, supervisory employe of the District's bureau of trees and parking, said bureau employes had surveyed 75 trees blown down between 7 p. m. and midnight Thursday, and had received more than 200 calls yesterday of other tree damages.

Spokesman said Potomac Electric & Power Co. employes had serviced more than 3000 trouble calls on broken wires and disrupted home service as the result of Thursday's winds. Power had been restored to most areas by yesterday morning, they said, but occupants of some homes in outlying sections had to wait longer before overworked trouble crews could restore that service.

Trees Reported Down

In Washington parks, more than a dozen trees were reported down and limbs of numerous others were broken off by the wind, a spokesman for National Capital Parks said.

Some storm damage to crops was reported from outlying counties. Fairfax (Va.) County Agent Joseph E. Beard said the storm ruined about 10 per cent of the county's corn crop. The rains, he said, also caused considerable erosion damage.

Montgomery (Md.) County Agent O. W. Anderson said corn crops there generally weathered the storm, but that the rain falling on cut hay cost county farmers an estimated $1000. Wheat, ready for harvesting, was beaten down but the crop itself apparently was undamaged.

Other areas reported similar damages, but farmers said it would take three to four days to determine whether the crops would revive.

Policy Switch Seen Forced By 4 Freedoms

Dr. Reuben G. Steinmeyer, professor of political science at the University of Maryland, said yesterday America will have to drop its traditional policy of noninterference in internal affairs of other states to carry out its Four Freedoms pledge.

Addressing about 150 members of the Loyal Knights of the Round Table international convention at the Washington Hotel, Dr. Steinmeyer declared Russia would win over the people of more European countries unless we force "reactionary" governments to introduce reforms.

Prior to the luncheon session, the convention elected Harry L. Clarke, of 4711 Guilford rd., College Park, Md., president of the group. They chose Louis L. Menne of the Westchester Apartments as one of the three new directors, while Prof. Gerald Akers of Norfolk, Va., became Eastern division vice president.

Nephew Identifies Man Found Dead In C. & O. Canal

The body of a 48-year-old painter was found floating in the C. & O. Canal between Chain Bridge and the C. & O. Railroad span about 1:30 p. m. yesterday.

The man was identified as Wiley Jonathan Batts by a nephew, Charles Shipp, 1110 Oates st. ne. He said Batts, unmarried, had last lived at 908 New York ave. nw.

The body was discovered by Louis Caplani, 3704 Reno rd. nw.

Shipp said that the dead man was an ardent fisherman and, when at the Shipp home last Monday, had been talking about some big turtles he had seen in the canal.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, will perform an autopsy today. He believed death was caused by drowning.

Wiener Roast Planned

The newly-organized Riverdale-Riverdale Heights Boys Club will stage a ball game and weiner roast at 4 p. m. today on the Parks and Planning Commission playgrounds, Riverdale rd., Riverdale, Md. Youths interested in joining the organization should call Otts Cage, supervisor, at UN. 8658.

Dr. Matthes' Funeral Held In California

Dr. Francois Emile Matthes, geologist with the United States Geological Survey for 51 years, died of coronary thrombosis at his home near Berkeley, Calif., Monday, it was learned yesterday. He was buried there.

Dr. Matthes

Dr. Matthes, who had retired from the Geological Survey in 1947, formerly lived here at Tilden Gardens, 3900 Connecticut ave. nw. He had been ill for about six weeks.

Born in Amsterdam, Netherlands, he came to the United States in 1891. Dr. Matthes was a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and had done postgraduate work at Harvard University. Last year he was awarded an honorary LL.D. by the University of California.

He joined the Geological Survey as a field assistant in 1896 and remained with the topographical branch until 1914. He became a geologist with the survey that year, and from 1928 until his retirement he was a senior geologist.

Dr. Matthes was a specialist in Alpine glaciation and the post-Pleistocene glacial period. He had conducted surveys in the Bighorn Mountains of Wyoming, Glacier National Park, the Yosemite Valley, Sequoia National Park and the central Mississippi Valley.

He had written a number of books on glaciers and was a member of many scientific societies and the Cosmos Club. In addition, he held the Silver Beaver Award for his work with the Boy Scouts and was a Chevalier, Order of Leopold II, and a member of the Belgian Legion of Honor.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edith Coyle Matthes, whom he married in 1911, and a twin brother, Gerard Matthes, civil and hydraulic engineer, of New York.

Gas Company Asks Permit to Build 18-Mile Pipeline

Potomac Gas Co., a subsidiary of Washington Gas Light Co., asked the Federal Power Commission yesterday for permission to build a 16-inch pipeline 18 miles long in Virginia.

The line, from Arlington to a point near Dranesville, will increase gas supplies available to Washington Gas Light Co., and its subsidiaries, for distribution in the Washington Metropolitan area.

Potomac Gas Co. estimated that the line would cost $1,200,000 and would be completed by December 1. Of its peak-day capacity of 30 million cubic feet, half would be delivered in Virginia and half in the District.

Virginia Girl Hospitalized Here As Polio Sufferer

First 1948 report of a polio case in a Washington hospital was received yesterday, the District Health Department announced.

The patient was a 2-year-old girl from Chincoteague, Va., who was admitted to Children's Hospital Thursday, health officials said.

No cases of polio among residents of Washington have been reported, they added.

Last year at this date, reports of six cases had been received by the Health Department, three in the District and three nonresidents under treatment in local hospitals, they said.

Millis, NLRB Ex-Chairman, Dies in Chicago

Harry Alvin Millis, 75, National Labor Relations Board chairman from 1940 to 1946, died yesterday in Albert Merritt Billings Hospital, Chicago, shortly after suffering a stroke.

Dr. Millis

Dr. Millis, professor emeritus of economics at the University of Chicago, has been ill several weeks.

An authority on labor economics and finance, Dr. Millis served as chairman of the trade board of the clothing industry from 1919 to 1921.

In 1934 he was named a member of the NLRB and served for a year. In 1940 he was appointed chairman of the NLRB by President Roosevelt and held the post until illness led him to resign.

Millis, a native of Paoli, Ind., was graduated from Indiana University and received a Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago in 1898.

He began teaching in 1902 at the University of Arkansas. A year later he moved to Stanford University where he remained until 1912. From 1912 to 1916 he held a professorship at the University of Kansas, and then went to the University of Chicago.

From 1926 to his retirement in 1938 he headed the University of Chicago's department of economics. Despite his retirement because of a scholastic ruling, he continued to teach advanced classes.

From 1908 to 1910 Millis did investigation work for the Immigration Commission in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific States, and in 1918 directed investigation work for the Illinois Health Commission.

He was also the author of several works on economics, and a member of the American Economic Association, the Cosmos Club in Washington and other organizations.

He is survived by his wife, Alice; a son, John S. Millis, president of the University of Vermont, and two daughters, Mrs. Savilla Millis Simons of Washington and Charlotte M. Millis, a sculptress in Chicago.

Rapaport Dies At 77; Rites Set Sunday

Charles Rapaport, 77, organizer of the Hebrew Free Loan Association and one of the first Community Chest board members, died Thursday at his home, 5800 3d st. nw. He had been ill since last January.

Mr. Rapaport

Mr. Rapaport was born in Tomsk, Russia, and came to this country with his wife, Rebecca, when he was 22 years old. He ran a grocery store in Carmel, N. J., and then moved to the District about 1900. He operated a grocery store here until 1925, when he went to work in the examining division of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Treasurer of the District of Columbia Hebrew Beneficial Association for 40 years, Mr. Rapaport was also president of the Hebrew Free Loan Association for 33 years. This organization which lends money without interest to those in need, was an original member of the Community Chest.

Mr. Rapaport retired in 1940, and became ill after his sixtieth wedding anniversary celebration January 10.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Anna Yadkowsky, of the 3d st. address, and a son, Dr. Walter Rapaport, superintendent of Agnews State Hospital in California. Four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren also survive.

Services will be held Sunday at 10:30 a. m. at Danzansky's funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw., with interment in Adas Israel Cemetery.

Bodies of 20 Soldiers Being Sent Here

Maj. Gen. Lee, Ex-Airborne Leader, Dies

Dunn, N. C., June 25 (AP).—Maj. Gen. William C. Lee, 53, retired former commander of the Army's airborne forces, died at his home here today.

Death came after a lingering illness which resulted from a heart attack suffered on February 5, 1944, when he was in England with the Army.

Gen. Lee

He was known as the father of the Army's airborne forces.

While assistant in the training section of the office of the Chief of Infantry here between 1939 and 1941, General Lee became interested in tactics of vertical envelopment.

Largely through his efforts, parachute troops for the American Army were initiated in July, 1940, when a test platoon of picked men from the Twenty-ninth Infantry at Fort Benning were given the task of forming the nucleus of the battalions to come. After that the parachutists became an established part of the American Army's striking force.

General Lee was a military observer in Germany when Hitler was building the German air force. At other times he was stationed in Paris and London.

He attended Wake Forest College and later won his letter in football and baseball at North Carolina State College.

He entered the service when he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserve, and in 1920 received a Regular Army commission.

He saw active duty in France in World War I and remained in Germany through part of 1919 with the American Army of Occupation.

Mrs. Bone, 82, Dies From Fall In Los Angeles

Mrs. Mary Worth Bone, 82, widow of Scott C. Bone, a former managing editor of The Washington Post, died Thursday in Los Angeles, Calif., from injuries suffered in a fall a month earlier, it was learned here yesterday.

Mrs. Bone, born in Anderson, Ind., was married to Mr. Bone there in 1887 and came to Washington with him two years later when he was made managing editor of the Washington Post.

In 1906, Mr. Bone helped to found the Washington Herald here. He left the District for Seattle in 1911 where he was editor of the Post-Intelligencer. In 1919, Mr. Bone acted as publicity director for the Republican National Committee. He was appointed Governor of Alaska by President Harding in 1921.

Mrs. Bone is survived by four sons, Roger M. Bone, Pasedena, Calif.; Carroll A. Bone, Los Angeles; Robert D. Bone, Seattle, Wash., and Scott W. Bone, Washington, senior administrative assistant with the Federal Trade Commission, and two daughters, Mrs. John Ford Starr, Beverly Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Alfred Wilcox, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Funeral services and burial will be held Monday at Santa Barbara where Mr. Bone was interred in 1936.

In Bridal Procession

Miss Florence Margaret Ellen Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Andrew Foster of Abernethy, Saskatchewan, Canada, and Herbert Julius Guth, son of Mrs. Eugene Guth and the late Mr. Guth of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church June 19. The Rev. Franklin Gillespie officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dusty pink crepe dress with a white tulle halo hat. She carried her prayer book with a white orchid.

Miss Dorothy Rodgers was maid of honor and Raymond Guth was best man for his brother. A. Howry and P. Winter were ushers.

After a motor trip to the New England States the couple will reside in Washington.

The bridegroom was graduated from University of Wisconsin. He served during the war as a captain in the Army Air Forces. The bride has been employed at the British Embassy for six years.

Reed—Willett

The wedding of Miss Mary Jane Willett, daughter of Mrs. Mary V. Willett and the late Mr. Willett of Kensington, Md., to Jack W. Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reed of Silver Spring, Md., took place June 19. Dr. C. A. Brubaker performed the ceremony in the Little Church in the Wildwood on old Georgetown Road, Bethesda, Md.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Charles Jones, wore a white taffeta gown with a veil held by a Dutch style bonnet. She carried the Testament originally used by the bridegroom during 38 months of service with the Navy in the Pacific and European war theaters.

Miss Jean Craig was maid of honor and L. E. Reed, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Clayton Gray and Stanley Curtis.

Sorority Meets For Jubilee Convention

By Genevieve Reynolds

Back in 1922, four congenial girls in the School of Commerce at University of Maryland complained, "there's no sorority for graduate women. Let's organize one." And so, in that year, they formed the Women's Commerce Club, which parented Phi Delta Gamma in 1923.

Last night three of the four founders, Mrs. Helen Gould Brooks, Miss Catherine M. Koch and Miss Arbutus Stange, were honored guests at the opening session of Phi Delta Gamma's four-day silver jubilee conclave in the Statler Hotel. Miss Elizabeth Miller, the other founder, was unable to attend.

A series of skits high-lighting the first year history of each of the 13 chapters in the sorority were staged by Phi Delta Gamma Thespians. Beta, the George Washington University chapter, which is hostess for the some 60 convention delegates, was installed in 1927. Fifty-two of the official conclave goers are from out of town. Largest delegations hail from Baltimore, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Meantime, dozens of local and nearby area members of the organization are streaming in for social functions and sightseeing.

Miss Vera Mowry, president of Beta Chapter of George Washington University, presided as mistress of ceremonies at the banquet last night. The invocation was pronounced by Elsie Green of the Washington alumnae chapter.

High lights of today's events will be a forum discussion of "Women in Unusual Fields of Endeavor" at 2 p. m. by Dr. Virginia O'Neil, Miss Clara Fielder and Miss Helen Louise Trembley, and the jubilee banquet at 7:30 p. m. Principal speaker will be Earl E. Dennis, chief, Division of International Exchange of Persons, Department of State. The delegates and their guests will tour the city from 10 p. m. to midnight.

Phi Delta Gamma, national fraternity for graduate women, is unique in that it is the only Greek letter organization whose membership is open to women of all professional interests studying in graduate schools or universities.

Randolph-Macon Alumnae To Have Picnic

Randolph Macon Woman's College alumnae will entertain parents and prospective students at a picnic Sunday, 6:30 p. m. at the Beauvoir National Cathedral School, 3500 Woodley rd. nw. A brief program under alumnae president, Miss Margaret Flory, will include election of officers.

Shriver—Branner

In a garden wedding at the home of the bride, Miss Enid Branner, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. George C. Branner of Fort Belvoir, Va., was married to Mark Owings Shriver 3d, son of Mrs. Mark O. Shriver, jr., of Baltimore and the late Mr. Shriver. The Rev. C. Acton officiated at the wedding June 19.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white net with a veil of illusion held by clusters of white flowers. She carried white gladiolas and baby's breath.

Miss Georgine Branner was maid of honor for her sister and Frederick W. Forman was best man. Goeffrey Lyford and Warren Gerhart were ushers and Frances Hynes was flower girl.

A reception was held at MacKenzie Hall at Fort Belvoir, after which the couple left for a stay in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania. They will reside in Ithaca, N. Y., where Mr. Shriver is an engineering student at Cornell University.

Scott—Barnes

Miss Margaret Anne Barnes became the bride of Charles Flavil Scott June 17 at Fourteenth Street Church of Christ. She was married in the same chapel in which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Barnes, were married 23 years ago. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Charles Matthew and the late Mr. Scott of Rogersville, Mo.

The bride wore wedding dress of eggshell satin and her grandmother's bridal veil. She carried white garden flowers. Her cousins, Misses Judith Anderson and Jane Pierce, were attendants. She was given in marriage by her father.

Joe Bloominberg was best man and the ushers were Carl Abbot Barnes, Paul Barnes, Richard Andersen, Thomas Gaither and Marian Chinn, all cousins of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Arlington, Va., after which the couple left for a Southern trip. They will go to Nashville, Tenn., in the fall where the bridegroom is studying for the ministry at Lipscomb College.

About Caring for Carriage

Before putting our baby carriage away two years ago, we washed the leatherette and metal parts with soap and water, dried the parts, and then covered both the leatherette and metal parts with a layer of high pressure chassis grease. Now we want to take the grease off. What is the best method of cutting grease quickly? I. M.

Remove as much of the grease as possible by wiping with soft absorbent cloths. Of course, the substance which cuts grease most readily is one of the solvents such as carbon tetrachloride but this is likely to destroy the color and stiffen the leather. Because of this I would suggest you use a mild soap such as castile and water or saddle soap to wash away the grease which cannot be wiped off. You may have to go over the buggy several times to remove completely all trace of the grease.

Recently I had some machine button holes worked at one of our sewing shops. Whoever made the buttonholes marked a large pencil dot to indicate where to end the stitching. I have tried an art gum eraser, but that does not work, and to my knowledge washing will not remove the dots. Is there any known way to remove these pencil markings? L. A. P.

If material is washable, rub mild soap into the marks with a brush before laundering and the pencil marks should come out with no difficulty. If not washable, try a cleaning fluid such as carbon tetrachloride.

Will you tell me where I can have asbestos table pads (sectional) recovered. (Mine has green felt-like material on one side, and white water-proof on the other.) I wrote to a department store from whom mine were purchased some years ago, but they could not help me. B. R. L.

There is a firm located on F st. in Washington which makes table pads. They tell me they will recover yours if it is in good condition. Since you write from an out-of-town address, it may also be helpful to you to know that they will cover the pads while you wait. They can be reached by calling Executive 5524 in Washington.

During a shower, I wore a fine navy blue straw hat and a few drops of rain got on the crown an brim. A number of white spots appeared when the hat dried. These do not brush out. Is there anything I can do about these spots. L. A. P.

I would suggest you take the hat to a professional hat cleaner who will probably tell you what treatment is necessary when he sees it. Many times the spots need to be touched up with a little color to eliminate them. For such a firm, look under "Hat Cleaners and Repairers" in the Yellow Pages of the telephone directory.

Correction: Due to a typographical error, the telephone number of a Clarendon shop that does guaranteed moth-proofing was incorrectly given in yesterday's column. The correct number is Oxford 2644.

Convention Trivia

Philadelphia Now Hears Faint Bray of Donkey As G.O.P. Conclave Ends

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—The herds of elephants have disappeared from Philadelphia's store windows, from masculine lapels and feminine bosoms. Pavement peddlers are hawking favorite son badges—Stassen, Warren, Vandenberg—dime a dozen. The average citizen can step into hotel lobbies without endangering life and limb or fear of being trampled by Little Eva. Sound trucks blaring "I'm Looking Over a Four-Leaf Clover" have been garaged and in the City of Brotherly Love the sound decibel count has sunk to near normalcy.

In quiet convention aftermath, trivia which makes the big show so exciting bobs surfaceward. During the acceptance speech Governor and Mrs. Dewey's excellent posture—the nominee's obviously well-trained speaking voice—Mrs. Dewey's trig figure, carefully composed face made up with dark lipstick for flattering television recording. Mrs. Diana Mossman, the Hawaiian National Committeewoman, in at the kill with two leis of exquisite, tiny, purple etched white orchids flown in from her happy islands—Philadelphia's allied florists copping an outrageous slice of free publicity by hauling in a 4000-flower 8-foot flag right behind Dewey then broadcasting its origin. At the Democratic Convention the lead will be followed probably by refrigerators and nylons for the candidate pair. The three G men behind Governor Dewey, their gimlet eyes flickering over the audience unceasingly.

Cynical pressman, once-overing advance copies of the acceptance speech, tittering at the sentence "I come to you unfettered by a single obligation or promise to any living person." Convention Roll Caller Mrs. Hays' happy exclamation "Hallelulia" when the 1094th and final vote was in the Dewey bag. In the final ballot the California delegation was the only one to be polled individually and only the ladies piped "I cast my vote for Tom Dewey." The gents were more formal, saying Governor or Thomas E.

The amusing plugs given their own States when delegation leaders answered the roll call—"Washington, the evergreen State of the Great Northwest"—"Utah, the scenic State"—in deep South accents "Goojaw the Empire State of the South casts its votes for Thomas E. Dewey, Governor of the Empire State of the North"—while Wyoming, where women first were given the vote, delicately publicized this fact by "Not unmindful of the next first lady of the White House we—"

The Sentimental Ending

THEN THERE WAS the moving lump-in-throat moment at the final session when first one, then several, then the whole picked up the tune, started singing the National Anthem. The most popular convention giveaway—the paper fans thoughtfully provided by the Philadelphia Bulletin and stamped with the familiar slogan "In Phiadelphia nearly everybody reads the Bulletin." The blind veteran guided to the microphone to release General MacArthur's few votes. Joe Martin's facetious remark on declaring the afternoon recess, "In the interests of cold showers and cool heads"—the flurry of handclapping by seated dinner guests when Senator Vandenberg left his table in the Barclay Hotel—in the same hotel same dining room Foster Dulles, possibly next Secretary of State, almost completely unrecognized—.

The Procession Begins

AN AMUSING peepshow of political mechanics could be seen in the morning just by lounging in a corridor leading to Governor Dewey's suite—highlights were the file of prominent and almost prominent well-heeled Washington characters, hitherto associated with Democratic doings, being led down the hall to Dewey by his most energetic money raiser, Harold Talbott. Best barker on record was movie star George Murphy who led the uproarious Warren demonstration—the bosun whistles shrilled by California delegates whenever Warren's name was mentioned—Irene Dunne seconding Warren laughingly shooing away flashlight lads when she placed spectacles on her exquisite nose. The few sartorial highlights included Michigan Governor Sigler's black and white striped suspenders—he was the only man to make an audress coatless and with suspenders showing. Clare Luce's gaucho hat, shiny black straw tied underchin with a narrow ribbon, and topping a white with black polka dot much be ruffled dress. Mrs. Owen Brewster's wonderful corsage of blood red Gloriosa Rothschildiana matching the roses on her natural colored straw hat. Rothschildiana, for the benefit of the horticulturally uninformed, is a kind of lily, sturdy and very new, on the floral market. Mrs. Patterson Wanamaker's mustard and brown printed bepleated silk suit. Meyer Davis' songstress daughter's peasant blouse stitched in black with every candidate's name—Newspaper tycoon Roy Howard's snappy daily double—shirt and matching tie in breath-taking plaids. The Philippine lady in national dress—an evening adaptation of black with traditional balloon sleeves heavy with jet. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth's reassuringly familiar wide-brimmed hats. Inconspicuous in the crowd and present with his teen-age daughter only on a one-day stand was Willkie's political launcher, Russell Davenport.

Solving Transportation Problem

NEATEST transportation solution was the taxi Mrs. Rowan Shevlin brought from Washington. Most macabre spectacle was the sound-equipped truck which threaded the street proclaiming on a banner the death of the housing bill. The sound equipment played the funeral march while a pretty girl, head bowed, hands clasped in mourning, sat beside a wreath-bedecked coffin. Typical political story happened at Senatorial Candidate Margaret Chase Smith's press conference. Photographers were just commencing work when a man dashing from the rear knocked a lady radioist off her table perch, actually stepped on her hand. He was a Maine politico critic of Mrs. Smith who, galloping for her bandwagon, feared omission from the photographs. In three weeks the same story'll be repeated with different characters and already through the pleasant Philadelphia streets sharp ears can pick up the faint braying of donkeys.

D. C. Exchange Starts 5-Hour Trade July 15

By S. Oliver Goodman

The 67-year-old Washington Stock Exchange will put on long pants for the first time, starting July 15.

This was assured when exchange members at a special meeting yesterday approved new trading hours from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. At present the session is from 11:15 a. m. to noon.

Bernard J. Nees, exchange president, pointed out that the extended trading hours will cover only the "dually listed" securities. Members will continue to meet for 45 minutes each day to establish bid and asked quotations and to trade in issues listed only on the local exchange.

Special facilities will be set up to handle transactions in the active "dually listed" issues on a five-hour daily basis. Such issues, listed both on the New York and Washington Exchanges, are Potomas Electric Power, Peoples Drug Stores, Hecht, Washington Gas Light, Lanston, Mergenthaler and American Telephone stocks and bonds.

"The new plan," said Nees, "should improve the service of the exchange and greatly expand volume of trading."

The Washington Stock Exchange, established in 1881, has always had an abbreviated session. From 1881 to 1917, the hours were from 12:15 to 1:15 p. m. From 1917 until this year, trading was from 11:15 to noon.

Full-time presence of members on the exchange floor will not be necessary, Nees explained. Under the new hours, Ralph Saffell will handle any orders as floor agent and an additional part-time employe will assist him.

DEWEY'S MEMORY: J. A. Livingston, business columnist of The Washington Post, tells this one about Thomas E. Dewey's prodigious memory: Some years ago when Dewey was Special Assistant U. S. Attorney General in New York, Livingston met him at a house party. At that time Livingston was on the staff of the New York Daily Investment News. Dewey remarked that he read that paper and proceeded to recite an amusing verse from a recent column. Says Livingston: "I was flabbergasted. I'd written the verse. But I couldn't have recited the eight lines from memory!"

ODD LOTS: Officials of National Airlines and Delta Airlines are reported to be working on a possible merger of the two systems . . . Ductile Steel, Ltd., of England, claims development of a new steel-making system which will prove as revolutionary as the Bessemer furnace . . . Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corp. of Washington has declared its 145th consecutive dividend — a semiannual disbursement of $1.50 a share, payable June 30 to stock of record June 25 . . . McCall Corp., publishing firm, notified the SEC that it intends to offer an additional 87,167 shares of common stock . . . Ralph C. Morrow, manager of Prudential's Washington District Office 2, yesterday marked his twenty-fifth anniversary as an insurance man . . . Howard L. Wynegar was named vice chairman of Commercial Credit Co. and E. C. Wareheim succeeded him as president.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in week ended June 19 hopped 14 per cent over same 1947 period. Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night. For four weeks ended June 19, local sales were 4 per cent improved. Regionally, Fifth Federal Reserve District store sales were up 11 per cent of the week and up 3 per cent for the four-week period.

BRIDGE BONDS: Indications are the proposed Chesapeake Bay Bridge revenue bond issue, aggregating some 38 million to 40 million dollars, will reach the market within the next 60 to 90 days. It is expected negotiations for the financing will be entered into with Alex Brown & Sons, and other investment bankers. Engineering estimates put the construction cost of the bridge at about 45 million dollars. To this will be added funds necessary to retire any ferry and Susquehanna and Potomac River bridge bonds outstanding at the time of issue. Net revenues from existing Susquehanna and Potomac bridges and the Mattapeake-Sandy Point ferries will be applied to the requirements of the new bonds and are expected to exceed fixed charges on a satisfactory margin during the period of construction. Work has started on the engineering report and traffic surveys. Award of the construction contract probably will follow immediately after sale of the bonds.

Two Men Get Jail Terms in Store Holdup

Two toy-gun holdup men were given prison terms yesterday by Justice Alexander Holtzoff of District Court.

They are John N. Parker, 29, of 308 Virginia ave. se., who received three to ten years, and Frederick Powell, 27, of 909 5th st. ne., who was sentenced to one to three years. They were accused of holding up a grocery store at 170 Y st. nw.

Justice Holtzoff ordered that the two men be sent to different prisons. Powell pleaded guilty and turned Government witness against Parker. Powell is in "mortal fear of his life," Justice Holtzoff said.

Donald A. McDaniels, 38, bad-check artist who posed as a Navy lieutenant commander to pass the checks, was given four months to a year in jail. When McDaniels said he would go to sea as a radio officer if given probation, Justice Holtzoff said, "You should have done that before passing bad checks."

Pauline Hill, 31, of 1100 3rd st. nw., was given one to three years for manslaughter by Justice Edward M. Curran. Mrs. Hill was accused of fatally stabbing with a scissors Mrs. Estella Brown, 45, of the same address.

Two youths were given two to six years for robbery of $35. They are Ernest Todd, 20, and Ison Cothran, 21, both of no fixed address.

$500 Reward Offered for Denekas Tip

Arlington police, still groping for clews to the auto-bomb slaying of William J. Denekas, yesterday circulated 300 posters throughout the county advertising a $500 reward for information leading to the conviction of the slayer.

The reward was authorized two weeks ago by the County Board at the request of Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard, but was held up subject to an opinion by Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker as to its legality. Woodyard said he placed the posters in circulation yesterday after receiving official approval from Rucker.

The police chief expressed hope that publication of the reward notice might bring new tips leading to a solution to the slaying, which so far has baffled his department. He said all available leads had been exhausted, and admitted police are now no nearer a solution than they were at the time the crime was reported.

C. Burns Pressley, chief of the county's detective bureau, said "at least 200" persons have been questioned in connection with the case, while written statements have been obtained from about 30 others, without results.

Police are still awaiting results of an FBI analysis of wire and metal splinters, believed to be part of the bomb which caused Denekas' death.

Denekas, 30-year-old neon sign dealer, was fatally injured June 7 when he stepped on the starter of his car and detonated a bomb which apparently had been planted in the car some time during the preceding night. The blast occurred in front of a house a 5837 N. 21st st., where Denekas had a room.

Caldwell Fund Collections Top $8000

More than $8000 has been collected for the Caldwell Fund without counting proceeds of the dance held Wednesday night and several other benefits, Prince Georges County police reported.

The fund is being raised to aid the family of County Policeman Charles F. Caldwell, killed June 12 making an arrest.

A capacity audience is expected to fill the Sidney Lust Cheverly Theater Wednesday night at a special benefit show to swell the fund. Tickets are being sold now. Regular admission will be $1 and sponsors' tickets will be $5. Tickets are on sale at all Sidney Lust theaters and at police stations as well as at a number of other points.

Feature film will be "Green Grass of Wyoming," in Technicolor and five acts of vaudeville including Nora Williams, comedy songstress; Bob Freed, pantomime artist; Frances Parker, girl juggler and dog trainer; Bobby Valentine and Don Milja, adagio dance team, and others. Bill Brundige, WOL sports director, will be master of ceremonies and bring several sports celebrities with him.

The show will begin at 8 p. m. and there will be only one performance that night.

Tavern Owner Warned On After Hours Drinks

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday warned the holder of a restaurant liquor license at 7331 Georgia ave. nw., against selling drinks after hours.

At a hearing earlier this week, P. Henry Coates, who, as executor of the estate of the late Frank Callan, is the license holder, was charged with permitting drinks to be served during prohibited hours and allowing the restaurant to be used for "disorderly" purposes, ABC officials said.

Red Trials Open July 6

Lisbon, Portugal, June 25 (U.P.).—The trial of 108 alleged Communists accused of political crimes against the government will open July 6, officials said today. Nineteen lawyers will represent the 108 defendants.

Youth, Found Near Railway, Dies of Hurts

Charlottesville, Va., June 25.—An unidentified youth died en route to University Hospital here after being found with his leg battered and unconscious along the Southern Railway tracks near Covesville this morning.

The youth, who was wearing a Boy Scout uniform, was found about 6 o'clock by Jerry Mawyer of Covesville. Before losing consciousness he said his name was Robert South and he lived in Maryland.

Dr. E. D. Davis, jr., Albemarle County coroner, said the youth's left leg was nearly torn off between the knee and ankle. He had a deep cut on his forehead and chest lacerations. Dr. Davis said the youth, who was about 17 or 18, apparently died from shock and loss of blood.

Premier Nishio Wins

Tokyo, June 25 (U.P.).—The House of Representatives today defeated a no-confidence motion against Deputy Premier Suehiro Nishio. The vote was 209 to 178.

3 bedrooms in one of the apts. and 1 in the other. Many have been sold to thrifty, conservative people who are living in 1 apt. and renting the other to help pay the cost of purchase and operation. They also make an excellent purchase for the small investor. Let us explain to you how this is done. We have a small group for sale at this time. Immediately north of Soldiers' Home and Catholic University, in a new development, where all houses are designed in the modern manner. Price, $17,000, with $4500 cash, payment. Call A. H. Parker, RA. 2569 or TA. 3668.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Some Second Thoughts On GOP Convention

Are we to assume that the GOP is now the "Governors Only Party"?

If Dewey had gone any farther west for his running mate, he'd have been back in Manila Bay.

How can a New York-California ticket lose? Between them they have the whole country.

No wonder Stassen lost. He was only a captain in the Navy, but Dewey was an admiral.

The Democrats had a soft racket when the Roosevelt coattails were available. Will things be different now that they're opposed by Mr. District Attorney, the racket buster?

If Mr. Dewey plans to do any baby-kissing, he ought to trim that mustache first.

If Washington's school children had any voice in the final selection, Dewey would have been defeated. The kids are currently circulating a rumor that New York's Governor favors Saturday classes.

Add similes: As out-of-place as a tobbacco chewer in a smoked-filled room.

Now that it's all over, President Truman has probably heaved a sigh of relief. Now he can stop running against that phantom one-eyed Chinaman, and take a political trip.

The Stassen-Taft stop-Dewey movement was a failure. Now Mr. Truman will try his hand at the assignment.

So many delegates were "switching" that it appeared the convention was being sponsored by Calvert's whiskey.

The last time Dewey drew up an indictment against the New Deal it was nol-prossed.

Stassen and Vandenberg counted on a deadlock which never materialized. They should have engaged the services of that eminent deadlock maker and breaker, John L. Lewis.

Best crack used by the anti-Dewey forces was the oldie: "He looks like the little figure of a groom on a wedding cake."

Moscow will no doubt find imperialistic overtones in the nomination of a man from the Empire State.

Talk about the housing shortage—Dewey has been on the waiting list at 1600 Pennsylvania ave. nw. for four years.

Instead of making himself available for the Republican nomination and spending the fall months campaigning, General Eisenhower is going to devote the time to finishing his memoirs.

One gets the impression that Ike would rather write than be President.

MISCELLANY

Inflation note: Remember John D. Rockefeller and the dimes he used to give away? When Secretary of the Treasury Snyder was at WTOP to appear on a program recently, he presented three staff members (Mrs. Hazel Kenyon Markel, Mrs. Elinor Lee and Terry Carpenter) with autographed dollar bills. But Republicans needn't become alarmed; the currency came out of Mr. Snyder's personal treasury . . . Intrigued by the Tucker auto ads which list such accessories as "radio, heater, seat-covers and luggage," Jim Wilfong, jr., couldn't rest until he'd investigated the "luggage." The explanation is that the Tucker trunk is designed to accommodate specially designed luggage on specially designed racks . . . Wonder if they'll have special ash trays for people who smoke king-size cigarettes . . . Ruth Redden Markmann writes: "I specially enjoy two Washington Post features — Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer's column and yours. But why do you not work only six days a week?" Dear Miss Markmann: In answer to your inquiry—grrrrrr! Yours truly, Bill . . . The tattered American Flags being displayed on some of our public buildings are a disgrace.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Healthy, intelligent male kitten." (Chestnut 1859).

"Will give to anybody making a contribution to his favorite charity: Lionel electric train set; crystal sherbet glasses; coil and mattress." (Decatur 6786).

"Two mother cats, six kittens, 3 male cats. I'm going on a trip and can't take them with me." (OVerlook 2879).

"Young dog of mixed ancestry; fine companion for a boy." (SLigo 5183 before 4 p. m. weekdays).

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Can't something be done to make our loading platforms more easily visible at night? On some streets they're a positive menace.

NEW YORK.—Olsen & Johnson will return to the Winter Garden on Broadway in the fall, when the theater's movie policy is abandoned. They started their comeback in this theater, 10 years ago, when they opened in "Hallzapoppin'." The entire production cost $23,000—less than the cost of one theatrical set nowadays . . . This $23,000 production blossomed into an enterprise which ran four years on Broadway, had four road companies on tour and, with the film adaptation, grossed almost 10 million dollars.

The Bar Harbor Playhouse will open its season with a presentation of Maurice Dolbier's new comedy, "Word to the Wise." Its central character was patterned after G. B. Shaw. Theodore Leavitt, director of the Playhouse, wrote to Shaw, offered to send him the script and suggested that the author might adopt any ideas Shaw might have about his characterization . . . "Don't bother me with your plans or your plays," Shaw wrote in reply. "I'm now an old man of 92, and I have trouble enough managing my own affairs, much less yours."

Marc Lawrence, the actor, studied at CCNY, where he was the dramatic critic for the Spectator in the days when every young critic imitated the reviews of George Jean Nathan. Lawrence still fancies himself a drama critic. And when he recently returned from some Hollywood film assignments, and checked into the Royalton Hotel, he thought it more than mere coincidence that he and Mr. Nathan should be sharing elevator rides. He met the critic in the elevator, told him of his boyhood aspirations, and said: "I'm going to the opening tonight. I think I know so well what you're going to say I'll show you my review and bet it'll be just like yours" . . . That night a bad play opened. Lawrence showed the critic his review—he dismissed it in three lines. Nathan showed his—two lines.

Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, the play collaborators, will contribute to the Urban League's auction of paintings by distinguished amateurs. The auction will be held this fall at the Association of America Artists Gallery. Even in this venture Lindsay and Crouse will collaborate: they're making one joint painting . . . Hank Greenberg, part owner of the Cleveland Indians, may purchase a home in Cleveland and move there permanently after the birth of his second child this summer . . . Representative Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts sails for England shortly. He won't be back before the Democratic convention is over.

GOP Held Muffing Opportunities

By Drew Pearson

The Republicans had a great opportunity at Philadlephia to wipe out the mistakes of the recent Republican Congress, but they muffed it. Progressive leaders of the party tried—and tried hard—during closed-door debates on the GOP platform. But they lost out to the right-wingers.

Pearson

The most significant platform battles were over exactly the same issues fought out in the recent Congress—public housing, tidelands oil and public power. The final platform—the principles the GOP will follow for four years if elected—was a victory for the reactionaries.

Stormiest secret debate was over tidelands oil. Gordon Richmond of Orange, Calif., managed to insert the plank in the original subcommittee draft giving the control of submerged oil lands to the States—just the opposite of the ruling by the United States Supreme Court. But alert Senator Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, chairman of the platform committee, caught the insert and scratched it out. Later in the full committee meeting, Delegate Richmond tried to reinsert it.

He was opposed by Senator Donnell of Missouri, who threatened to stay up all night rather than see the tidelands oil lands go back to the States. The argument got bitter.

"That's the New Deal theory of Government," shouted Richmond. "What the hell are you trying to do—favor Truman over Congress?"

Chairman Lodge supported Donnell, argued that Federal control of the coastline was vital to national defense. But Senator Baldwin of Connecticut and Governor Herbert of Ohio, plus the Texas delegate, jumped in on the side of California. The final vote favored State control of tidelands oil.

Public Power

Liberal Republicans rowing over housing also inserted a plank favoring public power in the first draft of the GOP platform, but somebody leaked this draft to the press, and the power lobby got busy. That afternoon, when the platform committee met in secret session, all reference to public power was thrown out.

However, Utah Delegate Vernon Romney of Salt Lake City moved to put it back. He warned that a lot of questions would be asked, especially in the West, if the Republicans backtracked.

So as a compromise, it was reinserted, with two additional words, which tended to cut the ground out from under public power. The two words were "incidental thereto," pertaining to navigation and flood control. In other words the Republicans went on record that water power could not be developed for water power alone, but only in connection with navigation and flood control.

Public Housing

Another tough battle was waged over public housing. At first the right-wingers wanted to omit it altogether. But Senator Ives of New York argued that the big Eastern States had helped the Western States pay for reclamation, now it was up to the Western States to help the congested Eastern States pay for housing.

This argument struck home, and the right-wingers finally agreed to Federal support for housing—with a big "if" attached, namely that the States spend the money. In other words, the Federal Government supplies the housing money and the States spend it.

That seemed to make all the Republicans happy.

Backstage Move

MacArthur's boom—one of the most fantastic backstage moves at Philadelphia, came when General MacArthur requested Senator Vandenberg to deliver the nominating speech—for MacArthur.

Believe it or not but the request was delivered to Vandenberg by an office girl from MacArthur's headquarters.

It looks as if MacArthur has been taken in by his supporter's propaganda. They circulated an outdated article, printed February 12, 1944, by Vandenberg telling why he was for MacArthur. But a lot of people can change their minds between 1944 and 1948.

GOP on Palestine

It didn't leak out, but the biggest backstage jockeying over principles, not politicians, at Philadelphia was regarding Palestine. The debate arose over the original plank in the GOP platform which merely greeted the new state of Israel, with nothing said about Palestinian borders or United Nations' support.

This was a big comedown from the GOP platform of 1944 which put the Republicans vigorously on record for an independent Palestine, naturally when Zionist leaders heard of this, they hit the ceiling.

Senator Lodge, they found, had drafted the compromise Palestine resolution after conferring with Senator Vandenberg, who, they believed, had been in touch with pro-Arabs in the State Department.

Immediately Zionists appealed to Governor Dewey and Senator Taft. Both were sympathetic. Dewey called in his chief foreign adviser, John Foster Dulles, while Taft asked Senators Millikin of Colorado, Donnell of Missouri and Brooks of Illinois, all members of the platform committee, to write a stronger resolution.

When the full resolution committee finally met, Senator Ives of New York led the move to rewrite the Lodge-Vandenberg Palestine pronouncement.

"This resolution you've got here," he said, "says less than a New Year's greeting card."

Press Fights 'Gag' Ruling In Maryland

Maryland newsmen yesterday carried their fight against a proposed State news "gag" to the Maryland State Bar Association.

A protest was wired to the association by officials of the Montgomery and Prince Georges County Press Associations.

The telegram stated that "strong opposition to Rule 9 of proposed criminal procedure rules, is voiced in a resolution adopted by joint session of Montgomery and Prince Georges County Press Associations."

The wire also stated that "proposed rule would be in violation of traditional Maryland concepts of a free press and free speech. Strongly urge that the association not adopt policy until resolutions from press of entire State now being prepared are ready for study."

The telegram was signed by John W. Coffman, jr., president of the Montgomery County Association, and Phillip J. Austensen, president of the Prince Georges group.

A resolution opposing the proposed rules had been adopted at a meeting of the two groups Thursday night at Quonset Inn, Silver Hill, Md. A committee was named to prepare a formal resolution of protest and to send copies to the Court of Appeals, the committee on revising procedure, Gov. W. Preston Lane, Attorney General Hall Hammond and other State officials.

The proposed rules were also center of interest at the bar association meeting in Atlantic City, the Associated Press reported. Many county members of the association contended that the rules are in violation of the free press and free speech guarantees of the State Constitution.

The controversial rules would bar, under penalty of contempt citation, making pictures of a defendant without his consent; State's attorneys, defense counsels and police from revealing any actions or statements of a defendant in a criminal case; and would also bar State's attorneys and defense counsel from forecasting any future action in the case.

Maryland Bar to Fight Juvenile Delinquency

Atlantic City, N. J., June 25 (AP). The Maryland State Bar Association voted today to fight collectively against increasing juvenile delinquency and divorce rates.

The group unanimously approved a committee report recommending:

1. A mobile unit of psychologists, psychiatrists and physicians visit county courts where needed to work with mentally deficient persons and those with personality difficulties.

2. Counseling agencies be established to advise parents contemplating divorce. (Such an agency now exists in Baltimore.)

3. A standing committee be appointed annually to continue the study of child problems and to make recommendations for proper methods of handling such cases.

4. A State-wide survey to determine the effectiveness of the State juvenile and equity courts, including how many children are involved, the principal sources of delinquency and what resources the courts have in their dealings with children.

The association also approved a recommendation that the orphans courts be abolished and authorized the president and executive council to "take steps deemed expedient" to insure their abolishment by the Legislature.

Cab Ordinance Is Not Legal

Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday served notice on the county government that it would have to prove legality of the local taxicab ordinance.

The ruling followed filing of a suit by Robert H. Swisher, Takoma Park, Md., cab operator, who has contested legality of the ordinance.

In yesterday's ruling, Judges Stedman Prescott and Charles W. Woodward upheld a contention by Swisher's lawyer that the hack law conflicts with the State motor vehicle law.

They also said the State law under which the commissioners adopted the ordinance last year had not amended the Motor Vehicle Act to permit such action.

Attorney James R. Miller, who represented Swisher, said he would advise his client to disregard the law as result of the ruling. Court attaches also indicated the judges would probably issue an injunction prohibiting enforcement of the law if attorneys for the county do not file an answer to the ruling.

Hotel Seeks Rent Increase

A proposal to raise weekly rents in 644 rooms at Meridian Hill Hotel, 2601 16th st. nw., will be given a public hearing July 12, the District Rent Control Administration announced yesterday.

Owners seek to raise $6.50-a-week rooms to $8.45 and $8.75-a-week rooms to $11.37, William Richardson, rent control secretary-docket clerk, revealed.

The hearing will be conducted by Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson, Richardson said.

The hotel, built by the Federal Government's Defense Homes Corporation in 1942, was sold for approximately $2,750,000 last January 23, to Abner Friedman and Sidney Clayman, owners of the Times Square Hotel and other properties in New York.

Owners of a series of apartment houses in the 5800 and 5900 blocks of 14th st. nw. have petitioned for an 11 per cent hike for 76 apartments, Richardson revealed.
